U. S. DEAF TO ETHIOPIA PLEA

NEW DEAL PUTS UP STRUGGLE TO KEEP AAA ALIVE

Amendment to Face Hard Battle.

Signs Wagner Bill

President Roosevelt risks another rebuff by Supreme court when he signs Wagner bill, whose constitutionality is seriously doubted. Details on page 2.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—What with the setback sustained in the Supreme court decisions and insurgency against the New Deal in congress the Roosevelt administration is staggering about in a welter of planless planning.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Administrator Chester Davis are striving desperately to keep the breath of life in the Agricultural Adjustment administration, although they fear for the worst, the head New Dealer himself having admitted that the Supreme court decision in the NRA case renders doubtful the constitutionality of the AAA.

The proposed amendments to the agricultural adjustment act originally were intended to give Secretary Wallace dictatorial power over all producers, processors, and handlers of farm products.

Amendments Rewritten.

Since the Supreme court decision, however, the amendments have been revised in an effort to avoid the unconstitutional pitfalls of the recovery act. The amendments have been rewritten so many times that even the young lawyers of the brain trust are bewildered.

In the latest revision which is pending in the senate the provisions investing the secretary with autocratic power are retained and even broadened, although concealed in a cloud of brain trust verbiage.

Under the existing act the secretary is authorized to make benefit payments for reduction of acreage or production. The new amendments would legalize a variety of price raising devices and instruct the secretary to invoke any of them "to effectuate the declared policy of this title."

Price Fixing Loophole.

Whenever the secretary might have "reason to believe" that the "current average farm price for any basic agricultural commodity is less than the fair exchange value thereof, or the average farm price of such commodity is likely to be less than the fair exchange value thereof" during the current or succeeding marketing year, he would conduct an investigation "to determine such facts." If the investigation should disclose the "existence of such facts," he would be required to invoke one of the price-fixing devices.

How the secretary could be expected to make a "finding of facts" regarding farm prices of commodities a year hence is a question that will figure conspicuously in the approaching senate consideration of the amendments.

It has been suggested that what the brain trust really means is that the secretary should invoke his imagination and then solemnly promulgate his best guess as a "finding of fact."

Base Decisions on Guess.

S. Clay Williams, former chief of the NRA, said the AAA amendments are so drawn that "a political officer is called upon to make a prophet of himself, hazard a guess as to the future, and take the responsibility of administering the important affairs of his office not upon the basis of facts or any finding with respect thereto but upon the basis of a pure guess."

Having guessed what the farm price would be during the next year, the secretary would expend the taxpayers' money in buying up and storing farm products. Or, as provided by the bill as it was passed by the house, he could dump surplus cotton and wheat abroad through the aid of government subsidies. He could pay bounties on that portion of basic commodities required for domestic consumption, in addition to rental and benefit payments for crop reduction.

It would not be necessary to reduce processing taxes after the attainment of parity prices. For political or other reasons the secretary could maintain the tax at the maximum merely on the basis of an alleged expectation that the price would decline during the next year.

Retain Spying Provision.

The bill retains the provisions authorizing the secretary to examine the books of processors and food handlers for the purpose of dictating business

HARRY GETS YOU OUT—BUT HE CAN GET YOU IN AGAIN

Harry Volin, head of a bail bond business with headquarters close to the police building at 11th and State streets, is like the Northwest mounted police. He gets his man—if his man forfeits his bonds—even though he must carry his own handcuffs and pay plane fares.

On May 28 Theodore Clements, 38 years old, then of 6109 Winthrop avenue, was arrested on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a young girl. Volin, as a matter of business, supplied his $2,000 bond. The next day the case was called in court and Theodore Clements was gone. On the face of things, Harry Volin was out $2,000.

But Volin was wise in the ways of bond jumpers. He had a watch set on a young woman friend of Clements. On Thursday, learning she was going to New York by plane, he bought passage on the same ship and went along. He traced the girl to a hotel and then called detectives, who waited until Clements arrived. The "cuffs" were put on. He was returned by plane.

"It wasn't much of a charge against me," Clements said, "and Volin's not such a hero. I paid my own way back."

Quiet Affair with Maid No Divorce Plea

White Plains, N. Y., July 5.—[Special.]—A discreet husband who conducts his extra-marital affairs with his wife's French maid in a quiet way and does not flaunt his philandering in the face of his wife may not be divorced on grounds of adultery, Supreme Court Justice Raymond E. Aldrich ruled in effect today.

He made the finding in granting separation on grounds of desertion to Mrs. Etta S. Miller from Robert McWilliam Miller, Manhattan attorney. He awarded Mrs. Miller $50 a week alimony, although she had asked for $1,000 a month.

Interested in Countess.

The court took judicial notice of Attorney Miller's intimate interest in both his wife's pretty French maid in Countess Emilie Birit, former hotel operator at Lumberville, Pa.

Mrs. Miller had alleged that her husband had completely forgotten his marriage vows in paying undue attention to her maid, Mlle. Marguerite Jeanneret.

Even the maid admitted that her association with Mr. Miller was not confined strictly to that usually expected between an employé and her boss. The blushing French girl confessed on the witness stand, in testifying in Mrs. Miller's behalf, that she had been guilty of misconduct with Miller over a period of six months.

Affair Quite Private.

"I believe, from observing her on the stand and the surrounding circumstances, that her statement of her relations with the defendant is true," Justice Aldrich commented.

"But these relations were of a clandestine nature, quite concealed from the plaintiff and unknown to the public. In my opinion such evidence does not measure up to the test of adultery as ground for separation under decisions of the Court of Appeals."

Turning to Miller's affair with Countess Birit, the justice held that this case was hardly one to be commended but neither did it provide grounds for Mrs. Miller to obtain a legal separation on the charge she pressed.

Change of Interest.

"The real truth of the matter is," remarked Justice Aldrich, "that the defendant became more interested in the witness, Birit, than in his wife and children.

"Things finally reached the point where he was perfectly willing to abandon his wife and children for the opportunity of unlimited association with this other woman.

"While not above reproach, these relations do not appear to be of such a public nature or so flaunted in the face of the plaintiff and her friends and associates that the court would be justified in granting a separation on this ground."

VATICAN BARS LATEST BOOK OF POET D'ANNUNZIO

VATICAN CITY, July 5.—(AP)—"A Hundred and a Hundred and a Hundred and a Hundred Pages from the Secret Book of Gabriel D'Annunzio, Attempter of Death," today was placed on the index of prohibited books of the Roman Catholic church. The holy office banned the book, the latest work of the famous Italian poet, saying: "its immorality competes with its affirmations of errors, often pagan and blasphemous."

The banned D'Annunzio volume is made up chiefly of souvenirs, personal experiences, spiritual adventures, meditations, observations, episodes of all kinds, aphorisms and obiter dicta. It is full, of course, of fine images, poetical beauties, exquisite expressions; of bizarre thoughts, luminous fantasies, and of that superb egotism, that sensual paganism and frantic passion for action and glory that are typically D'Annunzian.

PERSIA JUNKS OLD HEADGEAR; HUNTS 7 MILLION HATS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 5.—Persian commercial agents scurried about London and Luton, center of the British hat making industry, today on a quest for 7,000,000 hats to be delivered at once.

It seems that the shah has issued a proclamation ordering all Persians to wear western headgear instead of the "Pahlevi hats," named after the shah himself. The Pahlevi coverings resemble the old French military kepi. They are now considered absurd, as Persian diplomats traveling in foreign countries are frequently mistaken for railroad porters.

Britain is taking an intense interest in this development because before the war Austrian and British manufacturers supplied the whole near east with tens of millions of fezzes of one kind or another.

UNWANTED BEES GROW GULLIBLE; FALL INTO TRAPS

A. W. Jacobs and Leroy Schmidt, bee experts of Elmwood Park, yesterday reported progress in their efforts to get rid of a swarm of bees that settled inside the walls of the home of Alfred Mees, 722 Williams street, River Forest. Hundreds of the bees, it was said, have been caught in traps set by the experts and they were confident that by tomorrow all would be out.

16 ARE RESCUED IN LAKE STORM; BOATS CAPSIZE

Rain Squalls Sweep Chicago Area.

Chicago and several of its suburbs were swept early yesterday afternoon by heavy rain and winds of gale force. Power lines and trees in some sections were blown down and eight small boats, in distress on Lake Michigan, with a total of 16 persons aboard, were rescued by coast guard crews and city beach life guards.

The storm cleared the air of excessive humidity and caused the temperature, which reached 90 degrees, a record so far for 1935, at 12:30 p. m., to drop sharply to 69 degrees at 2:55 p. m. However, the mercury quickly rebounded and reached an evening high of 82 at 7 p. m. At midnight it was 79. Forecaster C. A. Donnel predicted fair and warm weather today, but added it would be cooler tonight and Sunday.

Waterspout Seen on Lake.

One of the unusual features of the storm was a waterspout that was sighted on the lake, apparently east of Evanston or Wilmette. Witnesses said that it appeared as a leaning, funnel-like affair that reached from the lake surface to a low hanging black cloud. It was in sight for about five minutes and was moving rapidly in a southeasterly direction.

George W. Schmidt, Fred Luers, and Harold Minx, employés of the Ben Day department of THE TRIBUNE, saw the phenomenon from the fifth floor of the plant.

Forecaster Donnel said that while spouts are rare on the lakes, they are not unprecedented. Conditions yesterday, he added, were ideal for their formation.

"Tornadoes on land can become waterspouts when they twist over open water," he explained. "Cool air from above twists down through warmer strata to the water and the whirling cloud forms the spout."

Maywood Streets Flooded.

Yesterday's winds, which swept down from a point near La Crosse, Wis., after a long calm, did much damage in the vicinity of Niles Center, Des Plaines and Morton Grove. Three trees were uprooted in Berwyn and three in River Forest. In Maywood a heavy downpour of rain flooded streets under viaducts and backed up in many basements.

At 1001 North Oak Park avenue and at 1234 Forest avenue, Oak Park, lightning struck and shattered chimneys. The Oak Park fire department was called to both places to remove the debris of the chimneys. In Chicago a tree was blown over at State street and Garfield boulevard.

Instruments at the University of Chicago recorded gusts as high as 51 miles an hour. Rain of .51 of an inch fell in a short time.

Two Cling to Capsized Snipe.

Among the disabled boats assisted on the lake were the 15 foot snipe Gladiator and the 30 foot sloop Blow Me Down. The snipe capsized off Rogers Park beach. Ewing Johanson and Sym Jester of Wilmette, who were thrown into the water, clung to the craft until Samuel Leone, in charge of the guards at the beach, and his men went out to their rescue.

The same crew saved Scott Dillon, owner of the sloop. It had capsized and Dillon was clinging to the mast when help arrived. Proceeding south, Leone and his men picked up two canoes and a rowboat, with a total of five passengers whose names were not learned, off Waveland beach.

Off Wilmette coast guards assisted a sloop, with Alfred Peterson and George Anderson, both of Waukegan, aboard. The boat was disabled two miles out. Another sloop, owned by Chester Chamberling of Wilmette, with three persons aboard, was also assisted into Wilmette harbor.

Couple Swim to Safety.

Capt. John Anderson of the river station of the coast guards towed in a 30 foot sloop whose sails were ripped away as it was a mile off Belmont harbor. Three persons were aboard.

Miss Genevieve Duden, 18 years old, 7777 Luella avenue, and David Malkemus, 21 years old, 3010 Jackson boulevard, were off Waveland avenue in a sailboat when the squall struck and hurled them into the water. They were able to swim in to a point where Peter Jannes, Lincoln park groundkeeper, and Lincoln Park Policeman Roy Dunkleberger could toss them a line. Their boat was recovered.

The storm warning had been sent out before the wind struck and guards at the city and park beaches warned bathers to come out of the lake.

Million Dollar Liquor Stamp Ring Smashed

Five men were in custody of federal agents last night as leaders of a gang alleged to have taken more than a million dollars in profits by flooding the country with fraudulent liquor revenue stamps since the repeal of prohibition. Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan, agent in charge of the secret service in Chicago, revealed that the men were seized Wednesday night in raids at 218 South Wabash avenue and at the rear of 3166 Broadway.

Chief among those held are Maxie Eisen, once business manager of a north side bootlegging syndicate in the pre-gang war days of 1924, and P. David Pinkussohn, known during prohibition as the "millionaire airplane bootlegger." Eisen is not the west side Maxie Eisen, alleged racketeer in the fish peddling trade.

Seize Engravers and Printer.

Also under arrest are Louis R. Troeger and his brother, William, said to be engravers, and Roy Illian, owner of a printing plant at 218 South Wabash avenue, where he and Pinkussohn were seized.

The other three were arrested in the place at the rear of the Broadway address. There agents found 475 forged $1,000 gold notes of the American Telephone and Telegraph company and the plates for manufacturing them.

Capt. Callaghan said this evidence would be turned over to the state's attorney.

The five prisoners were arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker late yesterday and the hearing continued until July 11. Eisen and Louie Troeger were held in bonds of $5,000 each, and bonds of $10,000 each were set for the other three. All five were charged with the manufacture of plates and dies for the manufacture of fraudulent revenue stamps and with making the stamps.

Seize Stamps and Plates.

In the South Wabash avenue printing plant agents found 750 fraudulent revenue stamps to be placed on containers holding a fifth of a gallon of liquor. The plates for manufacturing these stamps also were confiscated.

"The operations of this ring were nation-wide in scope," Capt. Callaghan said. "Our investigation, started on secret information, convinced us that a million dollars would be a conservative estimate to place on their profits."

It was believed that information which led to the arrests came from the numerous raids made during the last month in which truckloads of fraudulent stamps were seized.

Eisen Surprises Police.

The reappearance of Eisen came as something of a surprise to police. Once recognized as a moving figure in illicit booze trafic, Eisen had been living in France until a year ago. At that time he returned quietly to Chicago and insisted to a few close friends that "he was going legitimate."

Eisen was said to have made a fortune as a partner of the late Dion O'Bannion in the Cragin Products company, a concern which dealt in denatured alcohol in 1924 and 1925.

When the gang wars started and O'Bannion was slain Eisen saw the inevitable result of the fight among liquor mobs. It was said, and urged peace on the rising factions. His plea was rejected and he is said to have incurred the wrath of George [Bugs] Moran, then coming into power.

Eisen fled Chicago and, as gangland said at the time, went "up the gangplank of a boat for Europe just one jump ahead of a .45."

Spends Fortune; Comes Back.

He spent the next seven years in Paris and spent part of his booze fortune in educating his son at the best schools.

Eisen denied reports that he operated a large café in Paris and said that he "hung around the place because there were Americans to talk to." Loneliness and a fortune which had dwindled to a few hundred dollars drove him back to his old haunts, it was said.

Pinkussohn became notorious during prohibition as the first hoodlum to utilize the airplane in running booze into Chicago.

HAILE SELASSIE APPEAL DODGED IN CURT REPLY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—The United States tonight sidestepped Ethiopia's Fourth of July appeal to this country to find some way to make Mussolini observe his nation's obligations under the Kellogg-Briand pact, outlawing war and to avert the threatened conflict between Abyssinia and Italy.

In a curt reply to Emperor Haile Selassie's prayer, this government, after a cabinet conference, pointed out that the arbitration being conducted by the league of nations may arrive at a satisfactory decision. Further, the emperor was told by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, under instructions from the President, that as Ethiopia and Italy are signers of the Kellogg pact, the United States is "loath to believe" the two countries will actually engage in war.

Sent to U. S. Diplomat.

The reply was sent to William Perry George, American charge d'affaires at Addis Ababa, for transmission to Emperor Selassie after Secretary Hull had carried the Ethiopian appeal to President Roosevelt during the weekly cabinet meeting.

Following the cabinet meeting Secretary Hull drafted a cable to George instructing him to tell the emperor:

"My government, interested as it is in the maintenance of peace in all parts of the world, is gratified that the league of nations, with a view to a peaceful settlement, has given its attention to the controversy which has unhappily arisen between your government and the Italian government and that the controversy is now in process of arbitration.

Hopes for Arbitration.

"My government hopes that whatever the facts or merits of the controversy may be the arbitral agency dealing with this controversy may be able to arrive at a decision satisfactory to both of the governments immediately concerned.

"Furthermore, and of great importance, in view of the provisions of the pact of Paris, to which both Italy and Abyssinia are parties, in common with 61 other countries, my government would be loath to believe that either of them would resort to other than pacific means as a method of dealing with this controversy or would permit any situation to arise which would be inconsistent with the commitments of the pact."

Fourth of July Appeal.

Selassie made his appeal through George on Independence day. The emperor delivered a note and an oral statement asking that the United States find means to make Italy observe her renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy in the Kellogg pact.

The note and a memorandum of the oral appeal were forwarded to the state department this afternoon, as reports were current that the state department had already made up its mind to keep out of African affairs. These reports were denied by Secretary Hull before the cabinet meeting, but the President decided at the cabinet meeting that there was nothing to be gained by delaying the reply.

Recalls Stimson's Failure.

The only American attempt to invoke the Kellogg pact in an international crisis proved fruitless. Its principles were cited to Japan, one of the signatories, by former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson at the time Japan was invading Manchukuo.

A series of notes were exchanged between the United States and Japan which failed to benefit China. Secretary Stimson tried without result to bring other signatories into line with the American position. The net result of the pact citation was to intensify Japan's bitterness toward this country.

No Discussions Held.

With strong emphasis Secretary Hull said the state department had not discussed the Ethiopian situation with representatives of other governments and had no plans to do so. In this he spiked reports that the United States together with other nations would raise economic barriers against the impending combatants.

The secretary revealed that he is making a study of the question of arms shipments to Italy and Ethiopia. Four European nations have to date refused to permit shipments of munitions to Ethiopia. They are Belgium, France, Denmark, and Czechoslovakia.

The policy of the state department of long standing is against shipments of arms to countries at war, Secretary Hull said. He pointed out that as there has been no declaration of war between Italy and Abyssinia, the American position is rather complicated.

His survey will gather all precedents with relation to arms shipments toward a sharp definition of policy. It was indicated legislation may be necessary to put teeth into a drafted policy.

The secretary reported that the state department had not heard of any order for arms being placed in this country by either Italy or Ethiopia. He said he had heard that Italy had placed large orders for horses and mules in the south.

RIDICULE BRITISH STAND

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

ROME, July 5.—Italian circles today noted with great satisfaction that the British government is showing a tendency to abandon the energetic attitude towards the Italo-Ethiopian controversy.

This, as assumed from information in the British press, is that Great Britain proposes to do her duty as a member of the league of nations provided other powers also do their part. The interpretation given to that thesis here is that nothing further will be heard of an economic blockade of Italy or other similar steps because it is believed highly improbable France will side with Britain against Italy in the present contingency.

France Sides with Italy.

France has shown interest in the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel only because she fears the Anglo-Italian antagonism that it has brought about may destroy what little remains of Anglo-Franco-Italian coöperation. On the whole, however, the French government has shown itself sympathetic to Italy.

The French ambassador at Rome has taken a hand in the efforts being made to avoid war between Italy and Ethiopia and submitted some proposals to Premier Mussolini. But even if they are rejected, as they almost certainly will, it is confidently believed France will continue to support Italy. So long as she does it is felt here Italy can safely laugh at anything Britain may attempt to do through the league.

Italy Sees Way Clear.

From the Italian viewpoint, therefore, the situation appears much more reassuring. It is believed the British cabinet will continue to sound out the principal European governments as to the possibility of an economic blockade of Italy. It is believed, however, that this will be principally an electoral move to convince the British public that everything has been done to avoid war and that the government will abandon its efforts as soon as it is convinced of their futility.

HUNTS PEACE FORMULA

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 5.—Great Britain today continued her laborious task of trying to fit together the jigsaw puzzle of European peace. Ethiopia, while the worst spot, is by no means the only piece to be fitted into the picture. While it is attracting the most attention, there are all sorts of other complications interrelated with one another which must be dealt with simultaneously.

For instance, France feels she must be polite to Premier Mussolini even to the extent of supporting or at least winking at his predatory policy in Ethiopia because she wants Italy's help against Germany. This desire has become particularly acute since Britain concluded a naval pact with Germany which France considers perfidious treachery on the part of her old ally.

Germany is desirous of obtaining British support and is willing to make peace with France but fears Russia. Therefore Adolf Hitler is unwilling to do anything which might make France more hostile. In these circumstances a series of bilateral diplomatic conversations are going on in all European capitals in an effort to find some formula which will satisfy every one, prevent war and enable sane powers to take collective action to restrain Mussolini in Africa should this become necessary and desirable.

British Soothe Germans.

Today's move to calm a jittery Europe was a reply by the British to an inquiry by the Germans as to whether the Franco-Russian military pact does not infringe on the Locarno agreement. The British replied it did not, in their view, relieve any one of any Locarno obligations. They promised to consult the French, Italians, and Belgians on their view, which the British believe is the same as theirs. This is the first step in a plan to obtain accomplishment of the German offer of a series of bilateral pacts for security in eastern Europe which would couple up with Locarno and secure the multilateral agreement for which all are working. If this could be accomplished, then Mussolini probably could be induced to realize that his African adventure might prove a nonpaying proposition.

CALLS ON POLICE TO WAKE HIM UP FOR HIS WEDDING

Not that he has so far, because today is the first wedding day he has had. But Clement brooded last night in his room at 5728 Blackstone avenue about the possibility that he might oversleep.

The way Clement looked at it, it would spoil the wedding.

So Clement called the Hyde Park police station and spoke to Sergt. Fred Tapscott as follows:

"Send over a squad of police——"

"Yes, yes," said the sergeant. "What is it—a shooting?"

"No; a wedding."

"You won't need police until after the wedding," argued Sergt. Tapscott, who is sagacious, though a bachelor.

"It isn't for the wedding," explained Clement carefully. "That isn't until tomorrow. I am going to meet my fiancée, Miss Albertina Schultz, a very pretty girl from Granite City, Ill., down in Gary, and we'll get married. But I'm afraid I'll oversleep. So if you'll just send a squad to wake me up at 4 a. m.——"

ENGLAND WARNS ITALY TO KEEP HANDS OFF EGYPT

Threat to Blow Up Malta Angers British.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 5.—Lord Strickland, former prime minister of Malta, arrived in London today to report to the British government on repercussions in Malta to the anti-British campaign in Italy over the Ethiopian dispute.

According to well informed circles, Britain has extracted an apology from Premier Mussolini as head of the Italian government for the statement published in the Italian paper Ottobre that if Egypt, under British pressure, closed the Suez canal, then Italy would blow Malta to bits from the air.

The British, it is said, insisted that as neither Cairo nor Whitehall had made any official move, the newspaper's statement was highly provocative and might cause repercussions in Malta and among the large Italian population of Cairo.

Italians Fill Palace.

At the same time Il Duce was politely and firmly told to keep his hands off the palace at Cairo. King Fuad shared his father's exile to Italy at the end of the last century, was formerly a captain in the Italian artillery, and speaks Italian fluently. The palace is filled with Italians occupying lucrative posts.

Owing to the present tension, King Fuad and the British residency have delayed their departure from Cairo to summer quarters at Alexandria, which next week will be the scene of a "friendly visit" by British warships.

British police, military and naval officials in Egypt and the Sudan have had their summer leave canceled. The situation is further complicated by the fact that there is a political crisis in the Nile valley. Certain turbulent elements are said to be ready to make a religious or color war of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute and throw Egypt back into another wave of fanaticism similar to the one which engulfed Gen. Charles G. "Chinese" Gordon. [Gordon was killed Jan. 26, 1885 while defending Khartum].

Army Supports Nationalists.

The Egyptian army with the exception of the royal guard is notoriously sympathetic to the Nationalist party, which makes the situation all the more difficult for Britain.

One of the first tasks following his return, Lord Strickland declared, will be to ask the government to establish a departmental committee to consider plans and estimates for setting up a new flying boat base at Malta.

"It is essential to imperial trade and its defense that Malta be made the most important air base in Europe," he said.

An air base at Malta, Lord Strickland contended, will be a paramount utility in time of peace as in war. The estimated cost of such a base is only $12,500,000. The project will add two square miles to the anchorages at Malta.

"The grand harbor is so congested with naval shipping in times of peace that it will be quite inadequate in times of war, unless it is extended," Lord Strickland added. "The extension would provide the necessary link to make the Singapore base useful in practice. These works must be provided in times of peace by a government with foresight."

BANDITS RIDDLE POLICE CAR WITH BULLETS IN CHASE

After being chased for some five miles through Melrose Park by a police squad last night four men riding in a dark colored sedan suddenly halted, riddled the police machine with eighteen bullets, and made their escape.

The chase stared near 24th avenue and Haddon street in Melrose Park when Policemen William May and Daniel Boni sighted the machine, of which they were suspicious. They trailed it, the lights on the squad car darkened. When the police suddenly switched on the lights the suspected car roared away with the police in pursuit.

After driving around block after block the fleeing machine halted on 23d avenue near Division street. Four men leaped out and opened fire on the officers, shattered the windshield of their car. The police leaped to the side of the road, prepared to do battle.

Before they could fire, however, the car with the four gunmen sped away.

G. O. P. Leaders Won't Speak at Conference in Cleveland

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—A number of prominent Republicans, invited to be the "speaker" at the Republican regional conference which will open Monday in Cleveland, have declined the honor, George Bender of Cleveland, leading sponsor of the conference, announced tonight.

Bender hastened to explain that the men invited were not boycotting the conference, but furnished various excuses. In several instances, those invited expressed a belief that they should stay away from such meetings because they had been mentioned as candidates for the Republican nomination.

Bender, a former state senator and unsuccessful candidate for representative in congress, was grieved at the nickname of "Upstart Convention," given the Cleveland conference, because it apparently is jumping the gun on another conference planned for the same area.

Confident He Could Fix It.

He was not abashed when admitting that he had invited a round dozen of leading Republicans to be "speaker," believing that he could straighten matters out successfully if more than one accepted.

Senator Lester J. Dickinson of Iowa declined the invitation in the following words: "I regret, in view of all the circumstances, that it does not seem advisable for me to appear on your program. I am convinced that such an appearance would indicate that candidates were involved."

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan responded as follows:

"In the first place, I am considerably embarrassed by the conversational discussion which has attached to my name in connection with the 1936 nomination and I am very sure that none of these regional conferences should put any one forward as a speaker who is thus identified in the public eye."

Pledged to Speak in Chicago.

Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war in the Hoover cabinet, replied cordially, Bender said, but pleaded that he had a conflicting speaking engagement in Chicago. He expressed his regrets that he had not received the invitation earlier.

Another declination from Ogden L. Mills, former secretary of the treasury, contained the excuse that business engagements made it difficult for him to attend the Cleveland conference.

Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, replied with a very long letter, Bender said. In part, he said: "I think it of very dubious wisdom for me to accept. Through no action on my part, there has been, as you know, a good deal of discussion of my availability as a possible Republican candidate in 1936. I refrained from attending the Springfield conference because I was afraid that my presence there would be misinterpreted and I feel the same line of reasoning applies equally to the Cleveland meeting."

Presence Might Do Harm.

Knox suggested also, Bender said, that any Republican who had been mentioned for the nomination for President, should be excluded from the conference, lest his presence should harm Republican attempts to stimulate the party without regard to candidates.

"Solely because I think my coming there might do more harm than good, I am refusing to attend," Knox wrote.

Bender said that Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, and keynoter for the Springfield "Grass Roots" convention, had not declined because he had not been invited. Neither was Senator William E. Borah, former President Hoover and others who had been mentioned as declining to attend, he asserted.

He declared the Cleveland conference would not join former Vice President Charles Curtis in his demand for Henry P. Fletcher's resignation as national chairman. Curtis was not invited to the conference.

Friendly to Chairman Fletcher.

"We have the friendliest feeling for Mr. Fletcher and want him to stay on the job," he remarked.

In any event, Bender said, the conference would go forward as planned and would show an attendance of from 7,000 to 8,000 persons, including the full apportionment of 554 delegates from Ohio, 403 from Michigan, and 218 each from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

"Just as the "Grass Roots" convention rallied to the shrine of Lincoln for inspiration and the Republican organization conference for the central and border states originally proposed to repair to the shrine of McKinley at Canton, O., so the Cleveland conference, Bender said, would go to the shrine of Garfield for its inspiration.

Leaders Sidestep Conference.

He did not deny that many Republican organizations in the states mentioned were sidestepping his conference in preference to the later regular Republican organization conference for the same region. But he maintained that the Republican national committeeman from Kentucky and the Republican state chairmen of Pennsylvania and West Virginia had promised to attend at Cleveland.

Bender said he was aware that certain Republican leaders were out to scuttle the Cleveland conference, but he said he had been assured that the Republican national headquarters was encouraging all similar meetings.

Chairman Fletcher was quoted here today as saying: "I hope the Cleveland conference will be successful. Any gathering of Republicans should be valuable in stirring up enthusiasm for the party."

Mussolini's Aviator Sons Train for Duty in Africa

ROME, July 5.—(AP)—Benito Mussolini's aviator sons, Vittorio, 19, and Bruno, 17, may be grooming for military service in East Africa—but the government professes to know nothing about it. A spokesman said reports that "the two young eaglets" had signed up could not be definitly denied. Bruno took his flying papers recently, becoming the youngest licensed pilot in Italy and perhaps in Europe.

RADICALS MEET TO PLAN NUCLEUS FOR THIRD PARTY

250 Answer Call for 2 Day Preliminary Conference

Creation of a leadership for a national "third party," if one should develop for the 1936 campaign, was the goal of about 250 persons who yesterday held the first session of a two day conference at the Morrison hotel.

Representatives of radical organizations, exclusive of communists, from twenty-seven states presented their credentials at the meeting. They had responded to a call from five members of congress, acting with the Farmer-Labor Political federation, the League of Independent Political Action, and the People's Political alliance of Chicago.

Two Signers in Attendance.

Signers of the call were Congressmen Thomas R. Amlie and George Schneider, Wisconsin Progressives; Vito Marcantonio, New York Republican; Ernest Lundeen, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite, and Byron Scott, California Democrat. Two of the congressmen, Amlie and Marcantonio, were present yesterday.

"We are organizing," said Congressman Amlie, "so that if a third party is inevitable in 1936 we will have the leadership ready. Our aim is to unite all the groups who want change to come through the ballot box, which excludes communists."

"We are opposed to a third party at this time," said Congressman Marcantonio, "but we favor the organization of a political federation to be held ready for action in 1936 if necessary."

U. of C. Professor Is Chairman.

Paul H. Douglas, professor of political economy at the University of Chicago, was elected permanent chairman of the conference at its first business session. Alfred Bingham of New York, a son of former United States Senator Hiram Bingham, Connecticut Republican, was named secretary.

Speaking at a dinner session of the group, Congressman Marcantonio told the delegates that within the next three years the United States would face a dictatorship of reactionaries or, as an alternative, the adoption of a new economic order. He said that Fascism is imminent in this country, that the reactionaries are uniting, and that all other groups must go to the "left."

Favor "Soak Rich" Program.

Marcantonio also urged a "soak the rich" program, which he called "a real tax program that would place the burden of unemployment and the distribution of living wages on the country's wealth.

"There," he said, "is where the real fight will be made."

Production for use is to be one of the major planks in a platform to be adopted today. Other actions today may include the issuance of a call for a national conference in the fall and the selection of a name for a third party.

TRAIN TO WEST OFFERS FOOD AT 90 CENTS A DAY

Beginning today the Chicago and North Western railway and the Union Pacific system will introduce, on their Los Angeles limited train, a food service that will enable travelers to eat for as little as 90 cents a day while en route to the coast.

The low price meals will be served from trays in the tourist sleepers and coaches, with dining car stewards and waiters in attendance. The food will be kept warm on steam tables. A satisfactory breakfast will be served at 25 cents, luncheon at 30 cents and dinner at 35 cents, the railroads say.

R. Thomson, passenger trafic manager for the North Western, said that a typical breakfast at a quarter would include scrambled eggs and two slices of bacon, rolls or bread, and coffee or milk. He described the new system as another blow at the idea that eating on trains is expensive.

Wagner Labor Bill Signed Despite Doubt of Legality

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—Risking another rebuff at the hands of the Supreme court, President Roosevelt today signed into law the Wagner labor disputes bill which virtually compels the unionization of industrial workers.

Mr. Roosevelt, after explaining that the new law legalizes "the right of self-organization of employés in industry for the purpose of collective bargaining," asserted that "it should serve as an important step toward the achievement of just and peaceful labor relations."

Industrial leaders, however, believe the law is unconstitutional and are expected to block its operations by injunctions, thus precipitating an early Supreme court test. What industrialists fear, however, is that the New Deal will dodge a Supreme court ruling until the American Federation of Labor has used the bill to unionize industry.

Willing to Risk Ruling.

Mr. Roosevelt is willing to risk having the law declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court because such a ruling might help him in a 1936 campaign on revision of the constitution. Labor unions, which have fought for the law, might back him in demanding that the constitution be "liberalized" to provide federal control of the nation's social and economic life.

Immediate fate of the new law depends on how vigorously it is pushed by the board which President Roosevelt must appoint to administer it. Although he continued the organization of the old labor board, invalidated with the NRA, Mr. Roosevelt must select two new members for this board of three in order that it may become the "national labor relations board" created by the Wagner act.

Chairman Francis Biddle of the old labor board announced after a White House call this morning that he would not serve on any new board; he has incurred the enmity of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. Dr. Harry A. Millis of the University of Chicago already has resigned from the old board, leaving Edwin S. Smith the only active member.

Roosevelt Hails Program.

"A better relationship between labor and management is the high purpose of this act," the President said today. "By assuring the employés the right of collective bargaining it fosters the development of the employment contract on a sound and equitable basis. By providing an orderly procedure for determining who is entitled to represent the employés it aims to remove one of the chief causes of wasteful economic strife. By preventing practices which tend to destroy the independence of labor it seeks, for every worker within its scope, that freedom of choice and action which is justly his.

"This act, defining rights, the enforcement of which is recognized by the congress to be necessary as both an act of common justice and economic advance, must not be misinterpreted. It may eventually eliminate one major cause of labor disputes, but it will not stop all labor disputes. It does not cover all industry and labor, but is applicable only when violation of the legal right of independent self-organization would burden or obstruct interstate commerce. Accepted by management, labor, and the public with a sense of sober responsibility and of willing coöperation, however, it should serve as an important step toward the achievement of just and peaceful labor relations in industry."

Provisions of Law.

The law as signed by the President does the following things:

1. Creates a national labor relations board of three members appointed by the President and having power to issue cease and desist orders against "unfair labor practices," subpena or fine witnesses, hold hearings, order elections among employés, and otherwise carry out the act.

2. Forbids domination, interference with, or financing of a labor organization by an employer, thereby supposedly outlawing company unions.

3. Prohibits "discrimination" by employers against employés for union connection or activities, but permits a closed shop once the employés have chosen who shall represent them.

4. Stipulates that the persons or organization chosen by a majority of employés in any industrial unit [the unit to be determined by the board] shall be the sole representatives of the employés for collective bargaining; the so-called theory of "majority rule."

5. Provides that an employer must meet with the majority representatives for collective bargaining.

Employers have criticized the bill as one sided, safeguarding the rights of labor but not the rights of employers to enforce contracts which labor has made.

ROOSEVELT PROGRAM REALIZES SOCIALISTS' DREAMS, SAYS EDITOR

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—Time was, not so long ago, when the language of socialism was spoken by Socialists only, but today it is the language of the President and of congress, Abraham Cahan, Socialist leader, novelist, and editor of the Jewish Daily Forward, said today.

"We were branded as dreamers," he declared, "but now our dreams are being realized."

Mr. Cahan, whose 75th birthday will be Sunday, was at work today on an article depicting a typical American character, the Jewish boy who, thoroughly American, has a deep interest in Jewish history and literature.

He paused in his task of the moment for a brief look ahead and avowed that, since he is only 75, he had no thought of retirement. "I will keep on working so long as I can," he said.

methods favorable to the payment of higher prices to farmers.

The question of the constitutionality of the AAA is scheduled to come before the Supreme court in October, although passage of the pending amendments would delay a test of validity of the act in the revised form. That the President's doubts of the constitutionality of the act in the light of the NRA decision are shared widely is evidenced by the deluge of suits to enjoin collection of the processing tax. The tally of suits filed a few days ago was 88 and more are in the offing.

One of the AAA amendments provides that the processing taxes shall not be refunded in the event the act is found invalid. Under this provision a processor could not recover his payments. If, however, he gets an injunction and the act is invalidated he will not be compelled to pay the tax.

Cites Perfect Example.

The fizzle of the President's effort to give the deflated NRA a plausible excuse for continued existence is being cited as a perfect example of planless planning. With a flourish of publicity the President announced that one of the functions of the NRA would be to render service to industries desiring to enter into voluntary codes of fair competition.

To that end he created a division of business coöperation to supervise voluntary agreements meeting the requirements of the modified recovery act. A number of industries immediately applied to the NRA for such assistance.

After this instrumentality had been created and staffed Attorney General Cummings advised the President that this undertaking could not constitutionally be committed to the NRA under the Supreme court decision. In particular he pointed out that it would be illegal to include agreements on minimum wages and maximum hours of labor in the voluntary codes.

Job for Trade Commission.

The attorney general held that the only safely legal procedure would be to commit supervision of voluntary codes to the federal trade commission, which functions under the act that has been held constitutional, and to leave labor provisions entirely out of the picture.

In the case of the bill to strengthen the Tennessee valley authority the trouble encountered by the administration is reacting in the house against the socialistic aspects and high handed methods of the New Deal.

SEIZE FUGITIVE WHO FLED COURT AS BULLETS FLEW

Clarence Bowman, 35 years old, who escaped in a hail of bullets yesterday from a court where he had been fined for beating his 73 year old mother, was captured some ten hours later in the home of Mrs. Emily Carlisle, Commodore road, just outside of Downers Grove.

Bowman, who lives at 4122 Carroll avenue, was brought before Judge J. William Brooks in the Fillmore street court for striking his mother, Margaret, and was fined $300. As a policeman was leading him away, Bowman suddenly broke loose and fled.

Eight police pursued, firing shots, one of which wounded Andrew Sacarri, 28 years old, 110 South Keeler avenue, who was passing outside the station. He was not seriously hurt. After Bowman escaped, policemen kept a watch on his wife, Mary, and through a phone call to her traced Bowman to Downers Grove.

Sergt. Arthur March, with Fred Murphy and John Burns, were sent to the suburb, where they were aided by local police in making the capture.

Denies Admitting Shortage; Lawyers Clash.

It was a day of contrasting descriptions yesterday before Chief Justice Joseph Burke of the Circuit court, where Robert M. Sweitzer, ousted county treasurer, is waging a battle to regain his office by a quo waranto proceeding against his successor, Joseph L. Gill. Sweitzer heard himself variously referred to as a "public servant who had betrayed his trust" and as an "honest, respected old man, his hair silvering for the grave." Once tears came to his eyes.

In the midst of the maze of legal citations which I. Harvey Levinson, counsel for Sweitzer, and Assistant State's Attorney Hayden N. Bell, representing Gill, read to the court, there were a few exchanges between these opposing lawyers which entertained the spectators who crowded the room. Levinson told Judge Burke he regretted he did not have "the stentorian voice with which Bell bellows."

Retort to Attorney.

To which Bell, a tall, bald, picturesque figure in his shirtsleeves, retorted, "Well, you certainly have a good voice to bark with."

At the close of the session Levinson was still rebutting the state's plea of justification to the quo waranto action. The state contends that the county board was within its rights in removing Sweitzer as treasurer on the findings of an audit that he was $414,129 short in his accounts when he left the office of county clerk last December and his own admission that the shortage was $335,000.

The hearing was adjourned to Monday when Levinson will conclude his argument. Judge Burke has indicated that he will take the case under advisement for several days.

Levinson contended that the county board went beyond its jurisdiction in ousting Sweitzer.

Assails County Board.

"The only issue in this case," he declared, "is whether the board exercised its power with the consent of the governed."

He turned and faced Sweitzer, who was fidgeting in his chair, obviously oppressed by the heat.

"Look at this man," Levinson said. "He is respected and honored. He was twice the choice of his party for mayor. He held the office of county clerk for 24 years [from 1910 to 1934]. His hair is silvering for the grave. Mr. Bell displays ill grace in attacking him. You, judge, and I are young men, but Mr. Sweitzer is already looking toward the River Jordan." At this point Sweitzer was in tears.

"Mr. Sweitzer, as are all of us, is guaranteed certain inalienable rights by the constitution," Levinson continued. "And that constitution further provides that a government derives its just powers from the consent of the governed. Yet the county board, an inferior tribunal, would remove him. The board stepped beyond the bounds of its jurisdiction.

Prosecutors Close Case.

"I think Mr. Bell in his arguments on the plea of justification was actually quoting law on my behalf. I've been accused of hiring him as my associate."

Bell grinned.

Earlier in the day Bell had concluded his argument and had been followed in brief addresses to the court by Assistant State's Attorneys William J. Touhy and Jacob Shamberg.

"The board had the right to oust Sweitzer as treasurer," Bell asserted. "He was guilty of misconduct in even remaining in that office after the facts of the shortage in the clerk's office had been disclosed. By his own admission he converted $200,000 of the county funds in the clerk's office to his own use."

[Sweitzer, in a newspaper story, had told of using $200,000 from the tax redemption fund for a personal investment in a coal brick process.]

Here Sweitzer, who had remained silent through the three days of the hearing, leaned forward quickly.

Denies Admitting Shortage.

"No, no," he declared. "Positively not. I never admitted that."

"No, no," Levinson echoed. "There never have been such admissions by Mr. Sweitzer."

"I know when one fingers a sore spot, you want to holler," Bell resumed. "But I won't keep my finger off those spots. I contend it has been admitted. We understand the grim tragedy that stalks through all this. We understand and feel it.

"But a public office is a public trust and a breach of that trust threatens the very existence of government. Here, a public servant betrayed a trust. When any one, be he high or low, puts himself in a position where he or an institution of government must give way, then the institution must go on and the man give way. That is for the benefit of future generations."

He concluded with a plea to the court that the action of the county board ousting Sweitzer be allowed to stand.

ASK CITY TO BUY ARTIFICIAL LEGS FOR POLICEMAN

Police Commissioner Allman yesterday sent a recommendation to the city council finance committee for an appropriation of $450 to purchase a set of artificial legs for Policeman Herbert Eckel. Both of Eckel's legs were amputated following an automobile accident last December.

Eckel left the Woodlawn hospital on Thursday, and at that time it was stated that he would have to pay the hospital bill. City officials yesterday said that the city already has paid out over $1,000 for nursing services in the Eckel case and that the hospital and physician bills likely also would be paid by the city.

COUGHLIN GIVEN RIGHT TO AMEND PARK SUIT PLEA

Court Orders Action in Name of Group.

Judge James J. Kelly of the Superior court yesterday upheld a demurrer, filed on behalf of the Chicago park district, to an amended petition of Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, who is seeking a writ of mandamus to compel the park commissioners to allow him the use of Soldiers' field for a massmeeting.

The judge, however, granted Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson, representing the priest, five additional days to file another amended petition, and suggested points that he wished covered in this new filing. Arguments on the reamended petition are to be heard next Friday.

Must Demand Right to Hear.

Specifically Mr. Ettelson was instructed to bring his action in the names of several persons who demand the right to hear Father Coughlin. The attorney also was told to include copies of all ordinances of the park district bearing on the renting of the field, and to show that Father Coughlin had complied with these and still was denied use of the property. Judge Kelly further ordered that George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the parks, be named a defendant.

When Attorney Ettelson argued that Donoghue was only an agent of the board Judge Kelly retorted:

"I am not going to permit an order to be entered unless I can compel performance."

Contends Meeting Not "Public."

On behalf of the board, Attorney Joseph B. Fleming asserted that Father Coughlin had brought the mandamus action as an individual and not on behalf of the public. He added that since admission would be charged if the priest won permission to use the field, his meeting could not be considered public.

Judge Kelly seemed unimpressed when Mr. Fleming declared the park board had unlimited discretion in assigning the use of the stadium.

Judge Scores "Shifting" Policy.

"I want to see a case," the Judge said, "where there is uncontroled discretion. The park commission cannot adopt a policy by shifting its position from time to time."

He spoke ironically of the parks' contention that "controversial matters" should not be discussed in Soldiers' field.

"The biggest controversy that ever came out of that park was the long count," he averred, referring to the outcome of the Tunney-Dempsey prize fight in 1927.

'SQUATTER'S' SUIT FOR N. SIDE AREA GETS A SETBACK

Demurrers of 75 property owners to the "squatter's" suit of Herman Krueding, 76 years old, 1592 Cleveland avenue, former real estate man, in which Krueding seeks to establish title to a section of the near north side, were sustained by Circuit Judge John Prystalski yesterday.

Judge Prystalski held that the complaint, which was filed in 1919, was faulty in that it invoked the "burnt record act," passed to protect property owners whose records were lost in the Chicago fire. The judge ruled that the act does not apply since the area involved was not burned. The court allowed the plaintiff 30 days to file an amended bill, which Attorney Sol Andrews for Krueding said he would do.

The area in question is bounded by the lake on the east, by the river on the south, by St. Clair street on the west, and by Chicago avenue on the north. Krueding claims the property on the basis of its former occupation by Peter T. Johnson, who claimed the land in 1869 on a military bounty land warant and for many years operated a bath house on the property.

Little Change Expected in Realty Assessments

There will be little change in the Cook county real estate assessment for 1934 as compared with that for 1933, Deputy Assessor Edward J. McCabe said yesterday. The real estate assessment of the 30 country towns, which was completed during the day, shows an assessed valuation of $338,005,560, or a reduction of .08 per cent from the 1933 realty assessment of $338,296,949, he said. Both the personal property and realty assessments will be completed by July 25, McCabe declared.

HOLIDAY MAKERS USE LAKE FERRY; SAVE HARD DRIVE

But Few Steamers Can Carry Autos.

BY HAL FOUST.

Fifty-five automobiles, one of them THE TRIBUNE roadster, were driven across a gang plank onto Navy Pier from the lake steamer Missouri yesterday morning. For the most part, the vehicle owners were holiday excursionists returning from Michigan by the comfortable water route.

By contrast, there were thousands of motor cars that came back from a holiday in west Michigan over the highway around the foot of Lake Michigan. THE TRIBUNE roadster covered this route on leaving Chicago late Wednesday afternoon.

Five Hours of Hard Driving.

On the trip to Muskegon, Mich., it was five hours of hard driving, 191 miles, through the heavy traffic of the south side, through the smelly industrial districts of northern Indiana, and including some bumpy and narrow roads north of Benton Harbor.

On the return by boat to Chicago, there was a picturesque sailing from the Muskegon harbor at 10 p. m. and then eight hours of slumber with a water washed breeze blowing in through a stateroom window.

The hard drive around the foot of Lake Michigan is made by the multitude of motorists as an unavoidable hardship that must be endured before enjoying mileage through wooded sand dunes to expansive sand beaches, to fishing streams and small lakes, or to some of the numerous golf courses in the resort peninsula.

Ferry Service is Limited.

The long trip by automobile is not much cheaper than by boat if loss of recreation time is added to the gasoline bill and the wear and tear on the machine. The multitude takes the highway rather than the waterway mainly because Lake Michigan lacks convenient ferry service.

"Some day," said Park Robbins, passenger agent for the steamship Missouri, "some one will open fast and frequent ferry service for trucks as well as for passenger cars. It's an opportunity for some one who has a few millions to invest. A good vessel will cost nearly a million but with the proper hookup with trucking companies it should pay revenue with the present available traffic."

Only Six Ships Can Take Cars.

The old ships in Lake Michigan service do not have decks far enough apart to take trucks in the hold. There are only six ships running out of Chicago that can carry passenger cars, according to THE TRIBUNE travel bureau, and only two of these can be called ferry service across the lake.

The Missouri, with a capacity of 60 automobiles, leaves Chicago every night except Sunday and Monday, arriving in Muskegon the following morning. The S. S. Roosevelt, with a capacity of twelve automobiles, leaves for St. Joseph and Benton Harbor every morning.

Provide Service to Milwaukee.

The City of Grand Rapids, plying between Chicago and Milwaukee, can carry 28 automobiles. The Seeandbee, an excursion steamer to Mackinac Island, Cleveland and Buffalo, sails once a week with a capacity of 30 to 35 motor cars.

The Eastern States and Western States, which run from Chicago to Mackinac, Detroit, Cleveland, and Buffalo, each have room for 70 cars.

POLICE MOVE TO SHUT 2 MASSAGE PARLORS IN LOOP

Woman Owner Files Plea for Court Injunction.

Police Captain George O'Connor of the First district yesterday recommended revocation of the licenses of two massage parlors at 162 North State street. They are the Florence Health studio, in Room 1307, and the Aristo Health studio, in Room 811.

The owner of both places, Florence Mahler, alias Mrs. Helen Morton, was fined $100 and placed on probation for six months on July 1 by Municipal Judge Edgar A. Jonas. The police charged that one of the Mahler woman's operators massaged a man in the nude in violation of a city ordinance.

Asks Court Save "Business."

As Capt. O'Connor was recommending the license revocation in a letter to Police Commissioner Allman, the Mahler woman brought suit in the Superior court for an injunction to restrain the police commissioner and Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, head of the city board of health, from interfering with "her business." The plea for the injunction will be heard by Superior Judge Harry A. Lewis this morning.

The suit, filed by Attorney Ray E. Lane, said that the owner of the massage parlors had managed "by dint of hard labor, honest, skilful, and efficient work, and business ability" to build up a "remunerative business."

The bill declared that the Mahler woman had been in business for 15 years and had "always conducted it in a legal and moral manner." The suit said that police and Dr. Bundesen are proceeding on an "ordinance which is unconstitutional, confiscatory and class legislation."

Policeman Reports Violation.

The information on which the conviction was obtained before Judge Jonas was furnished by one of four policemen assigned to the investigation of massage parlors. The policeman's report showed that he went to Room 1307 at 162 North State street and was told that he would have to go to Room 811 because of a rush of business.

A girl named Ethel Knox, the report said, gave him a bath and a massage. The operator then suggested a "magnetic treatment" and removed the trunks in which the policeman was clothed. The "magnetic treatment," the report said, consisted of sprinkling powder on the policeman by the operator who then ran her fingers lightly over his body.

YALE TEACHER DEFIES ICKES' CRITICISM GAG

Forestry Program Attack Starts Fight.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—The literary battle of wits between Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Prof. H. H. Chapman of Yale, president of the Society of American Foresters, entered the second round today with the polite but firm assertion from the professor that Ickes was a bull-dozing burocrat who might be able to muzzle some persons but not him.

PROF. H. H. CHAPMAN.

The contest started June 27, when Ickes sighted a press release from the Society of Foresters which attacked Ickes' attempt to take over the forestry department from the department of agriculture. Chapman was quoted at length.

Ickes wrote the Yale professor a letter in which he asserted that a ghost writer put the words in Chapman's mouth. The letter was replete with references to "highly offensive, questionable tactics" and included the statement that "some men prefer to fight with stink bombs because they like the smell."

Answers "Courteous" Missive.

Referring with irony to this "courteous" missive, Prof. Chapman answered in a letter made public today as follows:

"The authorship of the article which you question is my own. It was prepared by me personally. I never have in the 30 years of my connection with the faculty at Yale and with forestry found it necessary to employ ghost writers or submit to the dictates of burocratic superiors in the determination of what should be written or said in the public interest.

"The professional societies of America, including forestry, engineering, law, medicine, and others, reserve the right to express opinions on questions affecting public welfare and lying within their field of training.

"They do not intend to be bulldozed, brow-beaten, nor coerced into either silence or acquiescence when measures are proposed that tend to jeopardize the prospects of technical success in the field of their professional training.

Calls Gag Incomplete.

"The ability of heads of federal departments to muzzle public employés even in other departments does not yet extend to professional societies, whose membership, as in forestry, extends to all fields of employment and is not confined to federal pay rolls."

Ickes had charged that "a few members of the forestry service in the department of agriculture were fighting the shift to the department of the interior.

"The opposition to your proposals comes spontaneously from the entire profession of forestry, from all the interests which are represented by agriculture and soil conservation, and from such widely representative popular bodies as the American Forestry association and numerous other organizations" Prof. Chapman wrote.

Cites Federal "Inquisition."

"Are you aware, Mr. Secretary, that in order to supply you with proof of the charge which you have made to me that this opposition was inspired by 'certain interests' which you have stated to be the forest service, the department of the interior has been engaged in sending out inspectors to run down the source of letters of protest against senate bill 2,665, and to try by inquisition to establish the fact that these letters were thus inspired and were not spontaneous?

"Has it come to the point when citizens are subjected to cross examination for expressing an opinion contrary to the objectives to the department of the interior? Was this done with your knowledge or consent?"

Ickes, Prof. Chapman asserted, had fallen into the error of attempting to slip the bill through "to bolster up the waning activities" of the department of the interior.

Land Program Called "Suicidal."

The department of the interior, he added, has pursued the "suicide route of scattering the public land resources of the nation to the winds of heaven, not only figuratively but literally, through false economic theories underlying the stock grazing homestead laws and the failure to protect the public domain from ruinous overgrazing."

"Facts cannot be brushed aside as puerile nor public opinion treated with silent contempt," he concluded. "Soil and organic resources such as forest crops and wild life must be placed under unified control in the department of agriculture."

STALIN IS RED, EVEN TO WRITING HIS SIGNATURE

Alien on Relief Tosses Away Furniture; Fined

John Feigl, 41 years old, 5252 Justine street, an alien on the relief rolls, was fined $50 by Judge Thomas A. Green in the Stockyards court on a disorderly conduct charge. Feigl was arrested Thursday after he threw some of his furniture out a second story window. He was intoxicated, police said. After Feigl admitted that he has lived in America 13 years without filing his first papers, Judge Green ordered that the immigration bureau be notified.

DUNHAM PICKS RELIEF WORKERS FOR WPA POSTS

Many of IERC Staf to Lose Jobs.

Further details of the Works Progress administration's proposed operations were related yesterday by Robert J. Dunham, state director, before nearly 1,000 employés of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission at Thorne hall on McKinlock campus of Northwestern university.

The relief staf members heard that many of them will lose their jobs as WPA takes over most of their "clients" and puts them to work on construction projects.

Five IERC employés who heard the layoff warning without alarm were those whose appointments to the executive staf of WPA were announced by Mr. Dunham at the gathering.

Five Are Reappointed.

They are Robert J. Myers, chief statistician of the IERC, appointed chief of finance in the new works setup; Blaine Hoover, IERC personnel director, who will take over similar duties with the WPA; Martin H. Bickham, director of relief program planning, whose new title will be director of labor relations; Mrs. Mary G. Moon, director of the Cook county relief shelter division, and Miss Martha Phillips, assistant personnel head in the IERC, who will have charge of maintaining social work connections between the relief commission and WPA.

"The first step in removing families from relief rolls will embrace a continuing relationship between the IERC and WPA," Mr. Dunham said. "Relief will continue to be given to families until the day when they actually receive their first checks from us.

"The seven WPA districts in Illinois, including the two covering metropolitan Chicago, are to be subdivided into districts handling not more than 5,000 families. This is in line with Washington's order to decentralize the administration to the maximum degree."

Relief After WPA Starts.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the relief commission, said he believed the IERC social workers will have between 40,000 and 50,000 of the state's 280,000 relief families to take care of after WPA gets started.

"There will be families eligible for WPA jobs whose physical needs cannot be met by the wages they can be paid," Mr. Reynolds said. "Since we are not permitted to give them supplementary direct relief, they will have to be taken off WPA projects and supported entirely by direct relief.

"There will be other families whose employable heads can't make good on WPA projects, and they will have to be put back on direct relief."

CHARGE $50,000 EMBEZZLEMENT TO EX-EMPLOYE

CRIMINAL COURT.

LESTER CAIN, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Denis E. Sullivan.

A warant charging Max Schnetter, 1129 North Le Claire avenue, with the embezzlement of $50,000 from Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., 2200 North Natchez avenue, was issued yesterday by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court.

Schnetter, who left the employ of the concern last March 8, held the position of trafic manager. Officials of the company said that Schnetter took the money during the last two years.

Schnetter mailed bills to the company from a mythical cartage company, officials said, and then made out checks to the cartage company and appropriated them.

Smuczynski Appointed as Factory Inspector

The appointment of Michael J. Smuczynski as chief factory inspector for the state was announced yesterday by Martin B. Durkin, director of the Illinois department of labor. Smuczynski replaced Joseph J. Nowicki, who charged yesterday that he had been removed because "he refused to go along with the political bosses." Director Durkin said that Nowicki had been replaced because he "was inefficient and could not handle the work." Smuczynski was formerly employed by the Cook county highway department.

BELATED REPORT ON STATE RELIEF URGES CHANGES

Favors Board of Seven to Run Activities.

The report of Gov. Horner's commission on the relief problem, which conducted a six months' study to chart a better course for public aid to the indigent, was made public yesterday. The commission, headed by Otto C. Dering, retired Chicago merchant, has 23 members.

Gov. Horner received the report on June 1, but did not divulge its contents. On June 18 the general assembly approved extension of the present relief system until March, 1937, apparently not knowing of the changes recommended by the Doering commission.

Nonpartisan Board Urged.

Following are some of the recommendations:

1. Absorption of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission into the state department of public welfare, which would be remodeled, retaining jurisdiction over state institutions.

2. Control over the revamped state department would be vested in a board of seven citizens appointed by the governor. The members could hold no other public office, nor could they hold offices in any political party organization.

3. Management of relief activities in the various counties would be under county boards of five residents appointed by the township supervisors or county commissioners, but only with the approval of the state welfare board.

4. Executive direction of relief in the counties would be handled through county directors appointed by these boards.

5. Cash relief in all cases of direct relief, which would be the only kind remaining under the state's jurisdiction during the operation of the government's $4,000,000,000 work relief program.

6. The state would contribute three-fourths of the cost in each county for its relief and welfare expenditures not covered by federal programs. This division would be tentative and subject to changes dictated by experience.

Year to Make Changes.

The main reconciling factor in the report, for possible adjustment with the situation as it stands now, is the statement that the various changes should be made over at least a year's time.

"It has become evident to us," the report states, "that the separation of public welfare functions and furnishing of emergency relief is not a sound procedure. These functions are so interrelated that they should be undertaken as common problems in one large field of social activity."

Findings of the commission in regard to public works are at variance with the program of the new Works Progress administration.

Created Work Called Folly.

"The folly of undertaking projects simply with the idea of creating work is evident," the report states.

"Such projects are not economically sound and fool no one as to the value of the work—least of all the worker, in whom they are likely to inspire contempt for the authority originating them."

The Doering commission also warns against projects which transfer the expense of normal local governmental functions to the national government.

BILL SETTING UP OLD AGE PENSION FUND IS SIGNED

Gov. Horner at Springfield yesterday signed the Stuttle bill appropriating $5,000,000 toward paying the cost of Illinois' old age pension act.

The law approving the payment of $1 a day to indigent persons more than 65 years old was signed by the governor last Saturday and is to go into effect on Jan. 1, 1936. Several hundred persons already have applied for their pensions.

According to expert opinion, these revenues already have been fully appropriated and it is expected that a special session of the legislature will be held to amend the pension law and to enact a more definit revenue program to care for it.

Those eligible to receive the benefits must have been residents of Illinois for ten of the preceding 15 years and must demonstrate that personal income from other sources is less than $5 a week.

Gov. Horner signed another bill introduced by Senator Harry G. Stuttle [Dem., Litchfield], appropriating $25,000 to erect a monument to the late Congressman Henry T. Rainey of Illinois who at the time of his death was speaker of the national house of representatives.

Four bills introduced by House Majority Leader Benjamin S. Adamowski [Dem., Chicago] and making minor changes in the Illinois civil practice act, were vetoed. Bills for a permanent world's fair in Chicago and for a lake front airport, passed by the legislature, have not yet been acted on by the governor.

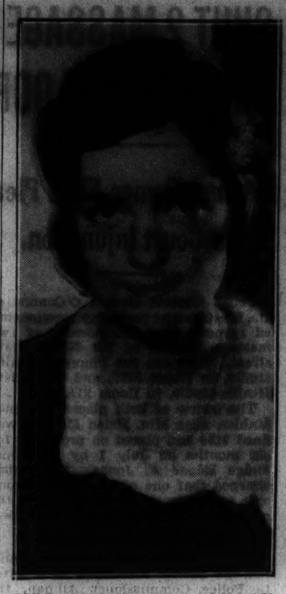
FOUR GANGSTERS SEIZED IN N. Y. 'POLICY' RAID

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—Four heavily armed gangsters, suspected of being members of the elusive Brooklyn rifle gang, were trapped amid gunfire today when police raided a seciuded Copiaque, Long Island, bungalow housing the headquarters of Suffolk county's highly organized policy racket.

Seized with the gunmen were 100,000 policy slips, the ring's books, office equipment, and printing press, and four women described as "party girls who helped entertain the collectors after work." A fifth man was arrested as an accessory when he walked in after the raid.

A brutal attack the previous night on a reputed operator for a rival ring, in which a dozen jeering thugs surrounded the luckless man in a south shore roadhouse, flung mugs of beer in his face, and then beat him, caused a tipoff on the gang's lair to be given to police.

WINS DIVORCE



MRS. ANGUS McD. GORDON.

[Grinsted Photo.]

Angus MacDonald Gordon, 27 years old, of Hinsdale, son of the late Robert Gordon, president of the Quaker Oats company, who died in 1930, and Betty Eckersall, 26, daughter of the late Walter Eckersall, famous TRIBUNE sports writer and football expert, were married at 2 o'clock this morning by Justice of the Peace Harry M. Hoyt in Waukegan.

Gordon and Miss Eckersall aroused County Clerk Lew A. Hendee from his slumbers and obtained the marriage license. They were accompanied by another couple whose identity was not revealed. Miss Eckersall has been a newspaper writer, specializing in sports topics.

Gordon was divorced yesterday in the Circuit court of Judge Philip J. Finnegan by Mrs. Mary Gordon, 34 years old, 4642 Malden street. She was the former Mary Louise Hunter of La Grange. She charged habitual drinking.

By the terms of a court settlement the former Mrs. Gordon is to receive $16,000, of which $2,500 is to be paid at once. Her attorney, Robert Cantwell Jr., said that Gordon in three years will inherit $75,000 from his father's estate. The Gordons were married on Oct. 28, 1931.

HOLDS UTILITIES MUST PAY SALES TAX THEMSELVES

Commission Rules No Passing It On.

The Illinois commerce commission announced yesterday that public utilities selling electricity, gas, water, and telephone service must absorb the costs of the new 3 per cent sales tax.

The announcement was made by Benjamin E. Lindheimer, chairman of the commission, who said no utility would be permitted to pass the tax on to consumers unless it could prove its revenues inadequate for the purpose.

Seek to Avoid Payments.

All the large utilities of the Chicago area have asked the commission informally if they could add the taxes to their consumers' bills, it was disclosed at the commission's meeting yesterday. These companies include the Commonwealth Edison company, the Illinois Bell Telephone company, the Western Union Telegraph company, the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

The new sales tax went into effect July 1 throughout the state, and is now being collected from customers in all lines of business. It differs from the preceding 2 per cent sales tax in that it includes all the utilities except transportation companies. It embraces as subject to the tax intrastate telegrams and telephone messages, that is, messages originating and terminating within Illinois.

Some Earnings Held Unfair.

"The commission has decided that utility companies will have to absorb the tax except in cases where the commission is convinced that to do so would be an unwaranted and unreasonable burden upon the company," Chairman Lindheimer said.

"In the last two years the commission has effected rate reductions totaling $10,000,000 per year. In some cases the commission has met with commendable coöperation from the utility involved. But some companies have refused to make any but minor concessions in the way of rate reductions, and among these are companies which, in the opinion of the commission's staf, are today earning more than a fair return because of excessive rates.

Others to Get "Consideration."

"In the case of utilities whose rates were reduced to a point where the margin of profit is not felt to be excessive, consideration will be allowed in the handling of the sales tax problem. In the case of other companies, where rates are believed to be excessive, the commission will require a convincing demonstration before such companies will be permitted to charge the tax to their consumers."

It was learned that the Commonwealth Edison company is one utility which falls in the latter category. Its rate case is now pending before the commission, which cited it more than a year ago to reduce its rates.

Irvin Rooks, chief counsel for the commission, explained the procedure in any case that might lead to an order authorizing utility to pass the tax on to customers. The utility would petition the commission for such authority, he said, and would present evidence to show it could not absorb the tax without endangering its financial structure and the rights of its investors. The commission's experts would study the evidence and the financial records of the company, and an order, based on the recommendations of the staf, would grant or deny the authority sought in the petition.

122D REGIMENT TESTS TRUCKS IN DASH FOR CAMP

Largest Motorized Unit Movement in This Area.

Manning 65 new high speed trucks and station wagons, the officers and men of the 122d regiment of the 58th field artillery brigade, 33d division, Illinois National guard, left their armory at 334 East Chicago avenue at midnight last night for two weeks of training at Camp McCoy near Sparta, Wis.

The regiment, a skeleton unit, which consists of 654 men, is expected to cover the 252 miles in 12 hours, at an average rate of 21 miles an hour. The recent advance in army mobility is shown by the fact that during the war the average speed of motorized army units was 7 miles an hour.

Marks Step in Army Travel.

Today's movement is the first motorized transference of so large a military unit in the Chicago area. It is expected to furnish much valuable data on army truck mobility.

The 122d regiment is the first of the three brigade units to go into training. It will return on July 20, the day on which the 124th regiment will start for Camp McCoy. The 123d regiment will leave next Friday, and the headquarters staf will start next Saturday.

The trucks used in today's movement were issued during the last year, replacing antiquated and obsolete equipment. For the last two months the men of the brigade have been receiving special training to insure the dispatch of the undertaking.

Camp Previously Established.

Early Wednesday an advance detachment of the 122d regiment left for Sparta with heavy freight, men and equipment sufficient to establish camp. The 27 trucks and one station wagon used in this movement returned to Chicago to aid in the transportation of the remaining men and equipment.

Plans for this year's tour of duty of the brigade were drawn by Col. Samuel T. Lawton of the 122d regiment, who is acting commander of the brigade in the absence of Brig. Gen. Frank R. Schwengel. Col. Charles C. Haffner Jr. is in command of the 24th regiment and Maj. Dell B. Hardin commands the 123d. Lieut. Col. Robert E. Myhrman is in temporary command of the 122d.

SEVENTY DOCTORS FROM GERMANY ON VISIT TO U. S.

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—Seventy physicians from Germany arrived today to visit the principal medical centers in the United States, including the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn.

It was the first time since 1910 that such a group has arrived here under the auspices of the German society for the promotion of the study of medicine through trips abroad.

All of the physicians bore nickel plated shields or tags on their coats and were referred to by number instead of by name.

In explaining the attitude of the Nazis toward Jewish physicians, No. 9 said that his countrymen did not hate the Jews, but that they believed Germans should be treated by Germans and that Jews should be treated by Jewish physicians.

"You make the same distinction in America," he said quietly. "You white Americans are not treated by Negro physicians. But the situation concerning Jewish physicians in Germany is this—we try to employ all Jewish physicians who have war records. The younger Jewish physicians all have an opportunity to do their work in Jewish hospitals."

U. S. TO STATION STRONG ARMY AT VAULT OF GOLD

Ask Two Millions to Expand Fort Knox.

Washington, D. C., July 5.—(AP)—Plans for throwing an all but invulnerable army force around the government's projected gold storage vault at Fort Knox, Ky., today were disclosed in official quarters.

Simultaneous with an announcement that the war department had applied for $2,238,066 from the work relief fund to improve and expand the fort, army officials revealed that they planned to make the Kentucky post the headquarters of the mechanized forces of the army.

Coincidentally, treasury sources indicated the $450,000 needed for building the subterranean repository in the center of Fort Knox, thirty-one miles from Louisville, Ky., already had been ear-marked from the public works fund. Into it would be moved millions in gold from Philadelphia and New York, continuing the treasury's policy of transferring the metal inland, away from coastal cities more vulnerable to enemy attack.

Highly Mobile Force.

The army's only completely mechanized army unit already is stationed at Fort Knox. It is a highly mobile force, made up among other things of armored cars carrying high power machine guns, radios and other equipment. The expansion plans would make the army even better able to move in fast, modern fashion in any direction to protect this gold.

The cavalry at the fort will move in fast armored cars. There also will be an artillery unit whose guns will be swung to trailers that speed along behind fast motors.

By far the larger part of the $2,238,066 which the division of applications announced had been asked by the army for the fort was to go for making the mechanized fleet stationed there more mobile.

Other Items Listed.

Some of the fund was to go for building and reconstructing houses already there, but other items included:

Paved aprons and runways, $70,000; approaches to new ordnance shop, $5,000; roads, service to new hangar area, $5,000; magazine area improvements, $20,000; grading, draining, enlargement and improvement of landing field, $125,000; walks, roads, drainage and railroad spur track, $329,000; macadam surface Wilson road, $50,000; reconditioning utility systems, $163,000; rehabilitating bridge and constructing new Porter river road, $250,000; improvements to grounds, $100,000; hospital garage, $3,000; reconstructing hangar, $45,000; grading and drainage, $1,200; graveling road bed and drainage culvert, $2,200.

The fund was split into two sections, one of which asked for $555,756, and the other $1,682,310—each section entitled "for new buildings, reconstruction and other improvements at Fort Knox."

STORES' DEMAND FOR TAX TOKENS EXCEEDS SUPPLY

Demand on the part of Chicago storekeepers for the 1.5 mills sales tokens continued to exceed the supply yesterday, Robert M. Stowers, supervisor of the Chicago area for the state department of finance, announced. An additional 212,000 tokens were distributed to chain stores during the day, bringing the total in circulation in Chicago to 562,000.

Orders for nearly 5 million tokens have been placed with the finance department's office at 208 West Washington street, and a similar number have been ordered downstate. Distribution will continue at the rate of 200,000 or more a day from Chicago and Springfield until about 25 million are in circulation. For this total the state will receive, at the rate of 6 cents for 40 tokens, $37,500 and will pay the manufacturer roughly $27,000.

A decision from the United States attorney general on the legality of the issuance of the tokens is expected early next week.

1,500 CANADIAN RELIEF STRIKERS START TO DISBAND

REGINA, Sask., July 5.—(AP)—Fifteen hundred striking relief camp workers were leaving here today either for their homes or for relief camps from which they joined the on-to-Ottawa trek. The strikers crowded into the world grain show building at the exhibition grounds and made happy queues as they waited for their turn to receive tickets. Three weeks ago today they rode into Regina aboard freights, but they are riding the cushions home. A constable and a striker were killed and 20 persons were injured last Monday night when police dispersed a massmeeting being held by the strikers.

FORESTALL WRIT FOR KILLERS OF HUGHES' NEPHEW

Ferris and 3 Women Held on Murder Charge.

Detroit, Mich., July 5.—[Special.]—Not guilty pleas were entered today for William Lee Ferris and his three "party girl" companions when they stood mute upon arraignment before Recorder's Judge Thomas M. Cotter for the $134 holdup-murder last week of Attorney Howard Carter Dickinson of New York.

All four were charged with first degree murder. The arraignment forestalled hearings on writs of habeas corpus for the prisoners which had been scheduled for today.

Fourth Accusation Is Surprise.

Although it had been expected Ferris and two of the women would be charged with first degree murder, a similar charge against the third woman, Mrs. Jean Miller, 24, came as a surprise.

The confessions of Ferris and the sisters, Florence and Loretta Jackson, that they plotted to kill the attorney, who was a nephew of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, absolved Mrs. Miller of guilty knowledge that Dickinson was to be slain. It was expected that a lesser charge would be filed against her and she would be used as a state witness.

"We don't need her as a state witness," said Assistant Prosecutor Garfield A. Nichols. "We have plenty of evidence for the trial and have enough other witnesses to round out our case."

Held Without Bond.

At the hearing, Judge Cotter set the case for examination next Friday and ordered the four held in the county jail without bond.

The week's delay was granted to permit Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea, who is now in New York, to devote his attention to the case of Merton Ward Goodrich, held for the rape-murder of 11 year old Lillian Gallaher of Detroit last year.

Led by the confession of Jean Miller, all four of the prisoners admitted to police that they lured Dickinson to a lonely spot in Rouge park for the purpose of robbing him of a large sum of money they believed he carried.

The girls confessed they were "in the business of getting wealthy men drunk and jack-rolling them."

PLANE TERRIFIES KILLER

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—Merton Ward Goodrich, the jazz band drummer who has confessed killing 11 year old Lillian Gallaher in Detroit and who is suspected of attacks on at least six other little girls, became so terrified when he heard he was to be taken to Michigan by plane that officials consented to take him by train.

"There are at least six cases of little girls criminally assaulted in Detroit which we think we can pin upon this man," said Duncan McCrea, Detroit prosecutor, who came here after Goodrich's fingerprints had betrayed his identity following his arrest for disorderly conduct Wednesday.

"In addition," said McCrea, "There are several disappearances of young children about which we want to question him."

Goodrich slept soundly all night and before leaving today chatted with his guard. He mentioned the slaying only once, saying:

"I can't understand why you treat me so well. I deserve punishment."

"We treat all prisoners well," said Patrolman Roth, cutting up ham and eggs for the prisoner, who ate the food with a spoon.

Goodrich, whose tie, belt and shoelaces had been taken from him to prevent a suicide attempt, begged the guard to find out how Mrs. Goodrich was feeling. From her cell on the floor above, Mrs. Goodrich sent word she was "feeling fine"; that she was eager to get back to Detroit and have the trial over.

FINANCE CONCERN OFFICIAL SLAIN IN STUDY OF HOME

South Bend, Ind., July 5.—[Special.]—Edmund E. Prentice, 50, was fatally shot at his home on Riverside drive here early today. Prentice, purchasing agent for the National Discount corporation, an automobile finance firm, apparently was shot as he stepped out of his study shortly before midnight to investigate a noise in the kitchen.

His wife Annie, who had been listening to the radio program upstairs, came down when she heard a scuffle in the kitchen. She found her husband bleeding profusely from a wound in his chest and sent their son, Neville, 15, to a neighbor's to call police, as she was unable to get an answer on the family phone.

"I've been shot," was all Mrs. Prentice could understand her husband to say. He died within a few minutes, unable to give any clew as to the identity of his assailant.

Neighbors reported two men had been seen walking along the street peering into houses shortly before the time of the shooting.

NINE IN WRECKED PLANE SAVED BY SHIP FROM SEA

ORAN, Algeria, July 5.—(AP)—Nine occupants of the Italian commercial seaplane Citta di Genova arrived aboard the Steamer El Mansour today with a story of a thrilling rescue when their plane crashed in the Mediterranean yesterday.

The bi-motored plane en route from Barcelona was forced down in a rough sea because of an oil leak. The shock of landing opened leaks in the cabin, forcing the crew of four and five passengers to seek safety in the wings which floated awash.

The nine, including a Polish woman, clung to the wings for three hours until the rescuing El Mansour arrived in response to an SOS from the plane's radio sent just before the crash.

JURY SELECTED TO TRY GIRL IN HEIR KIDNAPING

Mrs. Waley Faces Three Charges in Tacoma Case

Tacoma, Wash., July 5.—[Special.]—Margaret Thulin Waley, 19 year old wife of a confessed kidnaper, calmly chewed gum today as she watched the selection of a jury which will try her for the $200,000 abduction of George Weyerhaeuser.

A jury of two women, ten men and a man alternate was chosen in one hour and 25 minutes. Immediately after the jury was selected Federal Judge E. E. Cushman recessed court until Tuesday, when the trial will begin.

Mrs. Waley was neatly dressed when she came into court, but her confinement since June 8 was indicated by her bobbed light brown hair, which was badly in need of a trimming. She wore a navy blue frock with an under blouse of white, finely figured in red and blue.

Watches with Interest.

Unlike her previous court appearances, when she was extremely nervous and sobbed hysterically as she tried three times to plead guilty to the crime, the plump little defendant today presented a stolid, expressionless face to curious spectators. Her skin was shiny from no facial makeup, but she seemed unconcerned as she chewed her gum and watched the proceedings with interest.

Mrs. Waley faces charges of kidnaping, conspiracy to kidnap, and the mailing of an extortion letter. This last charge had been dropped when she tried to plead guilty, but was reinstated after Judge Cushman refused to accept her plea and ordered her tried.

It was believed an effort would be made to bring Waley here for the trial. He is now serving a sentence of 45 years at McNeil Island prison.

Husband Takes Blame.

At the time he was sentenced on his guilty plea he tried desperately to exonerate his wife. He insisted she know nothing about the kidnaping until two days after he and William Dainard, alias Mahan, still a fugitive, abducted the heir to the Weyerhaeuser lumber fortune.

Under the Lindbergh law Mrs. Waley can be sentenced up to life imprisonment if she is found guilty.

HORAN'S DRIVER GETS DELAY IN SHOOTING CASE

Court Hears Conflicting Stories at Trial.

An assault charge against Paul Morley, 33 years old, 3243 West Adams street, chauffeur for Bailif Al Horan of the Municipal court, was continued until today by Judge Frank M. Padden in the South State street court yesterday.

Judge Padden ordered the continuance after listening to two widely different versions of a shooting affair in which Morley figured last Monday. The judge announced that he wanted to make a visit to the scene before taking action.

Morley was booked for assault on the complaint of Harold Grimord, 23 years old, 3258 Jackson boulevard, whose home is a half block from that of Morley. Grimord charged that Morley had manhandled him in the back yard of the Grimord home, fired four shots into the ground, and struck Grimord's mother, Alma, when she sought to interfere.

Urged to Drop Case.

After court Grimord charged that several persons, including one of the policemen who arrested Morley, had approached him since the shooting, seeking by word or manner to induce him to drop the prosecution, which he said he refused to do.

Grimord testified that he and Eugene Plotke, 23 years old, 1707 North Hadfield avenue, were standing near Grimord's home Monday evening when Morley staggered up to them, supported by his brother-in-law, Anthony Zullo, 21 years old, who lives with Morley and who is charged with disorderly conduct.

"We saw them coming," Grimord said, "and we ran into my yard. Morley followed and fired one shot into the ground. Plotke ran away. Morley grabbed me, asked me where my purse was, cursed me, and fired three more shots at my feet. He struck my mother and called her a name when she tried to help me."

Morley's Version Told.

Morley testified that he was at home when he heard a woman scream, and that he ran out of his home, supposing the woman had been robbed. He said he saw Grimord and Plotke running away and fired four shots to halt them. He seized Grimord as he was climbing over the fence surrounding the Grimord home, Morley said, and his prisoner pulled him over the fence in his endeavor to escape.

Outside the courtroom Grimord said that the Democratic captain of his precinct had visited his home three times to express concern over Morley's arrest. Several persons had telephoned to suggest that the prosecution be dropped, Grimord said.

"Apparently many influential people are interceding for Morley," Grimord said, "but I shall do everything possible to see that he is punished."

TWO YOUTHS FIRE SCHOOL 'FOR FUN'; SEIZED, CONFESS

'Advance Information' Causes Arrests.

Two 14 year old school boys who set fire to their school "just for fun" were being held in the juvenile detention home last night for a hearing later before Judge Frank H. Bicek of the Juvenile court.

The boys, Marvin Gehrke, 3028 North Long avenue, and Joseph Kielar, 5459 Wrightwood avenue, confessed yesterday to Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan that the urge to "burn the school house" overcame them Tuesday evening as they were sitting on the steps of the Schubert elementary school, 2741 North Long avenue, from which they were graduated last month.

They Change Their Minds.

By removing a window pane they reached the school storeroom, scattered paper about the floor, saturated it with turpentine, and touched it off they confessed. The fire was not the immediate success they had hoped for and with the passing of the first excitement they became alarmed and ran to a store operated by Mrs. Stella Haslinger, 2652 North Long avenue.

"Turn in a fire alarm, quick?" they cried. "The school is on fire."

But Mrs. Haslinger could see no smoke and refused. Later she did turn in an alarm. When she talked with investigators after the fire she recalled the two boys who had told her of the blaze before smoke could be seen. They were arrested early yesterday.

Damage to School $3,000.

The fire was confined to the storeroom and principal's office. Damage was estimated at $3,000.

The boys are said to have had good records while attending school. Sheehan stated that they confessed breaking into the school on June 20 "merely for the prank and did no damage at that time.

When told they were going to the juvenile detention home young Gehrke asked: "Will we be out by September, Mr. Sheehan. We would like to start high school then."

CONSTABLE SHOT IN WAR BY ULSTER ON CATTLE SMUGGLING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 5.—Despite the doubling of the police and customs patrol along the Ulster border, the smuggling of cattle from the Free State continues at a wholesale rate. Within the last few days seizures of cattle valued at several thousands of dollars have been made.

Skirmishes with police occur frequently. Early today in South Armagh, Constable McIlhagga, a naval man now serving with the Ulster police, was shot and seriously wounded by an assailant from behind a hedge.

McIlhagga and his comrades had challenged a man who was stealthily carrying a calf in his arms and while speaking to him, the constable fell, shot through the body.

FORMER CONVICT SLAIN, 2 OTHERS SHOT IN BATTLE

New York, July 5.—(AP)—Gerardo Magazzero, 23, an ex-convict, was slain and two bystanders, one a boy of 12, were wounded tonight in a gun battle in Brooklyn.

The gunfire came without warning as Magazerro stood in front of a beer garden. Eight shots were fired, two of which struck Magazzero in his chest. He was dead when officers arrived.

Two suspects were arrested after a hand to hand struggle by an officer who heard the shooting from the lobby of a theater. He beat one of the men on his head with his pistol and subduel him until aid arrived.

FALL PROVES FATAL.

William Schuster, 59 years old, resident of the relief shelter at 54 West Austin avenue, died in the County hospital yesterday of injuries incurred in a fall on Monday.

DOUG FAIRBANKS, MARY PICKFORD AT CONFERENCE

Hollywood, Cal., July 5.—(AP)—Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks met today for the first time in many months at a business meeting in Producer Samuel Coldwyn's office.

Fairbanks, who arrived here by air yesterday after a hasty trip from the orient, preceded the recent Mrs. Fairbanks by half an hour. He told reporters he had "absolutely nothing to say."

When Miss Pickford arrived she asked that no pictures be taken. She said she had no statement to make about her meeting with Fairbanks.

With Miss Pickford, Fairbanks, and Goldwyn was Al Lichtman, new head of the United Artists corporation. Goldwyn said there would be no statements regarding the conference, and explained that it was preliminary to the United Artists sales convention, which opens here next Monday.

SURFACE LINES IN NEW FIGHT ON TRANSFER PLAN

A petition for a rehearing on the recent order of the Illinois commerce commission requiring establishment of a system of transfers between the elevated and surface lines has been filed with the commission at Springfield by the surface lines, it was announced yesterday.

The commission has twenty days in which to deny or grant the request of the street car company, which is opposed to the transfers plan on a number of technical grounds and on the contention that such an interchange is unworkable between competing companies.

The elevated lines have already filed with the commission a set of rules and regulations in compliance with the order, which prescribes a year's experimentation to determine if the plan is feasible. If the plan is proved workable after the year, the commission will make its order permanent, it has indicated.

RUNAWAY HORSE KNOCKS DOWN 2; OWNER SEIZED

One of the rarer repetitions of history occurred yesterday at 22d street and Ashland avenue. Two city firemen, Daniel O'Sullivan, 39 years old, 5601 South Trumbull avenue, and James Peters, 31 years old, 7916 South South Ashland avenue, were seriously injured when they were knocked down by a runaway horse.

The animal, hitched to a wagon, is the property of Joseph Rizzo, 1026 Taylor street, a huckster. It had been left in front of a loading platform at 22d street and Ashland avenue while the owner bargained for a load of watermelons and it dashed north when it became frightened. The firemen were waiting for a street car when they were run down.

Both were taken to St. Anthony's hospital for treatment. Persons who saw the accident caught the horse. Rizzo was arrested on a charge of failing to tie his horse securely.

BOLIVIA BEGINS DRIVE TO OBTAIN PORT ON PACIFIC

Chile Urged to Give Her Strip to Sea.

BY NORMAN INGREY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 5.—Among the questions of vital importance to Chile that in all likelihood will be raised at the impending Chaco peace conference is one concerning Bolivian aspirations to possess a port on the Pacific.

Persistent rumors and articles in the press of Bolivia, Paraguay, Argentina, and Chile indicate clearly that another determined effort is about to be made by Bolivia to secure the revision of the 1904 treaty in which the existing state of affairs—a landlocked Bolivia—was legally agreed to.

Turns Attention to Atlantic.

Many South American statesmen trace the genesis of the Chaco war to the 1928 period when Chile and Peru, through the good offices of the United States government, finally got together and settled their long standing Tacna-Arica dispute. Bolivia, which always had been encouraged to expect a settlement of that dispute on th basis of securing a corridor to the port of Arica, was shocked and disappointed when she was left out in the cold.

Believing that the Pacific door was closed to her forever, the La Paz government turned her attention to the Atlantic, resuscitating the Chaco territorial issue in her preparations to crash through the jungle to the Paraguay river and thus to the Atlantic. Development of her oil resources, which could not be piped over the Andes to the Pacific, gave a further impetus to the change in policy.

If that was the main objective of the war that is now ended, it has been fought in vain. The Paraguayans have successfully barred the Atlantic gate. Even if the Chaco peace conference may provide piping facilities for Bolivia's exportable oil, it is obvious that if Bolivia still hankers for her own autonomous outlet she must again look westward.

Eyes Turned Toward Chile.

Chile is stirring restlessly as the eyes of the South American continent are turned towards her in the hope that she will provide the key to permanent peace by donating a corridor and port to Bolivia. A section of the Santiago press declares Chile has been diplomatically outmaneuvered, claiming that she holds the "Chaco baby."

In La Paz it has been suggested that Bolivia appeal to the league of nations, forgetful that the Geneva organization turned down a request for intervention 12 years ago on the excuse that there must be a joint request. La Paz claims that Chile, whose government has been friendly with Bolivia during the Chaco war, now is more disposed to listen to Bolivia's plea.

Lost Seaport in War.

The 1904 treaty confirmed the loss of Bolivia's former Pacific seaboard, wrested by Chile in the Pacific war of 1879. The treaty, however, pledged Chile to build a railroad from Arica to La Paz over which Bolivia could import and export her goods in bond.

Chile kept her word and for thirty years Bolivia has had full advantages of access to the sea without the attendant expenses and complications of maritime jurisdiction. Naturally landlocked, Bolivia is not content with this. She wants her own sovereign outlet.

WEALTHY ELGIN DRUGGIST NAMED IN BALM ACTION

Albert E. Cooper, well-to-do drug store and apartment building owner of Elgin, was named defendant in a $10,000 alienation of affections suit filed on June 29 by Ernest E. Hasselquist, an officer of the Elgin Tool works and the Fox Electrical Supply company, it was learned yesterday.

The suit was suppressed when it was filed in the city court of Elgin. It charges that on March 15 and subsequent dates, which are unlisted, Cooper by various acts alienated the affections of Hasselquist's wife, Elizabeth. The suit was filed by Attorney Arthur L. Paulson of Elgin.

The Hasselquists have been married for 15 years. He is associated with his father, Albert Hasselquist, in the management of the tool and electrical companies.

SON OF OAK PARK TRUSTEE DROWNS IN THE FOX RIVER

Edward H. Gawne, 17 years old, son of Charles E. Gawne, plumbing contractor and village trustee of Oak Park, was drowned yesterday while swimming in the Fox river at Yorkville, in Kendall county. His body was recovered. The family home is at 535 Lyman avenue, Oak Park, but the boy was spending the day with his parents in their summer cottage on the river.

Raymond Aleck, 12 years old, son of Peter Aleck, 2851 West 38th street, an engineer for the Campbell Soup company, drowned yesterday when he fell out of a rowboat in which four other small boys were riding on Long lake, in the western part of Lake county. His body had not been recovered last night.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Pests Try a New Trick

July 5, 1935.

THE chinch bugs seem to be trying out a new trick these days on the Yorkville farm. Clarence Thurow, manager of the Yorkville farm, was surprised to find a lot of chinch bug eggs in the alfalfa when the twenty acre field was cut the other day.

Not that the presence of the insect pests in the alfalfa is worrying anybody very much, because it's pretty late for the "chinchers" to do a great deal of harm. Anyway, the weather is against them this year, and chinch bugs do not flourish in legumes like alfalfa. They don't like this kind of a plant and won't destroy it like they do oats and young corn.

The boys on the Yorkville farm have been complaining about this twenty-acre plot of alfalfa that was cut. It has been too wet to take care of it, but they finally did get to it yesterday afternoon, after a hot sun had done its work. It seems that it's one thing to cut hay, but in view of incessant rain this season it's another thing to get enough dry weather with a warm sun to permit the hay to be put into the barns.

One of the workers on the Wheaton farm was "fired" the other day for incompetent and careless work. The discharged help is a black bantam hen which had been secured to hatch a clutch of quail eggs. Instead of sitting tight on the nest, however, she was constantly scratching the nesting material onto the ground, so the boys took her off the job and put another bantam hen on the eggs. The new hen, a white one, is on the eggs now and proving herself much more satisfactory than the discharged one.

There is a sort of feud going on at the Yorkville farm, with no fatalities reported so far but with one slight injury on the books. The battles have been between two teams of horses on the farm, with Jack and Gene opposing Pat and Jerry. The two teams have been having a hard time of it pulling the farm machinery so wet and heavy, so they have been so wet and heavy so they have been getting plenty of rest periods in the pastures. Instead of resting as they should, however, the boys learned they have been squaring off in a battle royal, with Jack and Gene showing their hoofs to Pat and Jerry, and vice versa. Pat evidently got the worst of the deal in one round, because he has a slight bruise on his left leg.

Any horse that might be driven past one of the fields on the north side of the Fox river where it could look at one of the experimental farm hay fields certainly would stop in his tracks when he saw the growth of hay. The stuff is so high it's almost to one's shoulders. Of course the season has been one for "high powered" growing, so this fertile field, having gotten plenty of moisture, has developed a hay crop that is, as one of the boys phrased it, "double barreled."

This is the sort of growth that would make any horse's eyes gleam with anticipation. But when the boys look at this hay crop they register the hope that they'll get plenty of sunshine and warm weather from the time they cut it until it is cured and put in the barn. There are a lot of strong, new hay ropes ready to handle this hay crop. The boys installed the ropes the other day.

What has been good for the hay also has been good for the wild flowers and the flowering weeds in the fields. I was noticing the other day how the colorful ox eye daisies are lending their color to the landscape these days. This is the daisy that is quite common on farmlands in Chicagoland. That old friend, Job's Tears, the vivid, purple flower, is very abundant this season, too.

COURT RULES DOUBLE INSURANCE IS PAYABLE AIR PASSENGER HEIRS

St. Louis, Mo., July 5.—(AP)—A casual airplane passenger is not "participating in aeronautics" as the phrase is used by insurance companies to limit their liability, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled today.

The decision, in effect, held that air passengers "riding for the sole purpose of going somewhere" can recover double liability in event of a fatal crash on policies allowing double indemnity for accidental death.

Reversing a decision of the U. S. Circuit court in Arkansas, the Court of Appeals held Mrs. Mary Noel, Augusta, Ark., was entitled to double indemnity on a $25,000 insurance policy issued to her husband, William N. Gregory, by the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York.

Gregory, his 19 year old son, William, and two other men were killed in the crash of the son's plane two years ago near Valmeyer, Ill.

The insurance company paid Mrs. Gregory $25,000 but declined to pay the additional $25,000 provided by a double indemnity clause in case of accidental death. The insurance company contended and was upheld by the District court that the elder Gregory was "participating in aeronautics."

The Court of Appeals, however, ruled that Gregory merely was a passenger and that passengers while in that rôle could not be classed as "participating in aeronautics."

SOUTH STATE ST. BUILDING FALLS; BLAME OVERLOAD

An overload of heavy automobile motors and accessories stored on upper floors apparently caused the collapse early yesterday of the four story brick building housing the Douglas Auto Parts company, 1620 South State street, according to Chief John Fenn of the 25th fire battalion. The collapse occurred ten minutes before 20 employés were due to report for work.

Only the rear wall of the building was left standing after the crash. A bus owned by the National Sightseeing company, which was unoccupied and parked in front of the building, was damaged by falling bricks.

Windows in passing street cars were broken by flying débris, but none of the passengers was injured. The falling walls crumpled on the sidewalk, but did not fall far enough to halt trafic in State street.

Hysterical Stock Broker Held for Observation

Roy Gridley, 35 years old, a stock broker of Birmingham, Ala., was taken to the Psychopathic hospital here last evening after he appeared at detective headquarters and demanded protection from men who, he asserted, were planning to shoot him. The broker became hysterical while he was telling his story and a physician was summoned. He was sent to the hospital upon the doctor's suggestion. Gridley had $152 in his pockets.

HOUSE MAJORITY APPROVES LONG AS JOB DICTATOR

Death Knell of Local Patronage Sounded.

Baton Rouge, La., July 5.—(AP)—The death knell of local political patronage in Louisiana was sounded today with approval by Senator Huey P. Long's obedient house majority of legislation placing every non-elective worker in the state under the civil service commission composed of Long's supporters.

Although Long denied it, the effect of the measure—one of 26 sped through committee today in 42 minutes as another special session of the legislature made its customary whirlwind progress—was revealed when Long's house leader successfully moved amendment of a bill broadening the scope of the civil service act.

Would Abolish Powers.

Automatically the proposal would deprive city, parish, and village governments of authority to hire or discharge employés, from well paid appointive offices down to the lowliest laborer.

The bill, amending the act, would extend the civil service commission's jurisdiction, originally confined to municipal police and firemen, to "any municipal, parochial, or state officer, and any deputies, assistants, clerks, or any other employés except where such selection is made by the direct vote of the people."

It was learned today that a measure amending a 1934 act would place complete control of teacher employment in every parish under the state budget committee, also composed of Long's followers.

Routine Speed Apparent.

The same routine precision that marked six other special sessions of the Louisiana assembly within the past year was in evidence as Long prepared the road for quick rubber stamp action by a senate committee.

A series of bills included in the new batch will virtually complete the senator's conquest of New Orleans.

One bill removes all employés of the T. Semmes Walmsley New Orleans government from supervision of the city administration.

Collection of city taxes, police powers, and administrative machinery of the city government will be removed from Walmsley's control by the drastic measures.

Finances of the city of New Orleans are to be removed to the jurisdiction of the state board of liquidation, with that Long controled body authorized to make necessary financial negotiations to pay salaries of firemen and policemen long overdue.

The senator's measures delve into the realm of the federal government, with one of his bills carrying a mandatory jail sentence for any person convicted of using federal works-relief money for "political purposes."

SLUGGING VICTIM, 63, DIES; SUSPECT SALOON ATTACK

Found slugged and unconscious in front of a tavern at 8 State street, Calumet City, early on Wednesday, Wallace J. Van Camp, 63 years old, died at St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, yesterday without regaining consciousness. Police found Van Camp's empty pocketbook near him and believe that he was slugged and robbed in one of a score of taverns in the neighborhood. Van Camp was identified by the police as a former resident of Lafayette, Ind., but is said to have lived in Hammond.

DIES OF HEART DISEASE.

Thomas Gordon, 35 years old, resident of a relief shelter at 500 South Union avenue, died at the County hospital yesterday, apparently of heart disease.

MRS. R. T. DOUBLEDAY LOSES FIRST ROUND IN $100,000 SLANDER SUIT

New York, July 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Rhoda Tanner Doubleday, whose former husband, Felix, was the adopted son of the publisher, Frank M. Doubleday, today lost a preliminary round in her $100,000 "golf course" slander suit against Max C. Fleischmann of Santa Barbara, Cal., millionaire sportsman and yeast manufacturer.

The Appellate division of the Supreme court refused her petition for an appeal from a lower court decision which set aside a writ she had obtained attaching $5,000 in property owned by Fleischmann in New York.

The slander suit charges that Fleischmann made remarks uncomplementary to Mrs. Doubleday while he was playing a game of golf at the Valley club in Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Doubleday sued Harold McCormick of Chicago, in 1933, asking one million 500 thousand dollars damages for breach of promise to marry. The suit was dismissed May 24, 1934 after a settlement.

HOUSE CLEANER GONE WITH $4,500 HIDDEN IN SOFA

The Hammond police last night sought an unidentified negro said to have fled with $4,500 which had been stuffed into a davenport in the home of Frank Cope, decorator and former saloon keeper, who died last March. During the epidemic of bank failures, Cope withdrew his savings of $7,000 from a bank and hid it in his home, 76 Plummer street, Hammond.

His family was unable to find the money at the time of Cope's death. Last week the house was rented to Lorenzo Pinnick, colored, who was to take possession Aug. 12. Pinnick agreed to turn over any money found on the premises.

Early this week Pinnick was given permission to clean the house for occupancy. He, Clayborne Jackson, Mabel Bender, and the unidentified man, all colored, began the cleaning work.

According to the story told police yesterday, the unidentified man found the hiding place of the money, kept $4,500 and divided $2,500 among the others. The police recovered the $2,500.

FANNIE'S CLUB FRIENDS DOUBT WEDDING STORY

Testify Against Barbour in Estate Suit.

Members of the Rebeccas, the Loyal Twelve, and the Past Presidents' club of Aurora had their day yesterday in the federal court of Judge John P. Barnes. They were called by the defense to refute the contention of Lionel R. Barbour, Detroit attorney, that he was the common law husband of the late Mrs. Fannie Bishop Henderson of Aurora.

Barbour is suing to break the will of Mrs. Henderson, who died in 1931 at the age of 77 years, leaving most of an estate of $650,000 for construction of an old people's home.

The witnesses, all elderly women and old friends of Mrs. Henderson, are Mrs. J. N. Britz, Mrs. Anna C. Reilein, Mrs. Myrtle Duncan, and Mrs. John C. Rich.

Grope in Darkened Courtroom.

They groped their way to the witness stand in the darkened courtroom —the lights had been banished to help minimize the heat—and peered at the judge through eyeglasses held by fine gold chains. As each finished her testimony she moved complacently past the jury box and nodded encouragement to her successor.

Mrs. Britz was unable to recall any circumstance that would have indicated that Mrs. Henderson had taken "L. R." as her husband.

"I remember once that Fannie and I ran for vice president of the Past Presidents' club," Mrs. Britz told the judge in reminiscent vein.

"I won, but that didn't make a bit of difference to Fannie."

Mrs. Duncan remembered that "Fannie said that she got mad at L. R."

"Two Husbands Are Enough."

"I'm going to put him through school," Mrs. Duncan quoted Mrs. Henderson as saying, "and then I'm through with him. Two husbands are enough. I will be buried beside Will Henderson [her second husband]."

Mrs. Reilein, declaring that Mrs. Henderson had never referred to "L. R." as her husband, remembered that Barbour "carried a big gun."

The general trend of testimony was echoed by the other witnesses. Added to this were depositions offered by schoolmates of Barbour in law school that he had told them that a "rich aunt in Chicago" was putting him through school. Depositions also were produced from hotel keepers in Cobourg, Ont., intended to show that Mrs. Henderson and Barbour occupied separate rooms in the hotels.

FRATERNITY DEBATES ON HOW HITLER EATS ASPARAGUS; CLOSED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 5.—The most illustrious student fraternity in Germany, the "Saxo-Borussia corps" of Heidelberg university, today was suspended for two years because of "disrespectful behavior" during Reichsfuehrer Hitler's May 21 reichstag speech.

The corps on the evening of the speech was holding a champagne banquet. Thereafter in a state of exhilaration, some attired in tuxedos and white ties proceeded to a local restaurant, where, according to the official report, they drank more wine. The offense was aggravated when one student blew on an empty champagne bottle.

Public discussions on the etiquet of eating asparagus further incensed the authorities. The students debated the proper method of conveying the vegetable from the plate to the mouth. It was argued whether Hitler uses a knife and fork or prefers using his fingers.

The university disciplinarians voted that the students' behavior constituted a violation of their obligation to the people, the state and university.

FRENCH FASCISTS AND REDS LINE UP; CIVIL WAR LOOMS

Crisis Is Called Result of Political Decay.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 5.—July is the classic month for revolutions in France. Considering the way the temperature is rising on both sides of the two big forces now struggling for mastery in France, the average citizen wonders if 1935 is going to see repetition of the events of 1789 and 1830.

It is still too early to scream catastrophe. But there is no doubt that the air is heavy with menace. The French are today closer to civil war than they have been at any time since the Dreyfus affair in the late '90s.

Parliamentary Decay.

The profound cause of the present tension is the decay of parliamentary institutions in France. Spiritually the French republic rests on revolution. It is supposed to be a continuous creation, moving toward some indefinte ideal of perfection. That is why revolutionary rhetoric is used so freely by politicians in France, who would tremble with fright if any one took their words seriously. The third republic has kept going on that equivocation.

The consequence has been that misunderstanding, not to mention hypocrisy, has become a constant French political practice. Words never mean what they seem to mean, or else they mean one thing one moment and something else the next moment. But always, from the habit of using violent words, there has been a constant push over toward the left. Demagogy has been the one possible method of getting election. The candidate had to promise the voters the government would be theirs and that they would get a good thing out of it.

Treasury Loots Hurt Finances.

Constant treasury looting by giving handouts to every one has kept government finances in a bad way ever since the war. Just as the situation was getting serious, and every one agreed the house had to be set in order, the French had a regular election—that of May, 1932. The campaign was conducted with a demagogy never before surpassed, and returned a chamber well over to the left.

The dismay of the solid bourgeoisie, however, which has vineyards in the sun and francs in the mattress, increased as this left chamber showed itself incapable of tackling the financial problem. After words about the necessity of balancing the budget, it would oust any cabinet which actually tried that, because it meant cutting off so much electoral manna.

Then the Stavisky Scandal.

Then came the revelation that many politicians were not only demagogic, but corrupt. A series of scandals, culminating in the Stavisky case of December, 1933, robbed the deputies of any prestige they had left with the solid citizenry.

It proved to the aveage taxpayer that a representative of the people, once elected, acquires a peculiar morality. He calls for economy and votes for a raid on the treasury. He denounces the malefactors of great wealth, but is only too happy to get on good terms with those malefactors and acquire some of their wealth.

The successive cabinets which came after the Stavisky revelations confirmed the bourgeoisie in their low opinion of the chamber. They saw that the scandal would be stifled. Hence the sporadic riots during January, 1934. The climax was the city-wide tumult of Feb. 6, 1934, when all Paris seemed to be in the streets to cry "Down with the robbers!" and when the mobile guard fired on the mob to defend the chamber of deputies.

Line of Cleavage Established.

Calm followed that week of storm, but every one knew that a line of cleavage had been established in the country. It was splitting into two camps, something contrary to French custom.

On the one side have been gathering the so-called "fascist" forces, which for lack of a more specific name we may call the right, though the term is misleading by implying they are conservative. Chief of them is the organization of the Fiery Cross [Croix de Feu], which has now spread over the whole country. Akin to it and cooperating with it are other bodies, notably French Solidarity and the Young Patriots.

These right organizations so far have but one point in their program. They are anti-parliamentary, which does not necessarily mean that they are against the republic. But the republic, when they got through with it, would bear little resemblance to the one now existing. Above all, it would be authoritative. It would also be nationalistic, banning ideas of pacifism and internationalism.

The left has been slowly grouping its forces into a phalanx which at first was called the common front, and now is called the popular front. The driving power is supplied by the communists, numerically inferior to Socialists, but far more energetic and enterprising. Also included is a good part of that middle of the road party which the French call radical.

The most significant step taken by the popular front has been an attempt to amalgamate the two big trade union organizations of France, the C. G. T. and the C. G. T. U., which split in 1922, a split corresponding to the political one between the Socialists, who followed the second international, and the communists, who followed Moscow and the third international. The C. G. T. has 700,000 members, the C. G. T. U. 500,000. A huge national union of 1,200,000 workmen will put a formidable fighting machine at the disposal of the popular front for such extreme measures as a general strike.

The grouping of the nation into right and left proceeds rapidly. On Sunday, June 23, alone clashes between right and left were reported from six points. Authorized voices on both sides announced that this was but the beginning.

The big test day will be the national holiday, July 14. For it the left announced a monster meeting in the suburbs of Paris. The cabinet has announced that it will not countenance any such demonstration of the significance of the taking of the Bastille.

MOSCOW ACCEPTS JAP PLAN TO IRON OUT BORDER ROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, July 6.—[Saturday.]—Koki Hirota, Japanese foreign minister, today requested Soviet Russia to submit a concrete plan for ironing out border disputes with Japan. The Tokio government's suggestion to create a frontier commission has been accepted by Moscow.

Some circles see in Russia's acceptance a scheme to ascertain just how strong the Japanese army is, for it is generally understood the army is not particularly receptive to Hirota's scheme.

It is expected the details of the proposal will be worked out in Tokio between Hirota and Constantine Yurenev, the Russian ambassador. One of the main points is to agree on the border line between Russia and Manchukuo. It is reported that soviet acceptance of the frontier commission plan does not mean Moscow is prepared to discuss removal of troops from the border. It is believed that unless the soviet proposed nonaggression pact is signed, Russia will keep 200,000 troops along the frontier.

NEW NAZI LAWS AIMED AT ARMY SERVICE DODGERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 5. — German conscripts who inflict self-wounds or flee abroad to avoid military service or who, after having fulfilled their service and as reservists go abroad without permission, will be liable to six months imprisonment and fines under a new law issued today. The decree also hits conscientious objectors.

Gerhard Handrock, a Protestant deacon and candidate for the ministry, was the first man sentenced under the new laws. He was given four months for objecting to service in the army.

Another law increases the penalties for homosexual offenses up to 10 years in prison.

PROBE ANOTHER BOMB BLAST IN PORTO RICAN CITY

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, July 5.—(AP)—Authorities today investigated the explosion of a bomb thrown into a crowded street last night from a second story window. No one was reported injured but many windows in nearby stores and residences were broken.

The police said they believed there might be a connection between last night's bombing and the explosion of two bombs Wednesday night in the San Juan federal building and in the offices of the local relief administration.

Police said they had not determined the motives behind the bombings.

China Soothes Japan Over Paper's Insult to Mikado

NANKING, July 5.—(AP)—A foreign office spokesman said today a "satisfactory settlement" is being made by the Chinese national government in regard to an alleged insult to the Japanese emperor published in a Chinese vernacular magazine. The spokesman said the government Kuomintang party publicity committee had suppressed the magazine, discharged the entire press censorship committee at Shanghai, and assured the Japanese there would be no recurrence of the incident.

AUSTRIA DELAYS RETURN OF OTTO TO CLAIM THRONE

Denies Hapsburgs Will End Exile This Summer.

VIENNA, July 5.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Egon Berger-Waldenegg today sharply denied rumors that former Empress Zita and Archduke Otto, her eldest son and Hapsburg claimant to the Austrian throne, would visit Austria soon.

He described as nonsense reports from Brussels, where the exiled royal family lives, that Zita and her children were planning to spend the summer in their native country, saying:

"The head of the house of Hapsburg [Otto] positively will not come to Austria this summer.

Plan to Take Their Time.

The foreign minister's assertion jibed with information obtained in royalist quarters to the effect that restoration of the Hapsburgs' properties, confiscated after the revolution overthrew the dynasty following the world war, would make it easier for legitimists to take their time and work patiently toward their goal.

The cabinet and the council of state both have approved return of the family's vast properties, and the measure needs only approval of the diet and president to become law. That is expected early next week.

The Catholic newspaper Reichspost today referred to Otto as "his majesty," while the mouthpiece of Fascist Heimwehr [home guards] called him "Dr. Otto von Hapsburg." Leaders of the powerful Heimwehr, including Vice Chancellor Prince Ernst von Starhemberg and Minister of Interior Emil Fey, are reported as advocating indefinite postponement of the Hapsburg restoration.

Family Council Is Held.

BRUSSELS, July 5.—(AP)—A Hapsburg family council was reported under way at Steenockerzeel castle today, amid assertions by royalists that young Archduke Otto soon would be back on the Austrian throne.

Prince Felix, consort of the grand duchess of Luxembourg, was among those attending the rumored council at the castle where former Empress Zita of Austria and her children have been living during their exile.

A legitimist close to the 22 year old pretender to the throne said, meanwhile, only Prince Ernst von Starhemberg's opposition to immediate restoration and his desire to rule as regent during an intermediary period stood in the way of Otto's early coronation.

RUSSIA TO BUILD 16 GIANT PLANES WITH CASH FROM DONATIONS

MOSCOW, July 5.—(AP)—The soviet government today ordered the construction of 16 airplanes of the type of the Maxim Gorky, which—until it crashed May 18, killing 49 persons—was the largest land plane in the world.

Immediately after the disaster, the government announced plans to construct three ships similar to the Maxim Gorky. Today's order substitutes for that. A large scale construction program was made possible by public subscriptions totaling more than 68,000,000 paper rubles and 14,000,000 gold rubles for building new ships.

The craft will be named for soviet heroes and officials such as Nicolai Lenin, founder of the soviet union, Dictator Josef Stalin, Michael Kalinin, president of the U. S. S. R. and Minister of War Klim Voroshiloff.

BRAZIL MASSES TROOPS TO CURB RADICAL MENACE

Fears Fascist, Leftist Disorders.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 5.—(AP)—Massed troops were held ready at vital points throughout Brazil today as the government, beset by right and left wing extremism, watched carefully lest leftists' commemoration of the death of 18 young rebels 13 years ago develop disorders.

Watch Fascist Group.

At the same time authorities kept wary eyes on the Fascist Integralist Action, which now claims 400,000 green-shirted adherents. The integralists have drawn the sharp fire of the liberating alliance.

A score of leftist leaders were arrested on precaution against syndicalist outbreaks on the anniversary of the death of the 18 young insurgents who marched out of Copa Cabana fortress into a hail of government fire in 1922.

Troops Ready to Act.

Troops were held in readiness throughout the first military region, which includes the federal district and the states of Rio de Janeiro and Espirito Santo. Police were reported vigilant in Sao Paulo's industrial centers.

Cabinet meetings and consequent military, naval, and police precautions have resulted during recent months from definite charges that the liberating alliance, whose numbers police place at "several tens of thousands," was responsible for strikes and disorders. Similar measures have been taken to curb Fascist activities.

BODY OF MISSING U. S. ARMY FLYER IS FOUND IN BAY

COLON, Panama, July 5.—(AP)—The body of First Lieutenant Winston F. Graham, missing with Second Lieutenant George R. McMahon since Wednesday, on an observation flight was picked up by a fishing launch tonight in Panama Bay.

It was found floating between Taboga and the Melones Islands, the mayor of Taboga informed Gov. Enoch Adams by telephone.

Graham was wearing a United States army parachute, but the mayor did not say whether an effort had been made to open it. McMahon is still missing.

The two missing flyers were the object of a country-wide search by 25 planes during the past two days.

MILLIONS NOT ON THE DOLE.

The revolt in the house against the President's utility bill proves that the fight against confiscation and oppression is by no means a hopeless one. It can be won; and the strategy which proved victorious in this battle can be applied to bring victory in the larger campaign.

It can be applied successfully even if the President manages to recover some or all of his lost prestige.

Victory came because several million men and women who stood to lose heavily if the bill was enacted in the form desired by the President were made aware of their danger and told how to avert it. Largely through the efforts of Mr. Hugh Magill of Illinois, a distinguished educator and churchman, an organization of utility investors was formed. It was interested not in partisan politics but in protecting the rights of men and women who had worked hard and saved their money.

These people are the forgotten men and women of this administration. They have suffered severely in the depression, but they are not asking the government to support them. On the contrary, they are paying now and will continue to pay for the support of the less competent, the less provident and the less energetic.

That burden was accepted without complaint. The investors were not heard from until the President went one step farther and threatened to destroy what little the depression had left them. That was the last straw. They were ripe for organization, and Mr. Magill, who speaks their language because he is one of them, did the rest.

The Democratic majority in the house feared, if it did not respect, its leader, and undoubtedly would have preferred to go along with him now, just when the easy money is being parceled out. It is highly significant that the majority feared the voters in their own districts more than they feared the President. The members will go a long way to please him, as they have repeatedly shown, but they will not commit political suicide for him.

There are millions on the dole, but there are many more millions who are not on it and do not intend to be driven to it by a ruthless policy of expropriating their savings. The successful fight on the utility bill proves that an organization of investors in all kinds of corporations [which would include, of course, the owners of savings bank accounts and insurance policies] can be formed to guard the provident against the raids of the improvident.

THE GOVERNMENT TRIES TO MAKE A DEAL WITH THE TRIBUNE.

For a month and a half officials of the United States treasury department, assisted by the United States army, have been unsuccessfully conducting negotiations for a purchase from THE TRIBUNE. The price is not in dispute, the method of delivery is not an issue, and there is no question of title. The deal is being held up by the insistence of the government that as a condition of sale we agree to abide by undisclosed and undetermined restrictions the government may enact into law despite a holding by the Supreme court that the government has no constitutional power to do so. The completion of the transaction has also been deferred because of the unwillingness of THE TRIBUNE to spend several dollars to fill out forms, statements, and vouchers when the amount involved is only 40 cents.

We are terminating the negotiations because of the expense of carrying them on. A government with everybody's wealth to snatch a share of, and the unrestricted use of bond and currency printing presses at its disposal, is able to produce the money to pay the cost of letters and telegrams and miles of red tape on a 40 cent transaction. But a private business which must out of its own efforts find the wherewithal to carry on must eliminate needless correspondence and simplify its processes. If we did business with all of our million customers on the basis which the government carries on its activities we couldn't last a week, or the paper would sell for $2 a copy.

On May 23 the treasury department sent us a number of forms asking for a bid to supply one copy of the booklet containing charts reprinted from the financial section of THE TRIBUNE. The booklet is for sale for 40 cents at THE TRIBUNE Public Service office, 50 cents by mail. When John Gillespie, manager of the public service office, surveyed the mass of government printing and realized the amount of paper work he was asked to do he wrote the treasury advising that since the amount of the transaction was small, to avoid bookkeeping and billing costs it would be more simple to send 50 cents in stamps, or 40 cents and a franked envelope.

To this the treasury replied, acknowledging receipt of a "bid," but neither accepting nor rejecting it. Instead the treasury asked to be incorporated in the "bid" and "contract" a statement that if subsequently legislation along NRA lines is enacted, whatever it may be, we would agree to abide by it. The Supreme court decision outlawing NRA and the codes had been handed down on May 27 and the treasury was attempting to accomplish by indirection what the Supreme court said the government had no authority to do.

Mr. Gillespie again replied, pointing out that it was only a 50 cent transaction—40 cents if no stamps were required—and for the treasury to send along the stamps and never mind the rigamarole. On June 26 the war department came into the negotiations. The signal corps of the United States army delivered a wireless message asking for an immediate reply by wire advising whether we agree to the inclusion in a contract of a statement that we will abide by subsequent legislation along lines described in their letter.

The patience of Mr. Gillespie, which up to this time had stood up amazingly well in carrying on the trying negotiations, now was exhausted. He has replied to the latest message of the treasury and war department that if the government doesn't want to pay 40 cents for the book, cold turkey and no more monkey business about it, then the whole deal is off. Other departments of THE TRIBUNE which have coöperated in an advisory way feel the same way about it. For although THE TRIBUNE sells for only 2 cents per copy, 40 cents isn't such an extraordinarily large sum of money to us that we are willing to go to any lengths to acquire it.

THE GRASS ROOTS SPREAD.

Monday and Tuesday of next week Republicans of six central states will hold a Grass Roots convention at Cleveland. The states to be represented are Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Michigan. Arthur Evans' analysis of the revolt in the house against the President's mandate to pass the holding company "death sentence" shows that even among the Democrats of these states opposition to executive autocracy is growing formidable. The Grass Roots convention will be heartened by this evidence of reviving loyalty to the American system of government regardless of party affiliation.

The convention indeed has an inspiring opportunity to give leadership to Americanism in the powerful commonwealths it may speak for. The convention at Springfield revealed the strength implicit in a vigorous appeal for the defense of American liberties against the conspiracy of the New Deal revolutionists. The Cleveland delegates, we have no doubt, will carry forward this movement in the spirit their midwest comrades are showing. The region they represent is peopled by the stock out of which the greatness of America has been builded and the convention will have a message for all loyal Americans, rallying them to the protection of the institutions and ideals which the Roosevelt régime is working to subvert.

WHEN THE DEATH PENALTY WAS NEEDED.

The murderer Ferris has shown a flippancy and braggadocio in the taking of a human life that ought to tempt the people of Michigan to some serious thinking on their state penalty for murder. Ferris, as the consequences of his act appear in prospect, is not feeling so jaunty. This does not represent penitence. It means that Ferris is beginning to think what is going to happen to him. The sense of consequences is too late to save him or his victim. It should be sharpened in the minds of other malefactors of the Ferris type. The only penalty that is likely to impress them is death. Imprisonment, even for a life term, always offers hope of escape or release through influence. It cannot affect the insensitive perceptions of a Ferris. Death, swift and certain, is a very different matter. That prospect would probably have suggested to Ferris another way of getting Dickinson's money.

The arguments against the death penalty as inhumane the people of Michigan might take up with their consciences. They omit considerations of humanity for the victims of easy killers. There are too many Ferrises in the United States.

Editorial of the Day

[Peoria Transcript.]

Another gesture to befuddle the aged people of Illinois has been made by the state senate in a bill appropriating $6,000,000 from the general fund to pay old age pensions of $1 a day to persons 65 years of age or older who are in need.

In the first place, the senate realizes that at this late date the house cannot possibly act on the bill. Under house procedure the bill must go to the appropriations committee and must receive a favorable report from that committee before the house as a whole can act upon it.

The house appropriations committee is now having its troubles trying to make appropriations balance with anticipated revenues. It is being forced to slash demands ruthlessly and it will not welcome a $6,000,000 bill that will make its task more difficult.

Yet even should the house approve the bill, the $6,000,000 appropriation would be a mere drop in the bucket. Most conservative estimates place the probable cost of the pension at a minimum of $10,000,000; others estimate it at $150,000,000.

On an age basis alone there are approximately 425,000 persons in Illinois eligible for the pension. How many of these could prove that they are in actual need of the pension is problematical, but insurance statistics show that few persons are self-supporting at that age.

In Peoria there are approximately 7,000 persons who are more than 65 years of age. The various old age pension groups claim a membership in excess of 2,000. At least, these 2,000 persons would seek a pension.

To provide pensions for all applicants in Peoria alone would require an expenditure of approximately $1,000,000 a year. And if one aged person is granted a pension every other aged person in similar circumstances would have a moral right to demand like treatment.

There is no prospect that the house will approve the senate appropriation of $6,000,000, but if it should do so that sum would not suffice to care for the flood of applications the state would receive.

ONE WELCOME.

"KENTUCKY FARMER This Year Gets Crop of Fish and Potatoes from His Garden."—Headline. Fish, of course, turtles, eels, oysters, clams, lobsters, and all sorts of things like that are expected to be garnered in from farms and gardens this year. An Indiana farmer told me a few days ago that he thought his crop this year would run forty catfish, twenty pike, and fifteen small mouthed black bass to the acre. And his wife, who runs the garden, said the pike were coming up beautifully, but she didn't expect more than half a crop of catfish because of the new Canadian crop pest, the dogfish. She said the dogfish barked at the catfish and chased them all away. But what I started out to say is that I don't believe the story about the Kentucky farmer getting a crop of fish and potatoes. How come he got any potatoes? Fish, yes, but potatoes this year? Nature faker! Nature faker!

UP ON POMANDER WALK, our usually quiet little side street on the North Side (Gold Coast in newspaper idiom), some imbecile exploded giant firecrackers on the Fourth at intervals of ten or fifteen minutes all day long and far into yesterday morning. It probably happened in your neighborhood, too. What I suggest is that these patriots be rounded up before the next Fourth and sent to a psychopathic hospital and put in padded cells. At first glance it seems cruel to deprive them of their great amusement of shooting off firecrackers, but they would be just as happy if molasses were poured on their hands and they were given a few feathers to pull back and forth from one hand to the other. Thus they could have a happy time on the Fourth of July without driving the neighbors to distraction.

THE IRON EGG.

I.

This day of Brahm dim with remembered time—
This thought of Logoi heavy with the stars,
Has loosed eternity and set a chime
To indicate the alchemy of Mars.
The earth, the air, the water and the fire
Combined to make the first etheric cause,
The iron egg, the Hyperborean lyre
For cosmic reckoning and for mundane laws.

Creator-myths, virgin-ascetics, veils,
The salamander, deva, fairy, elf,
Are swift directorate set in seven scales,
And certain guide-posts to the very self.
The girdle of such zodiac shall fit

II.

With Atlantean heirlooms in my hand—
A clock without a movement in the hall,
Dynamics of the Absolute shall stand
Like arciture on an arcanum wall.
Though Paracelsus' liquor—virtue is
The essence of all being, quality,
I find in his so sudden genesis
A question of high principality.

If archetype hangs high above the soul
What of the blindness of a velvet mole
And why we ask, do some birds have a fin?
Did substance animate the burning bush

III.

If I am child then, of the fifth root race
The stuff of worlds . . . andante of the seas
Pray tell me how shall I behave in space
With monads, atoms and the Pleiades?
For I have need in exoteric night
Of primal cause, of Teachers, too, and love:
Of vehicles for universal light—
Of esoteric wisdom and a dove.

Though still I sing of angel and of Saint,
And liturgies abound on every hand,
I must have marble in exchange for paint
Primordial waters in an arid land.
Though stubborn Isis always wears her veil,

EYE INJURIES.

INJURIES to the eye have an importance which is out of all proportion to the amount of tissue destroyed. An apparently insignificant wound, if it affects a vital part of the eye, may result in serious damage to vision or even its total destruction.

The most frequent eye injuries are caused by cinders or small foreign bodies which become deposited on the eyeball or on the lids. While foreign bodies on the lids are exceedingly painful they seldom cause damage to vision and they may be removed by any one who is skilled in turning the lids and who observes ordinary aseptic precautions.

When a foreign body is lodged in the eyeball, however, its removal is sometimes a highly technical procedure. It requires a local anesthetic so that the patient will not move during the operation and delicate instruments which must be sterilized so that no infection will be carried to the sensitive tissues of the eye. A foreign body inside the eyeball should be removed as soon as possible, since the longer it remains the more deeply will it become imbedded. When it is removed promptly and carefully there should be no appreciable damage to vision.

In some cases infection may be carried into the eye by the foreign body itself and give rise to a very serious condition known as serpent ulcers of the cornea. This may result in complete loss of vision following a very painful illness. Disastrous results can be prevented in most cases by the expert removal of foreign bodies and by skilful attention to the patient after the operation. If signs of inflammation are detected early the ulcerations can be stopped.

A common cause of injuries to industrial workers, farmers, and automobile mechanics is the penetration into the eyeball of small bits of metal. Such substances inside the eye often cause its loss either by infection or by the chemical effects of the metal as it disintegrates within the eye. These particles can be detected by X-rays and if they are of steel or iron they can be removed with special electro-magnets made for the purpose. Unless the invader is very large and has caused great damage to the eye itself, good vision is retained following magnet removal. Foreign bodies which are not magnetic are very difficult to remove without causing severe damage to the eye, hence they are usually allowed to remain unless they are in an especially accessible place.

Any deep wound is likely to injure the crystalline lens of the eye, causing a condition known as traumatic cataract in which the lens becomes opaque. In such instances the opaque lens material can be removed and the vision is regained, although the patient must wear thereafter a strong lens.

Wounds which pierce the eyeball in a small proportion of cases give rise to a serious condition known as sympathetic ophthalmia, in which inflammation is transferred from the injured eye to the normal eye. Occasionally this results in the loss of vision in both eyes. Because of this danger the injured eye is not infrequently removed following a serious accident. If the injured eye has already lost its vision the surgeon is justified in insisting upon its removal even though the danger of sympathetic ophthalmia is slight.

It is obvious that many injuries to the eyes, especially by small bits of metal, can be prevented by the use of protective glasses. Most industries now recognize this and demand that their employés wear such glasses while engaged in hazardous occupations. It is not ordinarily understood, however, that automobile mechanics and farmers, when working with machinery, are in almost as great danger and that they, too, should wear glasses. Unbreakable glasses are made so that they afford almost 100 per cent protection.

In spite of much legislation and the work of safety councils in industry there remains much to be done not only in preventing eye accidents but in emphasizing the necessity of prompt, skilled management.

MUSCLE WASTING.

E. G. writes: Do the partial paralyses and muscle wasting that so often follow scarlet fever point to an attack of poliomyelitis or are they just the after-effects of this particular disease? I have known four cases in which the two effects noted have followed attacks of scarlet fever.

REPLY.

Muscle wasting may follow any severe, prolonged infection such as typhoid fever, pneumonia, scarlet fever, etc. As a rule this is a metabolism phenomenon and is not of nervous origin. If it is due to poor nutrition [low metabolism] the muscles will return to normal when the infection disappears—slowly in some cases, and more rapidly in others. If it is due to destruction of certain cells of the spinal cord muscle atrophy may be permanent.

HARDENING OF ARTERIES.

Mrs. H. W. writes: Can hardening of the arteries in the early stages be helped?

REPLY.

Much can be done. The first point of attack is the establishment of normal metabolism. Excess food, worry, and overfatgue must be avoided. More than the average amount of rest will be required, and the patient must adjust the daily tasks to his physical resistance. Good elimination must be maintained and foci of infection removed. The answer—in a nutshell—is good, sensible body hygiene. Arteriosclerosis is the result of wear and tear. We run the human machine too hard, place excess loads upon it, and the arteries are the first structures to rebel.

SKULL MAY BE FRACTURED.

M. C. writes: Several months ago I was in an automobile accident and had four stitches taken across the top of my head. Since then I have had one headache after another. Could the injury be the cause?

REPLY.

Investigate the possibility of skull fractures, as the skull may have been injured. Headaches may also be traced to adhesions between the brain coverings and the inner table of the skull.

PROBATE PROCEEDINGS.

Chicago, July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died in 1933, leaving an estate of cash, bonds, mortgage, totaling $7,800. No will was left. There were four heirs, three children who were minors, and a stepmother. In February, 1935, my grandmother, parent to my deceased mother, hired a lawyer who took the estate to court. My stepmother and her lawyer were called to court every second week until May 1, 1935. At this date her lawyer proved that the estate was hers by joint tenancy. For the three months' service my mother's lawyer took a fee of $1,500. 1. Isn't it illegal to take more than 6 per cent of the estate in Probate court proceedings? 2. Should my mother pay my grandmother's lawyer? 3. What is the legal rate which should have been charged by my mother's lawyer? 4. Who pays the administrator? 5. Who pays for witnesses brought in by my grandmother's lawyer? C. A. K.

1. Six per cent is the ordinary statutory limit for the handling of the probate proceedings, but your letter indicates that there was separate litigation.
2. Not on the bare facts stated.
3. Depends on the amount of labor involved and on other facts not before us.
4. He is paid out of the estate.
5. Depends on whether they are brought in under subpoena, on the wording of the court order with respect to costs, and on other facts that are not before us. The attorneys handling the case are in a better position to advise you than we are.

APPOINTING EXECUTOR.

Chicago, July 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a will made and in it have named one of the closed banks as executor. The conditions of the will remain the same, and I would like to know if it would still be binding, as I do not wish to make another unless necessary. H. M.

The fact that the bank is unable to act would necessitate the court appointment in the bank's place of an administrator, with the will annexed, who would have to furnish a bond. This means that your plan would presumably be carried out, but through a personal representative who was not of your choice and with a somewhat greater expense. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TRUSTEE'S DUTIES.

Rockford, Ill., July 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What are the duties of a trustee of property sold on a mortgage, split up into small bonds? That is, what legal responsibility is a trustee under, if any, to safeguard the interest of holders of such bonds? 2. Is a trustee required to give the name and address of all other bondholders for the purpose of trying to settle up defaulted payment when requested by a bondholder? I am the holder of a bond bought from a real estate firm and one of the firm is the trustee, the bond being in default for both interest and principal. I have requested the names of the other bondholders, which was refused me. Can I force trustee to furnish this information? W. J. R.

1. We assume that you mean the trustee named in the trust deed securing the so-called mortgage. A year ago we would have said that his dealings are merely nominal, being confined to holding the legal title until the obligation is paid and at that time delivering a release. Under the recent Straus case, however, the trustee has been required to assume the active duty of bidding in the property at an upset price. This procedure has not yet been passed upon by the Illinois Supreme court.
2. No, but the information could be forced by proceedings under the new amendments to the bankruptcy act. If you wish to try to force matters you should get other bondholders to join with you in employing an attorney. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

The popular belief that Pennsylvania was settled by the Dutch is quite erroneous. Pennsylvania was settled by Germans. Dutch people are not from Germany, but from Holland, and it is not correct to call a German a Dutchman. Next in number come the great number of Scotch-Irish settlers, whose descendants are still abundant. In recent years, the mining centers have attracted many Poles, Russians, Rumanians, Austrians, and Italians.

GOLFING IN THE PARK.

Chicago, June 30.—In reply to the letter of Kenneth Nelson which appeared in today's Voice of the People I, as an employé of the Chicago park district, would like to explain a few facts regarding our system of registration on the golf courses.

For years the public links in the city of Chicago had used the system as suggested by Mr. Nelson—in fact, it was the system used up until a little over ten years ago when the south park commissioners adopted the present method of time registration. The difficulties encountered were many. The greatest obstacle was the uncertainty as to the time when a player would go off the first tee. For example: A golfer would arrive at the links on a Sunday morning. Upon arriving he would be informed that two hundred players were ahead of him. As the average time required to start off that number of players would be four hours, the golfer would have to stay around the course for the entire length of time. The reason why he would have to stand by for that four hours was the fact that players oftentimes failed to show at the time their numbers were called and as a result Mr. Golfer instead of waiting four hours might only have to wait three hours. Again the time consumed in waiting was also determined by the type of golfers who were playing on the course on a given day. If the individuals were fairly good golfers less time would be consumed in getting them started than would be required to start beginners or people of mediocre golf ability.

Under the present system one-half the time reservations for a given day are placed in the time book on the Monday morning of the week in which that day appears. People who are in a position to get over to the course on a day previous to the day on which they intend to play are in a position to sign for a definite time on that day. Those individuals who are not so fortunate as to be able to visit the course on a previous day are still able to report to the course in the morning of the day on which they intend to play, and they still have the opportunity to sign the daily reservation. True, upon arriving they might be informed that there is no vacancy until three or four hours later. But when told this they know that if they sign for a definite time they can go home or wherever they please and still come back and play at the time for which they signed. The conditions that enter into numerical registration do not enter into time reservations. In the former the time of play is uncertain; in the latter it is definite.

FORECASTS.

Chicago, July 1.—The three leading economists of the twentieth century are Gen. Hugh "Braggo" Johnson, who in July, 1933, stated that through the aid of the NRA he would put 6,000,000 people back to work by Labor day of 1933; James A. "Pep-Talks" Moffet, who in July, 1934, stated that the national housing act would be responsible for starting $500,000,000 worth of building and furnishing 5,000,000 men with employment before the snow would fall in December, 1934, and Gen. Charles "RFC" Dawes, who in January, 1935, said that the depression would positively be over by July 1, 1935. JOHN J. MANGAN.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

Chicago, July 1.—The only difference I can see between the Roosevelt prosperity and the Hoover depression [patent pending] is that I had more money during the latter. X-VOTER.

FOR A SUBWAY PLANK.

Chicago, June 30.—A former platform of THE TRIBUNE to build a subway has been supplanted by the platforms, "Install Modern Street Cars" and "Introduce Suburban Service Appropriate to This Century." Recently also THE TRIBUNE'S editorials on transportation have devoted considerable space to the problems of suburban commuters, while recommending improved and more rapid suburban transportation.

While modern and more efficient street car transportation is desirable and while increased facilities should be accorded suburbanites, it is also fair to assume that residents of Chicago's outlying districts not favored by modern advances in urban passenger transportation as exemplified by the eletcrified Illinois Central, the North Shore line, and certain branches of the Rapid Transit system would also welcome more rapid 20th century transportation accommodations.

It is for these outlying sections in the northwestern and southwestern parts of our city that a subway should be constructed. City dwellers are as much entitled to speedy service in and from the loop as any one else and our first problem in transportation should be to provide modern express subway service worthy of the size and importance of our city. Let us keep our "Build a Subway" platform before our city planners. R. W. DANON.

THE WOMAN ON THE FARM.

Shumway, Ill., July 2.—It seems to me that the new economy of the postoffice will work an unfair hardship on the women of this community and some of us are on the verge of tears about it.

When the cost of postage was raised our mail service was cut and we got the mail about noon. That gave us time to read it during the heated part of the day and still keep in touch with the outer world.

Increased economy, and we are to get our mail in the late afternoon. It makes the daily papers almost useless, for one is too tired after the evening work is done to even scan the headlines.

Getting mail on a farm is the brightest period of the day, especially to the women, and it's almost tragic to take away the few pleasures a farm woman has.

Our mail carrier is a conscientious worker, but a 60 mile route is overlong on a dirt road. It means that in summer we will get our mail when we can't appreciate it, and in winter, when it must come by horses on dark wet days, we shall have to trek to the mail box with a lantern.

It seems altogether unjust, comparing this economy, which mostly affects women, with the lavish generosity the government extended to the farm men. It didn't try to economize with them, but gave them leisure and handsome checks which did some of them more harm than good.

A while back firms were urged to create jobs whether they could afford it or not, but the government works just opposite. No one has found the forgotten man yet. Why not help the neglected women? FORGOTTEN WOMAN.

QUESTION FOR LAWYERS.

Chicago, July 2.—Would it be contrary to freedom of speech or a violation of the constitution of the United States if congress passed a law forbidding malicious propaganda against any particular race, accusing an entire people of characteristics that only a few might possess—characteristics that abound in all races but overemphasized to satisfy moronic prejudices against certain races of people? INQUEST REVEALS LACK OF LAWS TO CURB FIREWORKS

Explosive Bought Outside City Limits.

The inquest yesterday into the death of Chester Bulwicki, 16 years old, 6455 Bryn Mawr avenue, who was killed July 4th by the explosion of a firecracker against his throat, indicated the lack of adequate laws to prevent the sale of these instruments of death and injury. Inquiry developed the information that fireworks manufacturers have maintained a lobby at sessions of the Illinois legislature to prevent passage of such laws.

Deputy Coroner Edward Edelstein heard testimony during the inquest, which was held at 6453 Irving Park boulevard, that Marion Bulwicki, 13 year old brother of the dead boy, had bought the firecrackers at a fireworks stand in a gasoline filling station at Nagle avenue and Gunnison street, just outside the Chicago city limits. Sale of fireworks within the city is forbidden by ordinance, but before the Fourth such stands were numerous in the county.

15 Feet from Gas Pumps.

Inasmuch as the stand was outside the limits of a city or village it was legal, according to the deputy coroner. A study of the law showed that the legislature has given cities and villages power to prevent the sale of fireworks within their corporate limits, but that counties have no power to prevent or regulate the sale of fireworks in unincorporated territory. If the city ordinance against sale of such explosives was enforced on Thursday that fact was not evident for the whole city was a bedlam of racket throughout the day.

Peter M. Kelly, chairman of the public service committee of the county board, speaking in the absence of President Clayton F. Smith, said the board had tried in the past to bar the roadside fireworks stands, but learned it was without authority to do so. Commissioner Kelly said he would sponsor a move to present a bill to the next legislature forbidding the manufacture, sale, or storage of fireworks, and he believed the county board would stand back of the movement.

"No Excuse" for Business.

"The fireworks industry should be squelched in the interest of public safety," Commissioner Kelly said. "Each year dozens of persons, mostly children, are killed or crippled for life by fireworks which are more dangerous than rattlesnakes and not as useful. There is no excuse for the continuation of businesses which deal in such silly devices as firecrackers, cannon crackers, torpedoes, and similar noise making instruments."

A bill which passed the last session of the legislature but has not yet been acted on by Gov. Horner, restricts the sale of fireworks to certain times and certain conditions. It was introduced by Senator L. C. Sieberns [Dem., Gridley.] Inasmuch as there has been no limitation in the past, the bill may be said to curb the business some what because it specifies that sales shall be legal only between June 27 and July 4, and between Dec. 20 and Jan. 2.

Senator Sieberns introduced a bill on the same subject in the session of 1933 and Gov. Horner vetoed it.

Lobby Fights Drastic Bill.

A bill introduced in that session by Senator Edward P. O'Grady and Frank McDermott, both of Chicago and both Democrats, proposed killing the sale of fireworks altogether. Senators recalled that the fireworks lobby became active. The O'Grady-McDermott bill was killed and the Sieberns bill, which was called a half-way measure, was adopted but vetoed. Therefore neither a regulatory nor a prohibitory law went on the statute books.

This year Senator Frank Huckin [Dem., Chicago] introduced a bill on the subject. It had some regulatory and some prohibitory features and was considered more drastic than the Sieberns bill. Yesterday Senator Huckin said he did not press for passage of his bill because he couldn't find much favorable sentiment for it among his colleagues. He said it was not introduced at the request of any group of persons or any organization. He said he had not noted any fireworks manufacturers' lobby at Springfield this year but remembered there was one at the previous session.

SENATOR COUZENS TO HAVE OPERATION, PHYSICIANS DECIDE

Detroit, Mich., July 5.—(AP)—Physicians attending Senator James Couzens decided today to take him immediately to the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., for an operation.

The senator has been in a hospital here several weeks for observation of a kidney ailment.

Dr. Freund said the senator's condition is not critical, and the operation is not an emergency case. He said a diabetic condition has been treated at the hospital here, but that it was considered advisable to have stones in the bladder removed.

FIREWORKS BURN BRINGS DEATH TO EVANSTON GIRL, 3

Tries to Light Punk, Clothes Fired.

A second death resulting from the use of fireworks was recorded in Chicago yesterday with three other additional fatalities accompanying the celebration of the Fourth. These four deaths increased the holiday fatality in the Chicago area to 15.

The second fireworks victim was Geraldine Patricia Rubo, 3 years old, 2717 Noyes street, Evanston. She died in the Evanston hospital last evening of burns suffered while she and her brother James, 5 years old, were striking matches to light a piece of fireworks punk.

Father Burned in Rescue.

The children's father, William, an Evanston city employé, was severly burned on the hands while extinguishing the fire in the child's clothing. James was not injured.

On Thursday Chester Bulwicki, 16 years old, 6455 Bryn Mawr avenue, was killed when a firecracker exploded against his throat. The inquest into his death was continued yesterday for further investigation of the sale of the explosives to him.

An additional automobile death and two drownings accounted for the three other July 4 fatalities not reported yesterday. The bodies of two men who went on holiday fishing expeditions were recovered from the lake at Foster avenue. They were John Dover, 55 years old, 5331 Kenmore avenue, and Thomas Burns, 45, of 5250 Sheridan road.

Seriously Injured in Dive.

John Boyd, 25 years old, 1309 West 47th street, was in a serious condition at the county hospital yesterday from a possible fractured neck. He was injured on the Fourth while diving into the lake at 49th street.

The twenty-ninth person injured by fireworks in the Chicago area was listed yesterday as George Bliss, 9 years old, 114 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park. He was severly burned as fireworks exploded in his pocket. In Morris, Ill., Fred Glancey, 35 years old, suffered the loss of his right eye after it was struck by a skyrocket.

In the entire United States a death list of 216 person had been compiled by the Associated Press as the result of July 4 accidents.

Midwest Leads Death List.

The midwest led other sections of the country with 94 fatalities. The New England states had 11, the mountain states, 10; the mid-Atlantic states, 31; the south, 28; the southwest, 28 and the Pacific states, 14.

A table showing the causes of the holiday deaths follows:

	Auto.	Drown-ings.	Fire-works.	Other causes.
New England	2	7	1	1
Mid-Atlantic	13	8	2	7
South	12	11	0	5
Southwest	17	7	1	3
Midwest	22	54	3	16
Mountain States	6	1	0	3
Pacific	11	2	0	1
Totals	83	90	7	36

The total of 216 was close to the average July 4 accidental mortality record of 233 for the previous six years. The high of recent years was 483 in 1931.

BARGE BRINGING MISSOURI RIVER WHEAT TO CITY

A barge loaded with 50,000 bushels of wheat, representing the first waterway shipment of grain from Kansas City, Mo., since the newly deepened Missouri river channel was opened three weeks ago, will arrive in Ogden slip here this morning via the Illinois waterway. The shipment is being moved by the Federal Barge line for the Farmers' National Grain corporation.

Harry Ruddeman, assistant director of soliciation for the barge line, said that opening of the channel between St. Louis and Kansas City means a saving of 20 per cent in freight costs to shippers. Trafic is being resumed the Missouri river after a dormant interval of seventeen years.

After the barge reaches Ogden slip this morning, it will move on to South Chicago for unloading at the Rock Island terminal elevator, which is operated by the grain corporation. By July 15, the 400,000 bushel terminal of the corporation at Leavenworth, Kas., will be equipped with adequate truck dumps and facilities for loading barges on the Missouri river there, which will give the corporation the first marine terminal in the Kansas City area.

DON'T BE SLAVES, LENIN'S WIDOW TELLS WOMEN

MOSCOW, July 5.—(AP)—The widow of the founder of the soviet state today told Russian women they "have not yet begun to probe the possibilities the soviet régime opened for them." Urging them not to become slaves, either to their husband or to motherhood, Mme. Nadejda Krupskaya, widow of Nicolai Lenin, added:

"The mother instinct is noble, and we consider it a great force, but we do not want our women to devote their lives only to rearing children. We do not want this or any other aspect of their married life to separate them from public work."

Girls she taught in Sunday school in 1890 have emerged from the ranks of housewives to take their place in public life, she said, in an address to the All-Union Congress of Woman Konsomols, or Young Communists, but there are relatively too few women occupying commanding positions.

Women, she said, should be taught from childhood that their purpose in life is twofold—to be good mothers and to take an active part in industrial and political activities in equality with men.

Maj. Landrum Is Ordered to Report to War College

Maj. Eugene M. Landrum, deputy chief of staf of the Civilian Conservation corps in the sixth corps area, was ordered yesterday to report to the war college in Washington on Aug. 12. Maj. Landrum is on leave at present. His post in Chicago will be filled by Capt. K. B. Bush.

Tames Bucking Ponies, but Not Husband; Asks Divorce

Santa Rosa, Cal., July 5.—(AP)—Donna Cowan tamed so many bronchos that twice she was chosen world's champion cowgirl, but in filing a divorce suit here today she asserted she could not tame her husband, Norman Cowan, a former world's champion rider and rodeo star. Mrs. Cowan charged Cowan beat her, called her "vile names," slashed her with a knife, smiled at other women, and used alcohol to excess. The divorce complaint was filed on their tenth wedding anniversary.

Prowler Escapes Through Window of Holy Name

A prowler, who was found late last night in the Holy Name cathedral, fled into the vestibule and, unable to open the door leading to State street, plunged through a window and escaped. The presence of the intruder was discovered by the Rev. George Moran, assistant rector of the cathedral. The man fled when lights were turned on.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Stories of Sinclair Lewis Are Collected.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"On What Strange Stuff," by Elisa Bialk. [Doubleday Doran.] Published yesterday.

MEMBERS of the Literary Guild are receiving two impressive volumes for July, both unique—"An Anthology of World Prose," edited by Carl Van Doren, as the regular July choice, and, as a dividend, the first, and what will probably be the only, collection of short stories from the pen of the American Nobel prize winner, "Selected Short Stories of Sinclair Lewis."

There may well never be in our day a duplicate of Mr. Van Doren's mammoth anthology, of 1,100,000 words from nineteen languages since the sixth century B. C. From every literature of what we call civilization Mr. Van Doren has chosen its prose masterpieces. [I would have said "gems" except that that word has come to be associated in our minds with something too precious, and although Mr. Van Doren has made his choices with the beauty of style as much as of content in mind, there are no purely precious bits in the book, not even the Pater].

All anthologies are, by their very existence, a reflection of the literary taste of their editors, and intelligent readers are doomed always to find in anthologies, however fine, many things which they would have omitted and to mourn for the absence of some of their favorite passages.

Mr. Van Doren's selection is so catholic, his sources so illimitable, his own taste so excellent and his volume so vast that readers will find it a wholly satisfactory compendium. It was designed as a companion piece to his brother's, Mark Van Doren's, "Anthology of World Poetry."

To me anthologies are springboards into literature as much as literature in themselves. From them one leaps, often, into a whole new and lovely life of thought.

LEWIS STORIES LACK ART

Sinclair Lewis' volume of selected short stories is unique not only because it is the first collection in book form of his short stories but because if he is a smart man he will never allow another collection like it to be printed. As a record of his work in the shorter fictional form "Selected Short Stories by Sinclair Lewis" has historic value, but as stories they are all pretty commonplace. They might have been written by any one of fifty competent popular magazine writers.

Oddly enough, they haven't anything to give a reader a hint that they come from the pen of Sinclair Lewis. None of his characteristic style, method of approach, or even his attitude toward his material.

They seem to prove that to Sinclair Lewis the short story is not an art form but an entertainment form, that, just as Arnold Bennett did, he could write with both hands, one right and one gauche, and never allow the one to influence the other.

BUT HERE'S TECHNIQUE

"Fortune and Men's Eyes" by George Cronyn has an interesting technique. It is the story of a family [parents, three sons] from the childhood of the children to their middle age, a family not so unlike another as to be eccentric, with fortunes varying from good to bad, like another. Its thesis is probably the thesis of the doctor who is making a study of human actions, normal reactions to fortune and adversity, rather than abnormal, and whose thousandth case, that of the eldest son, is interrupted by his death. Man is a strange animal, not always irrational.

Part of the book is the recorded long conversations which the second son has with the doctor, in which, after the manner of psychoanalytical records, he recites voluminous recollections of his family life. A small part of the book is the doctor's findings. A larger one is the statement by the author of the events . . . in the ordinary narrative form.

The idea is a brilliant one, and it might have resulted in a tremendous book. The result, however, is merely an excellent record which holds the reader's interest but does not [as it might have done] enthrall him. The reader might have felt, when the book was finished, that he knew its characters as he had never known characters before. He feels merely that he knows them just a little better than if the story had been in conventional narrative alone. Although Mr. Cronyn's novel is technically unsuccessful, it may be a successful novel.

THIS ONE NOT SO GOOD

As much cannot be said for a first novel by Elisa Bialk, "On What Strange Stuff," Miss Bialk is a young Chicagoan, and it would give me the greatest pleasure to be able to discover for Chicago another native daughter of the pen.

But candor forces me to say that her first novel should have been pigeonholed as an exercise instead of published as a finished work. For there isn't one character in it that has reality. They are characters "made up," not living. They do the conventional literary things whether they are unconventional, self-seeking, ambitious, or namby-pamby.

Miss Bialk has a certain zestfulness, a certain keen skill in keeping the reader interested . . . the first gift of a writer of popular novels . . . and some day she may be able to combine that gift with a real portrayal of human beings.

Their Books Are Reviewed Today

SINCLAIR LEWIS. ELISA BIALK. GEORGE CRONYN.

This week Sinclair Lewis, Nobel prize winner, offers us the first book publication of his short stories in "Selected Short Stories of Sinclair Lewis." George Cronyn presents a novel with an unusual twist in "Fortune and Men's Eyes." And Elisa Bialk submits a first novel with Chicago as background in "On What Strange Stuff." All three books are reviewed today.

London Writer Praises Works of 2 Women

Viola Meynell, Pauline Smith the Authors.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—An English novelist whose work has been delayed by an attack of neuritis in the right arm (he is evidently one who uses a pen for his work) was recently asked for a small phial of his blood for injection into the veins of the overprolific. That would be a harsh remedy for excessive fluency. But it must be admitted that some of our most interesting novelists publish far too little, just as some of our worst have altogether too much to say.

Two women will be represented in the lists of summer books who would be sure of welcome at any time, and they are authors from whom we have long expected something new and beautiful.

The first of them is Miss Viola Meynell, and the title of her novel is "Follow Thy Fair Sun" [Cape].

The second is Miss Pauline Smith, but alas her book is not the new novel for which we had hoped. It is none the less an exquisite addition to a class of books which is increasingly sought by sensitive readers. "Platkops Children" [Cape] is a series of reminiscences of childhood in South Africa. If it is not that long novel, a successor to "The Beadle," which Miss Smith returned to South Africa to finish, it is an authentic and lovely piece of work, and as such will be received with general applause.

The novel seems to be as far off completion as ever, for since her return to Africa Miss Smith has suffered more or less continuously from eye trouble, so that sustained imaginative effort has proved impossible.

Edward Thompson's new book on Sir Walter Raleigh, the Elizabethan courtier and explorer [Macmillan], has been having a curious experience. Mr. Thompson, as all know, has made a special study of life in the east, and two of his admirable novels, "These Men Thy Friends" and "Lament for Adonis," have been admired by all readers who care for the presentation in fiction of spiritual problems.

His book on Raleigh breaks, for Mr. Thompson, new ground. But it is not necessarily for that reason a bad book. Indeed, it is a very good book. But one specialist in Elizabethan affairs has apparently felt that something had to be done about Mr. Thompson's temerity, and this specialist (it is alleged), having anonymously reviewed the book in two newspapers, turned his attention to it in a signed review and wrote yet a fourth review for a fourth paper which has decided not to print it. All the reviews were contemptuous.

The problem is now posed whether any man has the right to review a book for four times over, especially in such terms as these. We are in the throes of a fierce combat. What will happen? Probably nothing, except that Mr. Thompson's book will be read for curiosity's sake.

Emil Ludwig's 'Hindenburg' Sees General as Tragedy

"Hindenburg" by Emil Ludwig [Winston] is one of the most controversial biographies of the day. The author, one of the best known biographers of our time, is a Jew. As a Jew he was banned by the Nazis. As an exiled German he looks at the one man who, to his generation embodied all of the finest traits of German character. He sees in Hindenburg's destiny a bitter tragedy, personally the tragedy of a great nature confusedly betraying what he had held most sacred; politically, the betrayal of a nation, in its devotion to him, plunged into the abyss.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK

If you lived in Great Britain you might well be rather nervous about sending your little boy away to school so deadly have the playing fields of England become. Within recent months a good half-dozen of the best detective stories have dealt with the murder of the very young in college close or preparatory school.

The newest is "A Question of Proof" [Harper] by Nicholas Blake. It is one of those readable English stories, British to the backbone, full of strange slang and slightly overwhimsical conversation but very vital and interesting, a good novel as well as a good mystery. Like any other story, it has a hero and heroine into whose romance you enter with zest.

There are also lots of people to be suspected at will and the people who get killed don't leave the world any poorer. Likewise the murderer is better dead than alive. So if you need a Sunday book run out and buy it. You will be comfortably puzzled, agreeably entertained without a really harrowing moment. The book has apparently made an enormous success in England and I expect Mr. Blake and his agreeable detective, Nigel Strangeways, will be heard from frequently.

Another story from England is "The Farm At Paranao" [Doubleday-Doran] by Laurence Kirk, which contains a mystery but is no mystery story, has moments of intense suspense but is no tale of horror. It concerns a young English girl, and a very nice and charming one, who accepts an invitation to sail on a cruise to South America with some kindly old people who want to get her away from a dull and hampered life at home. In Rio she meets a man and, behold, they are in love. Before they part, in three day's time, they are engaged to be married knowing very little of each other, nothing of each other's lives. What happens when Fanny goes out to Brazil to marry her Keith is the crux of the story.

Somehow Mr. Kirk has been able to infuse into his pleasant, smooth narrative a feeling of mounting interest and suspense. Something is wrong somewhere, but how or why keeps you guessing. The theme is truly original and a funny twist at the end increases the pervading sense of reality.

Beautiful Volumes Produced in Chicago Displayed in Store

That New York is the only birthplace of beautiful books is belied by an exhibit in the eighth floor galleries of the Davis store this week. There you may see books designed and produced in Chicago which are unrivaled. They are the work of the Lakeside Press, which incidentally prints practically all of the purely utilitarian telephone books of our metropolises.

With the books are also exhibited proofs of the illustrations which in an unusually real sense "illumine" the text. There is, for instance, that superb "Moby Dick" with the Rockwell Kent illustrations, originally published in a de luxe edition of three volumes and later, with the illustrations reduced, in one volume. There is the beautiful "Walden" illustrated by Rudolph Ruzicka, who went to live in Concord, Mass., to absorb its atmosphere.

There is "Two Years Before the Mast" made even more seaworthy by Edward A. Wilson's breezy illustrations. There is the famous "Poe's Tales" illustrated by W. A. Dwiggins, who also controled the design and typography of the book. They're the peak of the printing art, these books. Don't miss them.

The first awards in the annual Charles Hubbard Sergel play contest for American dramatists were recently announced by the University of Chicago, which administers the contest. It was open to all American dramatists and was for a full length play written since 1933 and hitherto unpublished and unproduced. The prize of $500 was divided equally between Robert Ardrey, young Chicago playwright, for his play called "House on Fire," and Emjo Basshe of New York for his play called "Thunderbolt."

More than 200 plays were submitted in the contest. The judges were Thornton Wilder, Margaret Ayer Barnes, and Frank Hurburt O'Hara, who directs dramatic activities at the University of Chicago.

Royal Figures Are Subjects of More Volumes

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

"Mary, Queen of Scotts," by Marjorie Bowen. [Putnam.]

"Son of Heaven," by Princess der Ling. [Appleton-Century.]

"Prince Charlie and His Ladies," by Compton Mackenzie. [Knopf.]

"Leopold, the Unloved," by Ludwig Bauer. [Little-Brown.]

THESE five books deal with the lives of royalty. Perhaps the most famous personage among them is the ill-fated Mary of the Scotts. Majorie Bowen and Maxwell Anderson might have a fiery debate, for the latter in his play which Chicagoans saw recently takes an opposite view from that found in this new biography. On his stage Mary is a much maligned, persecuted individual; Elizabeth, a hard, brittle, calculating, worldly woman.

In the book rather strong evidence makes Mary out an actual murderess at her worst, an opportunist and a sensualist at her best, while Elizabeth is revealed in a glow that borders on the rosy.

According to Majorie Bowen, all the long years that Mary was her prisoner Elizabeth provided her with a large retinue of servants, her own doctor and chemist, and allowed her to have access to her own friends. Elizabeth, while no saint, appears not an ogre.

Miss Bowen's account is, for the most part, unemotional and unbiased. Generally two sides of each mooted point are given, leaving the reader to draw his own conclusions. More vivid pictures of Darnley and Bothwell are created than in any other record we have come across. Also, the whole, broad, gusty panorama of the times is set forth with detail, an immense, colorful background for the action of the book.

A THWARTED LIFE

Another thwarted life is described in the beautiful narrative of Princess der Ling, called "Son of Heaven." With quiet, simple dignity and a poetic sensitivity of expression she tells of young Kwang Hsu, a ruler of China who never ruled; of the cruel, egotistic, implacable old dowager empress, Tzu Hsi, who governed him as if he were a puppet, Li Lien Ying, one of the court eunuchs, is the villain of the piece; the exquisite Pearl concubine, the wistful fragile heroine.

Although the story reads like fiction, the events described are part of history. Princess der Ling, herself a lady in waiting to the dowager empress, witnessed all the intricate, endless ceremonies and routine of life in the Forbidden City, knew its customs, its beauties, and its tragedies.

"CHARLIE" NOT SO SPICY

Compton Mackenzie writes of the young chevalier, the grandson of James II., the pretender to the English throne who swept down upon England from Scotland in 1745. The book is called "Prince Charlie and His Ladies," but it is not nearly so spicy as it sounds. Indeed, it all makes dry reading, perhaps because the narrative is so long in getting under way.

One has to take it for granted that Charles Edward has the Stuart charm, the allure that strewed his circuitous route through life with the hearts of his famous ladies.

RUPERT'S STORMY LIFE

Mr. Wilkinson tells of the brave, reckless Prince Rupert in the book of that name in much more lively fashion. He brings the breath of life to a man who is practically forgotten.

Prince Rupert was born in 1619 and reared in Holland, where his parents were in exile. He was nephew to Charles I. of England and when a young man made him a visit, so captivating him and the British people by his dashing manner, his good looks and his love of sports that he remain there most of his life.

To Rupert fighting was life itself. Soldiering was his form of self-expression. He studied it with an undying passion and led a charmed existence. The author tells of his later misunderstanding with Charles, which resulted in his leaving England and, for a time, fighting with the French on the continent.

KING OF THE BELGIANS

"Leopold the Unloved," by Ludwig Bauer, is a biography that almost writes itself. This king of the Belgians was such a gigantic, spectacular figure, such a rascal, so heartily hated in his time and for years after his death that he is simply meat for any author. Mark Twain attacked him in a satire, Cecil Rhodes called him "the devil." Only his mistresses had a good word to say for him. He had to pay for their devotion and he paid well. But that was the only sort he knew during his entire life. His wife hated him; his children feared him; his people were in awe of him as one is in awe of dynamite.

ITALY'S LEGIONS AGAIN MENACE FREEDOM OF ANCIENT ABYSSINIA

ITALY'S first invasion of Abyssinia was decisively stopped on the bloody field of Adowa thirty-nine years ago.

Today a vastly larger Italian army masses on the borders of Abyssinia. Its purpose: To add, if it can, an area six times larger than Illinois, and the most fertile region in northeastern Africa, to the sun-broiled, sandy wastes which now comprise Italy's colonial empire.

For a clear understanding of what Italy faces in order to realize this ambition, be sure to read the article, "Abyssinia Waits Zero Hour of War with Italy." You will find it, illustrated with a large color map and photographs, in the Graphic Weekly section of tomorrow's

THE TRIBUNE WILL NOT BE GAGGED!

DAVID DARRAH

He was expelled because he persisted in reporting the truth about events and conditions in a country in which the home press is gagged and the foreign press intimidated.

The Chicago Tribune will not be gagged.

Soviet Russia expelled Tribune writers because they wrote the truth about events and conditions in that country.

Today the Tribune does not maintain a correspondent in soviet Russia because it will not permit its reporters to submit to soviet dictation.

But it continues to get and to print the facts about Russia.

The Tribune will not send another correspondent to Italy to accept the handouts of the government press bureau.

It will continue, however, to get and to print the facts about Italy.

Good Morning!

Kay's "the Lady with the Badge."

George is a waiter! Not the sort you think I mean, though. He's a bridge building somebody and he waits for Kay—who works in the Travelers' Aid and is always being made late for dates by her conscientious attention to duty. And I'm telling you, he's nobody to love when first you meet the gent!

He comes barging up to Kay's desk, mad as a hornet and rude as a bargain counter shopper. He wants what he wants, and he wants it then and he doesn't want any back talk.

"Boo," finally boos Lynn Palmer. "My father can lick your father!"

Whereat Georgy Porgy [Mack Hale] recollects that Lynn's the girl he'd kissed when she was sweet fifteen. . . . And so—romance buds.

It proceeds to blossom into quite a pretty flower, though its growth is considerably hampered by dirty work on the part of racketeers—and Kay's job, to which she will not prove untrue.

The picture gets off to a nice start. It has some good, solid, caveman dialog from Mr. Brent, smiles and beauty from Miss Francis, and several amusing incidents to recommend it. [Be on the lookout for the scenes wherein the four tittering brides-to-be who no spik English utterly confound the cocky hero of the tale.]

"Stranded" has good acting throughout.

Chicagoans will be especially interested in a clever bit contributed by June Travis, whose first screen role is that of Jennie Holden—a girl whom Lynn Palmer befriends. June is none other than the daughter of Harry Grabiner, vice president of the White Sox, and if he doesn't think his daughter shows plenty of promise in this picture why then he and what is writing do not see alike. June hasn't much to do, but what she does do she puts over like a veteran.

What this movie doesn't have is a story that holds up. It sort of goes all sixes and sevens toward the end.

Urges Ban on Film Stars 'Notorious for Their Many Divorces'

Seattle, Wash., July 5.—(AP)—Dismissal of film stars, "notorious for their many divorces and the scandalous lives they lead" was advocated today by Mrs. Mary F. Larkin of New York before the Catholic Daughters of America in convention here.

Mrs. Larkin, national editor for the organization, gave her opinions off the floor after the convention had adopted a resolution criticizing Hollywood producers for allegedly indecent films and upholding the Legion of Decency.

"Stars who can act, instead of merely parading indecency, must be found," said Mrs. Larkin, "or else Hollywood will be in a bad way, indeed."

Miss Mary C. Duffy of Newark, N. J., supreme recent, and other officers were reelected.

Miss De Mille Uses Wits to Get Film Roles

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 5.—Cecil De Mille always has been known as one of Hollywood's smartest. His adopted daughter, Katherine De Mille, is smart, too. Young Miss De Mille, who has been making great upward strides as a film actress in the last two years, today fessed up to a clever system for keeping herself and her acting abilities before the Paramount studio directors and executives.

The confession climaxed a studio "investigation" as to why Katherine De Mille was appearing so many times in screen tests made of other actresses and actors. Katherine stepped forward when she heard the inquiry was embarrassing some of the studio staf. She said she had worried the casting director and Phyllis Loughton, the studio's dramatic coach, into allowing her to "feed," the lines to and play scenes with all the young hopeful males who were being tried out for their fitness for parts.

In this way she made sure that nobody in a director's, supervisor's, or producer's position around the studio could possibly forget her. "It worked splendidly," she says; "I got two very good rôles in that manner."

Randolph Scott, who hasn't played golf for a year, shot a 71 this week. He's prouder of that than the good reviews accorded him, as well as Helen Gahagan, for "She."

Henry Guttmann, now being prosecuted in a sensational Los Angeles trial on charges of spending $40,000 belonging to the wealthy widow, Mrs. Blanche Sewell, got his Hollywood start about three years ago as a secretary. Guttmann testified he was drawing $22 a week as secretary when Mrs. Sewell offered him $300 a month to become her dancing companion.

Heather Angel and her husband, Ralph Forbes, found their new home, which nestles against their hillside, being invaded by field mice, which is an old California custom with the field mice. Ralph wanted to strew poison, but Heather thought that cruel, so she made him promise to catch them in traps.

Thavin's Band Draws Throng to Grant Park

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It is the policy of the planners of the concerts in the band shell of Grant park to make frequent changes of attraction, and so last night A. F. Thaviu and his band took possession of the stage vacated the night before by the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Once again a large attendance is to be recorded, not so great as that of the holiday night twenty-four hours before, an attendance which can be possible only on a holiday night, but enough to justify fully all the hopes and efforts of the promoters.

Mr. Thavin, an active, not to say energetic wielder of the baton, has a good band at his command, and he would seem to have expert knowledge of band capabilities and band music. A transcription of Wagner's "Tannhaeuser" Overture moved along at a brisk pace and developed itself into a stirring climax. Elsewhere the program consisted of lighter numbers which were equally well played and with the same depth of resonant tone. Mr. Thaviu was generous but not too lavish with encores.

Three singers assisted in making the concert a pleasant one. Frieda Savini, soprano, appeared in place of Marjorie Livingston, announced but indisposed, and with her were Henry Thompson, tenor, and Milo Luka, baritone. Mr. Luka first sang the "Pagliacci" Prologue, and in response to vigorous applause added D'Hardelot's "Because."

The three singers concluded the first part of the program with the final scene from "Faust." A Neapolitan song was on a later part of the program for Mr. Thompson, and still later the duet from the fourth act of "Il Trovatore" for Miss Savini and Mr. Luka.

The Chicago Grand Opera company orchestra will play tonight under the direction of Henry Weber who is one of the conductors of that organization and also the conductor of the WGN orchestra. Two movements from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, Ippolitoff-Ivanoff's "Caucasian Sketches," the overture to "Mignon," by Thomas, and Cahbrier's "Espana" are among the leading numbers.

Eleanor La Mance, mezzo-soprano of the opera company, will be the soloist. She will sing an aria from "Samson and Delilah" and also Romberg's "Desert Song" and Schreier-Bottger's "Tango delle Rose."

A number of extra features are to be added to the concert series in the immediate future. Thus on next Monday night, during the intermission of the Max Bendix band, Ted Fio-Rito, his orchestra, and soloists will put on a group of special numbers.

Other similar entertainment features are under negotiation.

Claims Ford House Is Not Birthplace of Foster, Composer

Glen Ridge, N. J., July 5.—(AP)—Home—that precious spot of which Stephen Foster sang so tenderly, became the center of controversy today.

John Tasker Howard, Glen Ridge biographer of the composer, questioned the authenticity of the structure dedicated yesterday at Henry Ford's Dearborn village of Americana as Foster's birthplace.

Charging that the house never heard the first unmusical cries of the genius who was to write those smash hits "The Old Folks at Home" and "My Old Kentucky Home," Howard said the birthplace of Foster in Pittsburgh was razed. A memorial home presented to Pittsburgh in 1914 by James H. Park now stands on the site, he said.

"Ford's agents," Howard said, "seem to have overlooked documentary evidence available in Pittsburgh archives showing that the lot on which the house now maintained by the city stands, was actually occupied by William B. Foster, Stephen's father."

Miss Bowen to Entertain for Two Buds

BY JUDITH CASS.

PARTIES for the girls who will be debutantes next season are making the summer very gay for the girls and their beaux who are spending the summer in Lake Forest, and subdebs, who soon will be full fledged debs, are having more than a taste of the gayety and busy life that will be theirs when they officially become young ladies.

Next Saturday night Miss Gwendolyn Bowen, who made her debut early last season at a supper-dance at the Lake Forest residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen Jr., will be hostess at a dinner at her parents' home for two of next season's buds, Miss Clarice Hamill and her cousin, Miss Peggy Clow.

The Bowens' young people's parties have been famous for years, for from the time "Gwennie" was old enough to have dancing parties given for her, her mother and father have given her a party every summer. It always is one of the very nicest of the many that Gwen and her contemporaries enjoy each year, so Miss Hamill and Miss Clow and their friends who are invited to the party next Saturday are looking forward to it with keen anticipation.

Miss Hamill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill, will be one of the first of next season's buds, for she is to be presented at a supper-dance at her parents' Lake Forest home, Centaurs, on Sept. 14. She was graduated from the Ethel Walker school at Simsbury, Conn., this last spring. A bit later in the summer she will go to Colorado for several weeks.

No date for Miss Clow's debut has been announced yet by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kent S. Clow, but her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow, gave her a dinner-dance recently at their home, Wyndwold, in Lake Forest. She spent last winter with Miss Stout's Traveling school abroad.

Nancy Forgan Will Bow Dec. 21.

Saturday, Dec. 21, is the date chosen by Mr. and Mrs. James B. Forgan for their daughter, Nancy's, debut. They plan to give her a dinner-dance at the Casino that night and introduce her formally to society at the same sort of affair in which they introduced their elder daughter, Louise, two seasons ago. Miss Louise made her debut at a dinner-dance at the Casino on Dec. 23, 1933.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hixon and Mr. and Mrs. John Coleman were joint hosts with Mr. and Mrs. Forgan, for Miss Peggy Hixon and Miss Beth Coleman made their debuts at the same time.

Miss Nancy and her mother are in the east for this month visiting in several places, but principally in Eastport, Me. Mr. Forgan and Miss Louise are occupying the apartment at the Onwentsia club the Forgans have for the summer, their own house in Lake Forest being rented, but they probably will join Mrs. Forgan and Nancy in the east for August. The debutante of the family was graduated from Chatham Hall early in June.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Doering and their daughter, Miss Nancy, and their son, Edmund J. III., are spending the summer in the Forgan house in Lake Forest.

Their daughter, Edna, and her husband, George Peck Earling, who live in Milwaukee, are at Oconomowoc for the summer, and their other daughter, Virginia, and her husband, Martin Stevenson, who moved here not long ago from the east, have an apartment at 1120 Lake Shore drive.

Two Weddings on Calendar Today.

Proving that June has no monopoly on romantic events, the first Saturday in July is ushered in today with two weddings of interest.

In the presence of their immediate families and a few of their intimate friends, Miss Cynthia Wilson and Dr. Beverly C. Compton of Baltimore will be married at 5 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of St. Chrysostom's church.

At the same hour Darwin P. Kingsley Jr. of New York will take Miss Elizabeth Eckhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy B. Eckhart, as his bride in a ceremony in the living room of the Eckhart home in Kenilworth.

Dr. Dudley S. Stark, rector of St. Chrysostom's, will read the service for Miss Wilson and Dr. Compton and then there will be a small reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Wilson, 1516 State parkway.

Mrs. Randall Compton of Baltimore, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, will be the bride's only attendant and Mr. Compton will serve his brother as best man. The ushers will be John P. Wilson Jr., Thomas Hughes of Philadelphia, Dr. Robert L. Moore of Dallas, Tex., and Francis Symington of Baltimore.

Dr. Compton and his bride will leave this evening on a wedding trip that is to take them to Europe for the summer. In the fall they will return to make their home at 203 Thornhill road, Baltimore.

Besides the members of the bridal party the only out of town guests here for the ceremony are the bride's mother, Mrs. A. Wilder Brown of New York City, and Dr. Compton's mother, Mrs. Kay Compton of Baltimore.

Buffet Luncheon for Bridal Party.

Before the wedding of Miss Eckhart and Mr. Kingsley, Mrs. Grant Ridgway will entertain the bridal party at a buffet luncheon at her home in Kenilworth.

Miss Hope Kingsley, sister of the bridegroom, is here to attend Miss Eckhart as maid of honor. The brides-

Hair Styles of Other Days Inspire Modern Chic

Two coiffures, inspired by the fashions of the early part of this century, have all the elements of the 1935 chic that has a touch of the quaint. Left: Over an almost imperceptibly curled fringe a topknot of curls has pansies tucked in the center front. Right: Definite ringlets form the forehead fringe and cluster upward from each ear. The top cluster of curls is held in place by a narrow black velvet ribbon.

Sunday Tribune to Have List of Party Victors

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

You youngsters seem enthusiastic about our movie party. From a mountain of mail I finally emerged with 100 winning letters. I was sorry that I couldn't take three or four hundred of you, because there were so many good letters.

But just you wait till you see THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE—it has good news for every one! It will contain the names of the youngsters who've won invitations to our party at the Roosevelt theater next Thursday, when we'll see "Ginger."

It will also bring the extra good news about our party the following week, and the chance of winning an invitation to THAT!

"Dear Sally: When I saw that you were going to bring 100 kids to see 'Ginger' at the Roosevelt I sat down and tried to write as best a letter that I could. I sure wish I could see 'Ginger' because I was always waiting for this kind of a picture with Jane Withers. I saw her in 'Bright Eyes' and I thought she was swell. Everybody says that she will be away better in this picture. To make it better, Jackie Searle plays in it with Jane, which will make it double good.

"I sure hope I can be with you and the fifty boys because I know you are going to have a swell time. Sincerely yours, V. H."

Pajama Outfits in Three Pieces Please Traveler

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Travel tips for the outbound vacationists. Some three piece pajama outfits that are the last word in comfort and smartness make ideal traveling companions wherever and however you go.

The dotted heavy crêpes have backgrounds of navy, brown and stunning dubonnet red, cheerfully splattered with cool white dots the size of a nickel. The long sleeved pajama jacket is cut and tailored in the same manner as the severe masculine trousers. Then there is a long coat also with pockets and a tie sash that can be worn over other lounging outfits if you wish. All this spotted smartness in the three piece is yours for a very moderate sum.

If you want short sleeves you'll vote for the less expensive trios of striped silk and dark but good looking color combinations and contrasts. The tuck in top has the short sleeves and the long robe has the pockets and long sleeves. Another short sleeved top combine uses dark printed materials for the same three piece practical lounging or travel pajamas. They are as decorative as they are practical and again the price tag will make you smile.

In the same shop is another good discovery, a new satin nightgown as a consolation buy for the stay at homers. It buttons down the front with tiny pearl buttons the same shade as the satin, it has a wide, full billowing skirt with a train, and a gouged out backline and wide shoulder effects. It looks like some of the evening gown creations Joan Crawford wore in her last picture. You have your choice of four colors—orchid, tea rose, baby blue and a fascinating off-white tone called dove.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—The movie studio hairdresser is a personage. You may be one of the biggest names on the lot, but you don't argue with him; what he says goes. He has this freedom of the locks because his contribution to the success of a picture isn't a small one.

And, come to think of it, the hand and the eye that mold the coiffure of a movie star may mold the coiffures for a million other women. No one can deny that hair styles have their birth in Hollywood.

We went the other night to the preview of Greta Garbo's latest picture, "Anna Karenina." If this film doesn't give added impetus to the trend toward quaint hair arrangement, delectably feminine and immensely becoming, we miss our guess by a thousand miles.

Garbo, in her rôle as the tragic Anna, is bequeathed a forehead fringe that descends almost to her lovely brows and puffs out high above her hidden hairline. The ears are revealed and the back hair hangs straight to the shoulders. This length in back we must confess we're a bit afraid of. Garbo can get away with it, but the rest of us had better not be too liberal in copying it. But in one shot the hair is piled high, the fringe remains, and the whole coiffure is bedecked with white flowers. The effect, as they actually say out here in movieland, is "colossal"!

Maureen O'Sullivan, also in the picture, has side curls like those your great-garndmother wears in the heirloom daguerrotypes. You might try this some time, if you're the piquant type with lovely eyes and a pretty forehead.

All of the hair styles in this picture are necessarily quaint in feeling—but they have charm and an inviting adaptability to modern costumes. We'll be seeing something similar, probably wearing it.

The hairdresser flourishes in these parts. It's the ambition of every star to have a coiffure that sets her off to perfection; it's a matter of pride to have one that isn't commonplace. And it's a matter of good business to take excellent care of her hair, to keep it healthy and brushed to a beautiful luster. There isn't one of us, with the yen to make the most of ourselves, who couldn't well take a leaf out of her profitable book.

Front Views and Profiles

TRUTH is stranger than fiction note. A prominent Chicago lawyer was attorney for a rich Chicago manufacturer and was at his bedside when he died several years ago. Just before he died the old man asked his attorney to take charge of a battered old suitcase that was under his bed [he had fallen ill away from home] and deliver it to his family. After the client's death the lawyer took a train for home, taking the suitcase with him and delivering it to a redcap at the station along with his other luggage. On the train he had it stowed under the seat. Only when he delivered the suitcase to the family did he learn what it contained. It held $1,000,000 in currency.

THE conundrum a friend of ours goes about asking people concerns two friends who met after not having seen each other for twenty years. In the course of the conversation one said to the other: "Perhaps you do not know it, but I have been married since I saw you last, and this is my daughter."

The friend smiled at the child, then asked:

"What is your name?"

"My name is the same as my mother's," the child answered.

The Ortega Feud

By Marie De Nervaud

SYNOPSIS.

Chris Jackson is sent by Bill Benton, new sheriff of Monterey county, to put an end to the Ortega-Alvado feud, which has resulted in numerous murders. Both families believe California to be still Spanish and want Americans kept out. On arrival Chris encounters Guido Ortega, Ramon, his dare-devil son, and Ysabel, his beautiful, sad-eyed niece. He falls in love with Ysabel at first sight and has a quarrel with Ramon and publicly spanks him. Chris outfits himself for a supposed lion hunting trip. He receives a note sent by messenger from Ysabel Ortega hinting of a mysterious danger, begging his aid and asking him to meet her in a fortnight. Chris camps in a canyon on the northern boundary of the Alvado ranch. A shot from an unseen hand gives him warning to leave. He is saved by Rocky, an old Indian hunter, who advises him to leave the country. Next day Chris meets Francesca Alvado, flirtatious Spanish beauty, who warns him her father welcomes no strangers. Chris tells her of his encounter with Ramon Ortega. It gains him entrée to the Alvado ranch. Guido Alvado invites Chris to a rodeo to be held in a week. During the rodeo the warring families hold a traditional three day truce. Ysabel Ortega is facing a forced marriage with her cousin Ramon. Her uncle refuses to tell her the secret of her birth, as he had promised to do on her eighteenth birthday. She tries to escape from the ranch, but every road is guarded. She meets Rocky and appeals to him. He promises to delay the priest's coming until after the rodeo. Ysabel returns home, trusting in Rocky's assistance. Chris, masquerading as Rocky, comes to the Ortega ranch. He is seen by Ysabel. Ysabel rescues him. She warns him all exits from the ranch are guarded. He manages to escape after an encounter with two of the vaquero guards, in which he picks up one of their knives. He calls at the Alvado ranch. They become suspicious of him and he is forced to remain with them an unwilling guest, under threat of his life.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

A HOSTAGE.

"You are making a big mistake," Chris said quietly, "but you hold the trump cards, and I am left no alternative other than to accept your hospitality. I do not choose to be threatened into leaving the country. I ——"

He was interrupted by running footsteps in the hall, and the next minute Francesca burst into the room, and darting to her father, thrust a piece of paper into his hand.

"Padre!" she gasped, "José! Read! They have taken him prisoner!"

In an electric silence they all waited while Señor Alvado read the paper Francesca had brought him. Guido and Roberto, who had withdrawn to one end of the room during the discussion between Chris and the señor, came quickly to his side and read the note over his shoulder.

The next second the room rang with Spanish oaths, and the two younger men started for the door when they were abruptly halted by the stentorian tones of Señor Alvado.

"Wait!" His harsh voice matched the fury of his distorted expression. "Is this thing true?" His glance flashed from Guido to Francesca.

"It is true that José is in the Ortegas' hands," Francesca answered hysterically; "that is all that matters!"

"It is not all that matters!" her father thundered. "This note says that he was trespassing! That he tried to force his way into the house to see Ysabel Ortega! What do you know about it?"

He faced Francesca with an implacable sternness that made her shrink back a step.

"I know nothing about it, padre, except—yes—this. Ever since the last rodeo, when Ysabel was here, José has been infatuated with her; and, knowing that she was back at the ranch, he may have—you know how hot headed and impulsive he is, padre! Whatever he has done, we must go to his rescue!"

Señor Alvado turned from Francesca and read the note in his hand once more. When he looked up from it his expression was even more dark and forbidding.

"It is my express order that no one shall cross the boundaries of the ranch." His gaze swept the four young people before him. "José has chosen to do the unforgivable thing. He must take the consequences."

"Padre! You can't mean that!" Francesca broke out, but her father silenced her with a look and turned to leave the room.

At the door he paused.

"One more thing—I do not want this mentioned to any one. At the rodeo we will explain that José has been unexpectedly called away." He looked sternly at Chris. "Even though you do not consider yourself bound by the laws of hospitality, señor, may I ask you to give your word that you will not speak of what you have just heard?"

Chris hesitated a moment, then said: "I will; after all, that's your affair, not mine."

"Thank you, señor," Señor Alvado inclined his head in recognition of Chris' promise, "but on one point you are mistaken. It is not my affair; it is José's!"

With this parting word he left them.

"Guido! We must do something!" Francesca turned dramatically to her brother. "We can't leave José there!"

"What can we do?"

"Why, go over there, of course, and get him," Chris exploded. "Come along; I'll help you."

"Wait! It is not so simple as that!" Francesca put a restraining hand on his arm, with a grateful look for his impetuosity. "You do not know my father! He would never forgive us if we disobeyed him. No; we must find some way to help José without going ourselves."

"Let me go then," Chris offered.

"You would never live to get there," Francesca answered. "It is no idle threat of my father's that you must stay here. O, why did José go!" she ended tragically.

"Because he is in love!" Roberto took part in the discussion for the first time. "A man will commit any folly when he is in love!"

"And Ysabel Ortega? Is she in love with José?" For the life of him Chris couldn't help asking this question.

"Who knows?" Francesca shrugged. "It is said that she is engaged to Ramon Ortega, but she is so quiet and reticent that you never know anything about her. But all that is beside the point! Even though they promise José will be safe, we——"

"Did that note say that?" Guido broke in eagerly. "I didn't have time to read to the end. How did you get it, anyway?"

"I was sitting by the window when it was suddenly pushed through and fell into my lap." Francesca explained. "I haven't the faintest idea who brought it. I rushed in here the minute I had read it. It was from Señor Ortega and was diabolically clever in implying that José was there with father's knowledge. Then it said that José would be safe until after the rodeo, when negotiations could be entered into."

"It all sounds crazy to me!" Chris burst in. "You mean to say Señor Ortega would have the nerve to come to the rodeo while he was keeping the son of his host a prisoner at his ranch?"

"Of course he will come," Francesca answered. "And by keeping José as hostage he will have the whip hand over my father. That is what makes him so furious; he will never forgive José!"

"Why don't you kidnap Ramon, as a reprisal?" Chris suggested. "It strikes me two can play at that game. Wait until he shows up here at the rodeo and then——"

Chris was interrupted by horrified exclamations that chimed in as one.

"You don't understand," Guido explained. "Every one is bound by the most solemn oaths to keep the peace during the rodeo!"

"But you don't call it keeping the peace to take José prisoner, do you?" Chris demanded, more and more confused by the extraordinary manifestations of the sense of honor of these people, who would justify committing murder but would not break their tradition.

"That happened before the rodeo," Guido answered.

"Then why not go over and grab Ramon now?" Chris refused to be downed, "then, that will make the odds even!"

Guido shook his head. "That would be impossible. Ramon would not be fool enough to take a chance after this. If, however, the Ortega word is given in writing that José will be safe until after the rodeo he will be safe. I cannot imagine what the señor means by 'negotiations.'" He looked inquiringly at Francesca. "What negotiations could there be between the Alvados and Ortegas?"

"None," Francesca answered decisively, the worried look still in her eyes, "but, anyway, we have until after the rodeo. Then, if the padre still refuses to forgive José, we must find a way to rescue him." She turned to Chris with a sudden dazzling smile. "We are not making your first evening with us too gay, señor!" She glanced at her brother and Roberto. "Let us forget everything in a game of cards. You play, of course, Señor Chris?"

"Very seldom." Chris pretended not to notice her use of his first name as an overwhelming impatience with the whole situation swept over him. He'd be hanged if he'd spend the rest of the evening playing cards and flirting with Francesca! If they chose to make him a virtual prisoner he at least didn't have to assume the obligations of a guest. "If you'll excuse me I think I'll go to my room. I've been having a strenuous two days and sleep sounds pretty good to me."

Without waiting to see the effect of his refusal, Chris pulled open the door and made his way across the court to his room.

"They're all as loco as a bunch of prairie dogs," he muttered as he struck a match to light the candle on the table by the window. "If it wasn't for Ysabel I'd clear out before this crazy rodeo comes off!" He gave a sudden laugh as he went back to the door and closed it. "Only I probably wouldn't, at that," he amended, "because, believe me, it's going to be some rodeo!"

Miss Bowen to Entertain for Two Buds

Clarice Hamill, Peggy Clow to Be Guests.

maids will be her three sisters, who are Mrs. Donald H. McLaughlin of Cambridge, Mass.; Mrs. James R. D. Stephenson Jr. of Winnetka, and Mrs. Thomas Roswell Coyne, whose home is in Kenilworth.

John Kingsley will serve his brother as best man. Ushering will be James H. Douglas, Mr. Stevenson, Kent Mitchell, and Warren Ege of Minneapolis, Minn.

There are a number of other out of town guests here for the wedding. Of course the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Darwin P. Kingsley of New York, is one of them. The others are Mrs. William Kies of New York, who lived in Chicago at one time; Robert Dougherty of Bethlehem, Pa., and William Ingalls of Evansville, Ind., both friends of the bridegroom, and Miss Martha Emery of Bethlehem, Pa.; Miss Sarah Johnston of New York City, Miss Louise S. Klein of Grosse Pointe, Mich.; Miss Elizabeth Tucker of Newton Center, Mass., and Miss Marion Cunningham of Evansville, Ind., all of whom were Vassar classmates of the bride.

Dr. Herbert Willett of the Kenilworth Union church will read the service and then there will be a reception for all of those attending the ceremony. After this Mr. Kingsley is taking his bride to Honolulu on a wedding trip. Upon their return they will occupy a house at 127 East 94th street in New York City.

Farewell Party Tomorrow for Mrs. Valentine.

The Passavant hospital instead of Valmay Cottage, her summer place at Southampton, Long Island, N. Y., was Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine's destination when she left her apartment on Lake Shore drive a week ago Thursday, but she plans now to leave for the east next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour, are giving her a little farewell luncheon tomorrow at their home in Lake Forest. Today is Mr. and Mrs. Armour's seventeenth wedding anniversary but they have made no plans for celebrating it with any sort of entertaining.

The Misses Katherine and Martha Carr, who came to Chicago on the sad errand of attending their mother's funeral and have been staying with their uncle, Robert F. Carr, at 209 Lake Shore drive, left last night to visit relatives in Vancouver. Upon their return, Aug. 1, they will leave for Europe with their father, George R. Carr, sailing on the President Roosevelt Aug. 7. They will go directly to Salzburg for the music festival.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Laflin left Lake Forest yesterday for Cleveland to join Mrs. Laflin's parents, the John M. Kennedys of Pittsburgh, for a week's cruise of the Great Lakes aboard a freighter.

Mrs. Charles G. Dawes to Stay on Ranch.

Mrs. Charles G. Dawes with her two daughters, Virginia and Mrs. Melvin Ericson, and her granddaughter, Caroline Ericson, are arriving in Buffalo, Wyoming, today where they will spend two to three weeks on the H F Bar ranch.

This is the first summer the Dawses have visited the ranch but this is the tenth summer for Mrs. George T. Horton and her daughter, Heath, who arrived in Buffalo last Wednesday. The Hortons will be away the entire summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Perkins left on Thursday to motor to Duxbury, Mass., where they have taken a house for July and August.

Miss Helen Gilbert has started on a long and exciting trip of four months' duration. She left Tuesday for the east where she will visit relatives of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Huntly Gilbert. On July 25 she will board an American freighter which travels along the northern coast of Africa, touches Greece and follows the Mediterranean to Constantinople.

Mr. and Mrs. John Church will arrive in Chicago today from their honeymoon in Bermuda and will occupy the Eugene Swigart apartment at 170 East Pearson street for the summer. Mrs. Church is the former Miss Josephine Marks, niece of Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Taylor.

Janet Gregory to Tour England.

Miss Janet Gregory, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen S. Gregory of Northfield, has sailed for England, where, with a group of students, she will make a walking and bicycling tour of England. Janet will return early in September to resume school at Chatham Hall in Virginia.

Mrs. Austin Pardue and Mrs. Donald Williams, who have been visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Klotz of Kenilworth, have returned to their homes in Minneapolis.

Miss Elizabeth Rumsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Rumsey, and her aunt, Miss Minnie May Rumsey of Lake Forest, are sailing tomorrow on the Montcalm. They will spend two months in the British Isles.

Bound for foreign ports are former Justice Floyd E. Thompson of the Illinois Supreme court and his family. The Thompsons and their daughter Mary Ellen sailed last Saturday on the Rotterdam for the North Cape and Mediterranean and in and about the Scandinavian countries.

As a graduation present for her daughter Jane, who has just finished at the University of Chicago, Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine is taking her to the North Cape. They sailed last Saturday and upon their return will complete the summer at Green Meadow, the Valentine home at Ashland, Mass.

Mrs. John Valentine and her children went east recently to be at Green Meadow with the senior Mr. Valentine and young Joseph W. Valentine, who has just finished his first year at Harvard. John Valentine, Joseph's older brother, will join his wife in the east later this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Cherry of Kenilworth and their children, Walter Jr. and Isabelle, will sail from New York today on the Santa Paula with San Francisco as their destination. Contrary to a popular notion that the southern trip is very hot this time of the year, travelers have found it delightfully cool and invigorating.

Thurman-Fentress Wedding in East.

Of interest in Chicago is the marriage announcement of Miss Harriet Thurman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Thurman of Summit, N. J., to Carroll Dee Fentress, son of Mrs. Charles H. Fentress and the late Mr. Fentress of Richmond, Va., because the bride and bridegroom will live in Whiting, Ind., and because they both have many friends and relatives in Chicago.

They were married on June 29 at the home of the bride's parents and now are on a wedding trip through the New England states. The bride was graduated from Radcliffe college in 1934 and the bridegroom attended the University of Richmond for a year and received his B. S. degree in chemical engineering from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1934 and his M. S. degree last month.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford W. Barnes and Miss Lilace Reid Barnes will be at home this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock to observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of Glen Rowan, their home in Lake Forest. The Sunday Evening Club choir will give a musical program. Mr. Barnes is president of the club.

BY MARY MEADE.

Our thanks to the friendly gentleman who sent in a German pancake recipe. We have sent his recipe for "Deutscher Pfannenkuchen," the German version of the omelet, to Mrs. A. M. G. of Thornton, who was asking for such a recipe, and trust that she will find it the one she was seeking.

And now for a few of the week's teasers. The first comes from Miss B. O'F. of Chicago, who asks for "a recipe for candy coated fresh strawberries. It seems that the coating was fondant. . . ." A regular fondant recipe coats fresh berries nicely, we find, when first melted over hot water. Any standard recipe book should provide the original recipe, so we're sending it to you, but not reprinting it here. The strawberries are particularly attractive if not completely dipped. The green hulls may be left on and merely the lower tip of the berries coated. If you like, a few drops of mint flavoring may be added to the fondant. A second possibility is that you may coat the berries similarly with an icing made from confectioner's sugar.

"Just what is 'new' cabbage?" writes Miss M. K. of St. Joseph, Mich. When using that term in this column we refer to the cabbage which matures in spring and early summer. It is characterized by a deeper green color and a smaller head than the early fall or winter varieties. It is crisp and tender, less compact than the later cabbages, and does not keep particularly well.

"Does a broken mayonnaise have to be thrown out, or is there some way of making it smooth and usable?" queries Miss M. H. M. of Ames, Ia. A mayonnaise that has broken from the addition of too much oil, from overheating, drying of the surface, freezing, or jarring is far from a loss, if you don't mind a few minutes longer in the kitchen. The procedure is this: Take a fresh egg yolk or a tablespoon of either vinegar or water and slowly add the broken mayonnaise to it, beating just as vigorously as you did in first making the mayonnaise. The emulsion will be reformed and the mayonnaise just as smooth as ever.

"My two best angel food cake recipes ask different amounts of cream of tartar for the same measure of egg whites," writes Mrs. A. J. P. of Milwaukee. "Is there any advantage in increasing the amount?" The results of increasing the amount of cream of tartar in angel food are to make it more tender and whiter. An angel food made with a proportionately small amount is more yellow in color and tends to be more tough. There is, however, a disadvantage to putting in too much cream of tartar. A slightly acid or bitter flavor may result.

Ways to use cottage cheese are requested by Mrs. R. L. of Geneva City, Wis. Of the several we're sending her we picked this one as being worthy of more widespread publicity. It makes an excellent main dish salad for luncheon and, although simple, it has distinction of flavor and appearance. Ripe firm tomatoes are hollowed first and the insides lightly rubbed with salt. Into the cavities goes a mixture of cottage cheese and split toasted almonds, and over the topping of mayonnaise a few more toasted almond slivers are sprinkled.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

SMOTHER PLAY.

I have seen the so-called smother play a hundred times in thirteen card problems. The contract was invariably five in a minor suit, and South would always hold the Q J 10 of trumps; North, the ace, third. It was not until the other evening that I actually saw the play unfold like a flower before me—and in a major suit, at that.

NORTH
♥K-4-3
♦9-7-4

WEST	EAST
♠Q-6-3-2	♠9
♥Q-J	♥10-8-7-5-2
♦A-K-6	♦Q-10-5-3-2

SOUTH
♠J-10-8-7-4
♥A-9-6
♦J-8
♣A-K-10

The bidding:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
Pass	Pass	1 Sp.	Pass
3 Sp.	Pass	4 Sp.	Pass
Pass	Pass

West cashed the ace and king of diamonds, and played a third round of the suit, which South ruffed. A spade was played to the ace, and South hand reëntered with a club to take the jack of spades finesse. The jack held, but the bad distribution was disclosed. South abandoned the trump suit and set about other matters.

Two more clubs—the king and queen—left West with the high jack. The ace and king of hearts were played, dropping the queen and jack, and East was thrown in with the ten spot of the suit. At this point, the following situation had materialized:

NORTH
♥None
♦None
♣6

WEST	EAST
♠Q-6	♠None
♥None	♥None
♦None	♦Q-10
♣None	♣None

SOUTH
♥None
♦None
♣None

East, perforce, returns a diamond. South trumps. If West chooses to undertrump, the club is discarded from the board and the queen of spades drops under the king. If West overruffs, North overruffs also, and South takes the last trick with the eight of spades.

The contract cannot be defeated, the way the cards lie.

Child Reflects Attitudes of Adult World

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Some grown people have the faculty of making almost any child self-conscious.

"O, what a darling little boy you are!" exclaimed a perfectly intelligent woman the other day when a small child came into the room where she was visiting. And as she went on talking to him in that strain a self-conscious look came over his face and his attractive naturalness vanished.

Over a period of years I have been observing a teacher who possesses this faculty of robbing children of their free naturalness to a high degree. I'm sure she doesn't realize what she is doing, and, oddly enough, several principals who have engaged her do not see this attitude toward her pupils. In her case it is a question, I believe, of wanting her personality to register with the children—whether they are boys or girls, whether they are young children or in their teens. She centers interest in a personal way on the child or on herself. I have seen the most natural of children change in the atmosphere she creates, both in school and home surroundings. Her saving grace is that she does really like children.

Children reflect your attitude. I recently saw a small boy unwittingly illustrate this in the short space of about half an hour. First, he was teased and laughed at—to which he responded by being "smart alecky" or "fresh." Next, he was talked to and admired and gushed over so that he watched for the effect his little sallies produced and became thoroughly self-conscious. And, last, a few minutes later, he turned into a friendly, intelligent, natural child because his grownup friend and he found so many interesting things to do and talk about that were not highly personalized or centered on him.

And this last relationship was not an impersonal one. I don't believe in this exaggeratedly cool and impersonal attitude toward children so often recommended. Warmth is necessary to their emotional life as it is to their physical one.

What children are and the way they act is determined largely by your attitude toward them.

If you have a shy child, our fully written booklet on the subject may interest you. It wiwll be sent on receipt of a stamped, self addressed envelope.

Summer Is Perfect Season to Attain Slender Figure

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Summer unquestionably is the best time of year for getting your figure back to normal. It's the best time of year, too, for whipping your complexion into shape. To a large extent these two reforms go together, for the fasting involved in reducing is bound to improve the tone of the coarse, spotty skin. I speak of the oily type of skin, with its accompanying skin miseries, such as blackheads, enlarged pores, and general gross appearance, not the thin, finely grained skin. It's the former type of skin one finds invariably, however, with overweight.

Gross eating coarsens the skin, as any reliable dermatologist will tell. An annoyance common to the overweight is constipation, which affects the skin woefully. So, if you want to do a two in one job, get on your reducing diet right now. The face, as you know, is the barometer of the stomach. And you can improve the complexion even more than the figure on an occasional day's fasting or on a day of fruit juice or other liquid. The clogged, muddy skin indicates a poisoned blood stream, a clogged sewerage system, and there's nothing like a good old liquid diet to start the system in better working order. Meanwhile, working for greater complexion beauty, you're training your figure to take it as a means to a smarter silhouette.

In summer you can get along on half the food ordinarily consumed. You can go in for fruit and raw vegetables in a great big way and come out a prettier version of yourself. You can take more water into your system and help this internal flushing business, which is going to make the complexion cleaner. "If you can get up the pep to tackle the reform moves," you say. Well, we suggest that you begin weighing yourself and, immediately afterward, get down to work and do ten minutes of stretching exercises.

You'll sweat more in hot weather, and there'll be a better weight loss showing as a result, and you'll feel lighter with even a little weight loss. This will give you the desired pep to go on, if anything will. You'll be more eager to hop into the tub and get washed off than when a possible cold bathroom deterred your enthusiasm. For this, you'll feel more the woman you used to be.

But why pamper yourself? You know how you hate yourself in that bathing suit, or how you won't go near the water at all? Well, there are other years coming, and if you don't do something to stop the waistline spread, who's going to be proud to be seen out with you, anyway?

Vacation Love Affair Demands Grain of Salt

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Just a word about the summer flirtations, girls! Just a bit of warning based on the experience of numerous past seasons' confessions to us here!

Keep your head above water! Float along with the tide, but don't get sunk under the weight of these fleeting summer affairs! If you're lucky it may be the tide that controls your future destiny. That boy or man you meet may be your "fate," as they say. Ten chances to one he won't be. A swimming pal, a dancing partner, a boat and moonlight companion he may be. Together you may suffer all the sighs of a star infested night. You may and probably will exchange telephone numbers and letter addresses.

You'll tell each other, promenading the boardwalk arm in arm, that there couldn't be another like the other of you. You'll hold hands, suffer heartbeats and rising temperatures, and all the symptoms of a love struck young pair. But you'll come back home, you girls, and before the tan has entirely disappeared you'll be wondering why that boy hasn't written or phoned.

We address our caution to you girls because you're the sex that takes the summer flirtation too seriously.

We're not advising you not to have all the fun you can crowd into your vacation, including the hand holdings and the heart beats and the moonbeam sighs. Believe what you like of what is breathed into your susceptible young ears while you're there in the romance breeding atmosphere. But when you get back home just be prepared to be surprised but not disappointed if you never hear from or see your vacation Romeo again.

It's a frame of mind we're pleading for, just to save you disappointment later. Take it with a laugh, admit you had one grand time while you were away, but like your summer tan, it couldn't be expected to last and for much the same reason.

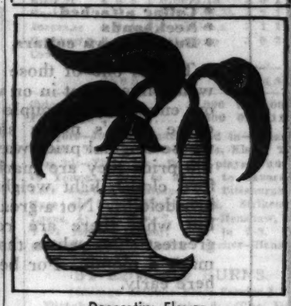
Beautiful Quilt Adds Much Charm to the Bedroom



Decorative Flower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

It is a strange flower and a commonplace name for a quilt pattern of such unusual beauty. Since it is the season for flowers, it isn't odd that we should find rare flora among the numbers of applique designs which seem to be coming from under the proverbial bushel. Modern householders' lack of a garden is no excuse for paucity of blooms, since "Decorative Flower" is one of the simple yet most attractive blocks, and one which will add charm to any bedroom. Another recommendation is that it may be made in any shade which will harmonize or contrast with green.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

SHIRTS $1

- Collar attached
- Neckbands
- Button down collars

TIES 2 for $1

Diagonal Stripe Silk Repps

The most popular type of neckwear on two continents gives way to foulards and crepes during the summer—but not entirely. Repps are year 'round favorites and the quality and hand-tailoring that have gone into these make repps at this price a find—even though this sale is made up of an accumulation of broken sets from many different stripe and color groups. Foulard and crepe ties also at 2 for $1.

HANDKERCHIEFS 3 for $1

Hand Made of Imported Printed Silk

They're all silk hand-made pocket handkerchiefs in foulard, India print and bandana type patterns—in blue, red, grey and cream color grounds. They're about 16½ inches square so they can also be used for sport neckerchiefs, which makes this a Men's Store sale the ladies can also take advantage of.

PIRATES SOLVE HENSHAW; DEFEAT CUBS, 4-0

J. DEAN ANGERS FRISCH; SNUBS ST. PAUL FANS

He'll Be in All-Star Game, However.

Dizzy Dean, star pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, returned to his rebellious 1934 ways in St. Paul yesterday when he refused to appear on the coaching line as the Cards played an exhibition game. Manager Frankie Frisch announced then that Dean would be dropped from the National league all-star team which meets the American league's best at Cleveland Monday, but when the team arrived in Chicago last night en route home Frisch had regained his temper and admitted that Dizzy would retain his position of honor.

Dean, however, still was angry, and between trains spent ten minutes outlining his grievances against officials of the club, which he called a "chain gang, an outfit which would send you back to the minors if you didn't hit .600."

Blames Breadon, Rickey.

"Breadon [president of the Cardinals] and Rickey [vice president] treat ball players like dogs," Dizzy said. "Look at Pepper Martin. He's got rheumatism in his ankle. Still they send him to St. Paul to play ball just to grab some money.

"Frisch didn't ask me to do anything at St. Paul," he continued. "I offered to pitch to a couple of batters just to give the folks a look at me, even if I did beat the Cubs yesterday. Frisch wouldn't let me do it. As to coaching, we have three men who get paid for that. I get paid for pitching."

The Cards won at St. Paul, 6-2.

"I still plan to use Dean at Cleveland," Frisch said. "I still think he could have done more for the fans at St. Paul. If a man doesn't think enough of his profession to take a bow before fans who drove 40 or 50 miles to see him I don't know what I can do about it."

Frisch, manager of the National League All-Stars, expressed sorrow over the report that Van Lingle Mungo, pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, will be unable to play in the Cleveland game, due to a damaged finger. He said he might select Lon Warneke of the Chicago Cubs to fill the gap.

Herc's New Lineup.

Frisch chose Paul Derringer of Cincinati as his starting pitcher in a revised lineup for the Cleveland game. He made three other changes in the starting lineup.

"Mel Ott of the New York Giants," Frisch said, "is my choice now for the right field place instead of Paul Waner, Wally Berger of Boston will be in center field in place of Joe Moore of the Giants, and Jimmy Wilson of Philadelphia will catch in place of Gus Mancuso of the Giants.

Martin, St. Louis, 3b.
Vaughan, Pittsburgh, ss.
Ott, Giants, rf.
Medwick, Cardinals, lf.
Terry, Giants, 1b.
Berger, Braves, cf.
Frisch, Cardinals, or Herman, Cubs, 2b.
J. Wilson, Philadelphia, c.
Derringer, Cincinnati, p.

MUNGO MAY BE OUT.

New York, July 5.—(AP)—Van Lingle Mungo, star Brooklyn pitcher, turned up today with a badly bruised finger on his pitching hand and probably will be unable to take part in the all-star game at Cleveland Monday. Mungo, the only Brooklyn representative on the all-star squad, was forced to leave Wednesday's game after hurling six innings because of difficulty in gripping the ball.

An X-ray examination was made today, but revealed no fracture. Mungo probably will not be able to pitch for several days, however.

ROWE TO BE READY.

Detroit, Mich., July 5.—(AP)—Trainer Denny Carroll gave assurance today that Schoolboy Rowe, named to take part in the All-Star game, will be ready to pitch again for the Detroit Tigers in a day or two. Carroll said the shoulder soreness which caused Rowe's removal from the second game with Cleveland yesterday was the result of a cold which settled in his back muscles.

"Light treatments and rubbing will take it out in a jiffy," Carroll said.

HEMSLEY REPLACES DICKEY.

Rollie Hemsley, St. Louis Browns catcher, will replace Bill Dickey of the New York Yankees in the American league all-star lineup against the National league at Cleveland Monday, it was announced yesterday at the American league office. Dickey has been forced out of the lineup because of a torn muscle in his right leg.

Hemsley last week was under observation for appendicitis, but he played in St. Louis' double-header against the Chicago White Sox Thursday and again yesterday at Detroit. The other two catchers for the American league are Manager Mickey Cochrane and Rick Ferrell of the Boston Red Sox.

UMPIRES ARE NAMED.

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—George Magerkurth and John W. [Ziggy] Sears will be the National league's umpires in the all-star interleague baseball game at Cleveland Monday.

RAIN KEEPS SOX FROM TRYING FOR SIXTH IN A ROW

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox, who are feeling right gay over their winning streak of five games and their occupancy of third place, met up with a delay yesterday. Rain washed away their scheduled opener with Cleveland's Indians and the latter undoubtedly welcomed the respite. They are slightly punch drunk as the result of trying their luck, which was all bad, in a four day series with the title holding Detroit Tigers. The Sox hope to keep 'em that way during the next thirty-six hours.

The Sox management, despite yesterday's postponement, will not ask the dazed Indians to stage any more than one game this afternoon. Of course the Sox also were thinking of themselves. A double-header is on the books for tomorrow at Comiskey park and Manager Jim Dykes didn't want to pile too much work on his lads. Anyway, there is an open date when the Indians are here in August and yesterday's erasure will be staged at that time.

Kennedy Works Today.

Dykes believes he is perfectly fixed for pitchers for today and tomorrow. This afternoon Vernon Kennedy will be trotted out. He turned in the first of the present five game winning streak by shutting out the Indians last Sunday. He probably will draw Monte Pearson or Oral Hildebrand for an opponent. Tomorrow Dykes will turn loose Ted Lyons and Sam Jones against the tribe. The double bill will conclude the home stay at Comiskey park.

Dykes' real puzzle at the moment is what to do about Al Simmons, who is on the bench but is slated to contribute his skill to the All-Star game at Cleveland on Monday. Dykes, when he benched the Milwaukee Duke after last Sunday's game because of failure to hit, intended to give the veteran some work this week-end as a sort of All-Star game rehersal.

The hitch is that the Sox have won four games since Simmons was ordered to take his .258 batting average and go into hiding. His understudy, Vernon G. Washington, has done very well and Dykes doesn't intend to break up a winning combination. If the Sox should lose today, Simmons might be put to work in one of tomorrow's games.

Travel for Three Weeks.

For the next three weeks the Sox will see plenty of the country. They open a series at Boston next Wednesday. This will be followed by stops at New York, Washington, Philadelphia, and St. Louis. That's a tough test for the team, but one nice feature is that Dykes appears to have enough pitchers, a department that was considered weak up to a few weeks back.

Banas, Ex-Notre Dame Player, Lands Coaching Job

GOLF SCHOOL CLOSES WITH FORM TESTS

Winners last night in the form contest, the final test in The Tribune's third annual free golf school on 13 public fee courses throughout the Chicago district, were: Emil J. Larsen, Northbrook, men's division; Dave Horneberger, Vernon, boys' division; Jane Olson, Mission Hills, girls' division, and Gertrude McAllister, Evergreen, women's division.

1,500 Attend Commencement of Tribune Free Golf School

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The third annual free golf school conducted by THE TRIBUNE in conjunction with the 13 member courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, came to an end last night with the form contest at the Mid-City Golf club, the 50 prize winning students out of the original class of 20,000 being graduated before an audience of more than 1,500.

The enthusiasm displayed throughout the six free lessons given by the professionals of the Daily Fee courses reached its peak with last night's form contest, wherein each of the prize students, who already had their mettle tested in an 18 hole medal play tournament, gave six of the game's leading professionals samples of their swings.

Following the form contest, prizes were awarded to its winners, as well as to victors in the medal play tourney, by Julian Lambert of Northbrook, secretary of the Daily Fee association. These included golf trophies, bags, clubs, and balls donated by THE TRIBUNE and season playing memberships from the association.

Following the introductions, each of the 50 pupils—men, women, and children chosen by their respective professionals at the 13 courses as the best in their classes—was allowed three solo swings on a platform erected before the judges on Mid-City's lighted driving range. Each of the six judges scored each pupil on the basis of 100 points, the pupil scoring the most points in each class winning.

Men.

Emil Larsen, Northbrook.
Bernard Cerny, Techny Fields.
Clarence Libman, Mid-City.

Women.

Gertrude McAllister, Evergreen.
Irene Walsh, Cog-Hill.
Gwen Mishkin, Mid-City, and Mildred Wright, Westgate Valley, tied for third.

Boys.

Dave Horenberger, Vernon.
James Waters, Evergreen.
Nick Harit, Big Oaks.

Girls.

Jane Olson, Mission Hills.
Sue Suttle, Evergreen.
Christa Fischer, Mid-City.

Prizes also were presented to the following winners of the medal play tournament held at Cog-Hill on June 23.

Men.

Richard Lahti, Waubansee.
Bob Bourret, Evergreen.
Clarence Libman, Mid-City.

Women.

Irene Walsh, Cog-Hill.
Mrs. F. F. Baer, Vernon.
Gwen Mishkin, Mid-City.

Boys.

Ed Roble, Techny Fields.
John Barisas, Westgate Valley.
Nick Harit, Big Oaks.

Girls.

Helen Carlson, Indian Head.
Christa Fischer, Mid-City.
Jane Olson, Mission Hills.

The judges' biggest problem occurred in the boys' division, where Dave Horenberger of Vernon, and James Waters of Evergreen, finished their regulation three swings with a point standing of 425 points each.

26 Named for Hyde Park Stake at Arlington Today

BY FRENCH LANE.

The most perplexing of all the big races to be run during the Arlington Park season comes up for a decision today.

It is the Hyde Park stakes for 2 year olds at 5½ furlongs, worth approximately $9,000. Its outcome is being awaited with much interest because it will be the first time the winners of most of the important juvenile stakes of the year have been brought together.

Not even the Lassie stakes nor the $60,000 futurity will be so puzzling because the Hyde park stakes will furnish a line on these two richer Arlington 2 year races.

Now if you think you are not going to be handsomely rewarded if you pick the winner of the Hyde Park, then just glance through the 26 names dropped into the overnight entry box yesterday.

Eight Are Stake Winners.

Eight of the names are a little more familiar than the others, for they have been in the headlines at different times since early spring. Each at some time or another has accounted for a stake race, but the Hyde Park brings them together for the first time.

The stake race winners in the field are:

Horse. Stake.
Grand Slam—Pimlico Nursery, Prairie State.
Deliberator—Hialeah Nursery No. 1
Wise Duke—Illinois Championship, Aberdeen.
Coldstream—Rainbow Maner.
Valevictorian—Woodward Stakes.
Bright Light—Bowie Kindergarten.
Dulcper—Washington Park Juvenile.
Santan—Victoria Stakes.

It is highly probable that none of these names will be added to the list of Hyde Park stakes winners, for hidden away in the remaining group are a number of juveniles that haven't yet had a chance to compete for stake race prizes, and from among them may come the 3 year old champion of the year.

The two prize juveniles from C. V. Whitney's stable came in yesterday from New York to seek the Hyde Park prize. They were Triumphant and Savings. Neither has captured a stake this year, but never have they been in

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 5.—The Pittsburgh Pirates, wearied of being shut out by Roy Henshaw, did a little shutting out of their own today. Old Red Lucas stood the Chicagoans on their heads such times as he and his mates were not engaged in slugging Henshaw for four runs and a 4 to 0 victory in the opener of the three game series.

It was Lucas' third victory of the season and his second over the Cubs. Red was in fine form and though he allowed nine hits, three of them by Chuck Klein, no Cub got to third base and only four runners progressed to second.

It was the fourth licking the Cubs have absorbed in three days at the hands of three teams and it plunged them deeper into fourth place. It is the first time the Chicagoans have dropped four straight in almost a month, they having been socked for three straight by St. Louis and the opener in Philadelphia before Vice President Grimm scolded them in a manner that spurred them to great deeds for more than three weeks before the current fadeout.

Three Hits Wasted.

The Cubs had made three hits before Lucas, ninth man to face Henshaw, scratched a single for the first Pirate hit. But at the end of the first three innings only one runner on either side had advanced as far as second.

The Chicago hits in the first three innings were a single by Cavarretta with two out in the first and successive singles by Klein and Hack in the second inning, a threat which ended when Jurges lined into a double play.

The Cubs wasted their fourth and fifth singles in the fourth. Cavarretta led off with his second hit and was forced on Hartnett's slam to Young. Lindstrom popped to Vaughan, then Klein got his second single, Hartnett stopping at second. Hack tapped to Lucas.

Good, Clean Smacks.

There was nothing the least bit spurious about two hits which the Pirates made in the home fourth. Jensen opened with a line single to center. P. Waner filed to left, then Vaughan lined a single to center, putting Jensen on third. Young fanned, after which Vaughan tried to launch a double steal. Hartnett feinted a throw to second, then whipped the ball to Hack to nip Jensen off third.

The Pirates broke through for a pair of runs in the fifth. Suhr opened with a single to center and was forced on Thevenow's attempted sacrifice. Padden beat out a hit to deep short, Thevenow stopping at second. Lucas singled to center, scoring Thevenow and putting Padden on third. L. Waner sent a long fly to Lindstrom, Padden scoring. Jensen forced Lucas.

Jurges doubled with two out in the seventh for the first extra base hit of the game, but Henshaw fanned. Thevenow then led off the home seventh with a line drive which bounced over Galan's head for a triple and scored the third Pirate run on a wild pitch. Padden drew Henshaw's first pass. Lucas attempted to sacrifice and popped to Hack and L. Waner filed to Lindstrom. Jensen walked, but Herman threw out P. Waner.

Umpire Chases French.

Galan was thrown out by Thevenow to start the eighth and protested vigorously that he was safe. Herman singled to center for the eighth Chicago hit and a razz for Umpire Pfirman on the Galan decision was set up in the Cub dugout. Pfirman halted the game, chased Larry French and warned other bench jockies to hold their jaws. Cavarretta fouled to Thevenow and L. Waner made a great catch at the flagpole of Hartnett's 450-foot drive.

Vaughan led off the home eighth with the eighth hit off Henshaw and took second on Young's long fly to Galan. Suhr walked and Casey replaced Henshaw. Jurges fumbled Thevenow's grounder, Vaughan scoring, Suhr reaching second and Thevenow first. Padden then hit into a double play launched by Casey.

After Lindstrom had fanned to start the ninth, Klein doubled against the right field wall for his third hit, but like all other Chicago base runners of the afternoon, Chuck never got to third base.

Harridge Ill; Must Miss 3d All-Star Game

William Harridge, president of the American league, will not be able to attend the third annual All-Star interleague baseball game in Cleveland Monday. While completing correspondence pertaining to the game in his office Wednesday he was stricken with an attack of kidney stones and was taken to St. Francis hospital in Evanston. Dr. Lester Mee, his physician, reported his condition improved yesterday, but said it would be inadvisable for Mr. Harridge to make the trip to Cleveland.

"This is one of the biggest disappointments I have had," the American league president said last night. "The All-Star game is the greatest stimulus baseball has had in my day and I hope the third game is as exciting and colorful as the first two."

It was largely through the coöperation of Mr. Harridge that the All-Star game, orginated and first promoted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was made possible.

Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit Tigers, and vice president of the American league, will represent Mr. Harridge and preside at a league meeting in Cleveland tomorrow.

Jack Gibbons to Fight Battaglia on July 23

St. Paul, Minn., July 5.—[Special.]—Jack Gibbons, St. Paul middleweight, will meet Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg, in a ten round bout July 23. The match will be the windup of an outdoor show at the Lexington baseball park.

TUESDAY NIGHT IS DEADLINE FOR SWIM ENTRANTS

First Preliminaries Are Set for Saturday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Four days remain in which entries will be accepted for the first two of the sectional meets in THE TRIBUNE'S sixth annual 100 yard swimming races. All boys and girls who expect to compete either at Sherman park on July 13 or at California park July 14 must mail their entries not later than midnight Tuesday night.

These two preliminaries are designed to accommodate those living on the north and south sides of Chicago. There are no residential restrictions, however, and entries will be accepted for any of the four sections.

Entries for the meets on July 20 at Cermak pool and on July 21 at Whealan pool close at midnight, July 15. Naturally the final sectional at Whealan pool will attract the largest number of swimmers, which is greater reason for competing at one of the earlier meets. Last year more than 800 boys and girls reported at Whealan pool.

Forty Will Qualify.

Forty swimmers, four in each of the ten divisions, will qualify from each preliminary. Thus the total number of contestants directly affects the opportunity of qualifying.

The schedule will be the same at each sectional. All contestants will receive postcards which will furnish them with their racing numbers. These cards also will have the age class, of which there are five, ranging from the 11 and 12 year olds in class A to class E, which includes those 19 years old and over.

Address Is Necessary.

These cards will be presented to the clerks, who then will assign the swimmers to their qualifying heats. The same system will be used for those competing for organizations. Regardless of club affiliation, each swimmer's address must be given, so he may receive his card of admission.

Swimmers must report to the clerks not later than 1 o'clock on the day they have chosen to compete. The first preliminary is scheduled for 2 o'clock each afternoon.

The finals will be held July 28 at the Lincoln park lagoon. One hundred and sixty boys and girls from the four sectional meets will be eligible for the last day of competition to decide the ten champions of 1935. These will receive gold medals. The runnersup in each of the ten divisions will be awarded silver medals, while the third place finishers will be presented with bronze medals.

Teams Get Trophies, Too.

Two team trophies, one for boys and the other for girls, are additional prizes. At the sectionals, each contestant who swims 100 yards will receive a souvenir button. Those winning preliminary races will be given badges, and the qualifiers for the finals will be awarded gold medals.

26 Named for $9,000 Stake at Arlington better condition, and Trainer Healy believes they are ready to show their real worth. They will muster many backers because the two star Whitney riders, Sonny Workman and A. Robertson, have come from New York to pilot them.

It wasn't easy yesterday to predict which in the big field of 26 would be the overnight favorite. Coldstream, sensational speedster owned by C. B. Shaffer, was beaten in the mud at Arlington Park earlier in the week, yet, despite that defeat, he still had a horde of backers, and many believe he will finally rule the favorite at possibly 4 to 1 or even a little better.

Entry Is Popular.

Deliberator and Wise Duke will run coupled as an entry, and as both have proved to be outstanding colts, they will have an enormous following. The "play Whitney when in doubt" theory naturally will bring heavy support for Triumphant and Savings. Chicagoans will also not soon forget the easy manner in which the Bomar stables' Grand Slam, from Detroit, won the Prairie State stakes at Washington Park.

Every first class jocky in America will appear in the race. Aside from Workman and Robertson, those here from New York and New England to accept mounts include such stars as Silvio Coucci, Wayne Wright, and Lou Schaefer. Against them will be aligned such stars as George Woolf, Eddie Arcaro, Jack Westrope, Charley Kurtsinger, Les Balaski, Don Meade, Paul Keester, Buddy Haas, Harold Tinker, and Tex Callahan.

Hi Nelli Wins from Sparta in Muddy Dash

Hi Nelli, a star among the 2 year olds in Florida last winter, showed a return to her very best form yesterday when she won the Maywood purse at Arlington Park.

Displaying dazzling speed over the slow, rainsoaked track, she ran the five furlongs in the sensational time of 1:01 and was galloping at the finish when she beat Hal Price Headley's Sparta by two and a half lengths. Fair Stein, a rank outsider, finished third.

Jocky Eddie Arcaro, under contract to Warren Wright's Calumet farm stable, was among the heat victims in the big Fourth of July gathering at Arlington Park. He wasn't in shape to ride yesterday and had to cancel all his engagements. He hopes to be able to get back in the saddle this afternoon.

Two of the horses which race for J. E. Hughes, Chicago attorney, scored brilliant victories yesterday. His filly, Short Skirt, a daughter of Traumer-Sun Tess, took down honors in the opening event in easy fashion. His veteran Silent Shot got the decision by about six inches over the fast finishing Dusky Devil in the Diversey purse. Short Skirt paid $7.80 and Silent Shot rewarded his backers at $13.80. Sun Captor was an odds on favorite in the Diversey, but didn't do much running at any stage of the journey and finished fourth.

Count Arthur, Mrs. John Hertz' good son of Reigh Count, a close second to Black Helen in the American Derby, was asked for speed yesterday and went a mile in 1:45 3-5, under restraint, doing the three-quarters in 1:18. He was accompanied by Count Tetrarch.

Arlington Park stalls are reserved for the large shipment of horses presided over by Jimmy Fitzsimmons and headed by the mighty Omaha, whose next race is to be in the classic. The Fitzsimmons trained horses are expected within a few days.

SHORT SKIRT, away slowly and forced to race wide, bettered her position fast in first quarter, continued to make up ground while under slight restraint on stretch turn, and after taking command quickly in final eighth, drew out fast. BROWBEATEN had speed from the start, took command under pressure and faltered some after submitting to winner. MARY CARMEN had speed, saved ground throughout but could not withstand the leaders.

TERRIER, strongly restrained on the turn, where he was inclined to bear out, came with a rush in final quarter and headed BROAD MEADOWS in closing strides. Latter, well up from the start and forced to race wide until reaching final eighth, drew into the lead under pressure and held on gamely, but was not good enough. BARTERING KATE, on inside throughout, had speed from the start but weakened badly, yet outstayed HECLA.

SCATTERBRAIN, suited by the going and having speed from the start, raced around VERY WISE with a rush, and after taking an unnecessarily wide lead, winning under light urging. FINANCE raced wide and closed resolutely in a good effort.

FOURTH RACE—Three-quarters of a mile. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

COURT SONG, never far back, came to outside entering stretch, gained gradually under vigorous riding, and after getting him, drew out slowly. CLIENTELLE, well in hand the first half mile, failed to withstand winner after taking command under pressure. SARAHMOND saved much ground, had speed, but weakened after five-eighths.

JOYCE WETHERED SHOWS CHICAGO HER SKILL TODAY

First of Three Matches for English Golf Star.

Joyce Wethered, the slim English girl who has been acknowledged time and again as the finest golfer of all our English cousins, will make her first Chicago district appearance today at the Medinah Country club, where she will be paired with Tommy Armour, the home professional, against two of American golf's greatest lights —Harry Cooper of Glen Oak and Ky Laffoon of Northmoor. The match will start at 2:30 p. m. Medinah may be reached over the Lake street road or Irving Park boulevard by motor, by the Milwaukee railroad, or by the Greyhound bus lines.

Today's match will be the first of three Chicago appearances Miss Wethered will make within four days. Tomorrow she joins with Horton Smith of Oak Park on the latter's course against what now appears to be America's No. 1 practicing twosome—Gene Sarazen of Brookfield Center, Conn., and Mildred [Babe] Didrikson, Dallas' all around girl athlete. On Tuesday the English golfer will display her swing for the last time in these parts at Ravisloe, where she will team up with Johnny Dawson of Glen Oak against Jim Noonan of Lansing Airport and Armour.

Slips Into Town.

Miss Wethered slipped into town yesterday with little ado, promptly registered at a near north side hotel, and then spent the remainder of the day with friends. The aforesaid admission that she is Britain's best is, in reality, a case of understatement, for experts, British and American, have rated her the greatest woman golfer in the game, with a swing which Bobby Jones has repeatedly hailed as the most perfect of any player of either sex.

Miss Wethered, in her competitive career, has done nothing except to make the claims of her followers seem rather timid, for she has not only turned back England's best women golfers, but America's as well, and added to this several triumphs over masculine players.

In Excellent Condition.

Yesterday she expressed herself as feeling in excellent condition, despite the rigors of an exhibition tour which has kept her busy day in and day out since she arrived in America several weeks ago. Her Chicago district stand brings her with and against the finest golfers in the game. Today, for instance, she will have as partner Tommy Armour, who has won every major championship open to a professional. Their foes will be two of this country's sharpest scorers. Laffoon last year won the Radix trophy for average low scoring in recognized tournaments. Cooper is at the top of his game now, having captured the Illinois and Medinah opens within a space of five days.

Babe Proves Versatility.

Tomorrow she will be paired with Horton Smith, one of the ablest swingers in the business, who won the first of the Masters' tournaments from start to finish, has been a member of the Ryder cup team, and a leading winner in the winter circuit. Against them will be Gene Sarazen, regarded as the most formidable competitor in the game, and Babe Didrikson, who in two short years has more than proved her versatility by achieving success at golf, winning one of the only two tournaments she entered and reaching the semi-finals in the other.

Tuesday's match at Ravisloe will bring Miss Wethered still another able teammate in Johnny Dawson, the Glen Oak star with whom she was paired in a couple of eastern exhibition matches. They will have a job on their hands in facing Armour and Jim Noonan, one of the professionals who have helped make Chicago the golf center of the country.

Fishing Not So Bad in Midwest, Figures Reveal

BY BOB BECKER.

Fishermen in the middle west, who sometimes think that the "grass is greener" in many other states and figure they can catch more fish elsewhere, may not have such a poor opinion of middle western fishing if they learn what the state of Pennsylvania has just revealed about the trout fishing situation.

With 4,000 miles of trout streams in the state, it is estimated that if every licensed fisherman in Pennsylvania should take just one limit of trout it would require 4,000,000 trout in the waters.

The sad part of this computation is that it's impossible for the state to plant more than 1,000,000 trout a year because the streams haven't food for more than that number. Therefore, the trout angler in Pennsylvania has two strikes on him before he ever throws a lure during the open season, and it's luck that a combination of several things works against many anglers getting a full creel on fishing trips.

After fishing one of the more popular streams in the middle west some years ago where we had to wait at a bend of the stream to let some pool splasher get out of a good piece of fishing water ahead of us, we wondered if the trout fishing game wasn't too crowded in some parts of the Great Lakes area. But when we read how in Pennsylvania there would be just 90 feet between trout fishermen if all decided to go fishing on the same day, we realized there is more room on the many thousands of miles of trout streams in middle western states.

In fact, there are counties in middle western states that have as much trout stream mileage as all of Pennsylvania. And out here they plant trout much more abundantly than they do in Pennsylvania because of the large number of streams.

In addition to fish turned out in streams and lakes by midwest states, local conservation groups are building rearing ponds to grow more game fish. This is necessary because of the increasing popularity of fishing.

MOON MULLINS—IT'S GOING TO BE UNLUCKY FOR WILLIE

2 Homers Put Greenberg on Record Trail

Detroit, Mich., July 5.—(AP)—Hank Greenberg today hit two home runs and led Detroit in a 16 to 1 rout of the St. Louis Browns. The victory enabled the Tigers to reduce the New York Yankees' American league lead to one and a half games.

Greenberg's home runs were his 24th and 25th of the season, leaving him only one behind the pace Babe Ruth set at this stage of his 1927 home run bathing splurge when he established the major league record of sixty homers in one season. That year Ruth hit his 25th on June 30 and had only one more when he passed the July 4 turning point, getting No. 27 on July 8.

In between his two homers today, Greenberg connected for a pair of singles and drew an intentional pass for a perfect day at bat. He scored on every hit he made. Each homer was made with one teammate on base, the first coming off Russell Van Atta in the first inning and the other off Dick Coffman in the seventh.

Van Atta retired only one man in the first inning, giving three hits and as many runs. Coffman went the rest of the distance although pounded freely.

Vic Sorrell, who beat the Browns last week in his first start of the season, repeated in allowing seven hits. He missed a shutout when Johnny Burnett tripled in the third and scored on Al Bejma's infield out. Score:

Medica Beaten by Flanagan in Mile Swim

Detroit, Mich., July 5.—(AP)—Ralph Flanagan of Miami, Fla., defeated Jack Medica of Seattle, Wash., in the mile race at the opening of the National A. A. U. outdoor swimming meet tonight in the new world's record time of 21 minutes 4-10 seconds. Norris Hoyt of Yale was third.

In setting the new world mark, Flanagan improved by two-tenths of a second the record set by Arne Borg of Sweden in 1931 and reached a goal he had been seeking for two years.

Dexter Woodford of Ohio State was fourth, followed in order by Andy Clark of Detroit and Frank Barnard of the University of Michigan.

Degener Keeps Diving Title.

During the afternoon Dick Degener of the Detroit A. C. successfully defended his low board diving championship, being credited with 172.56 points to 151.7 for Marshall Wayne of Miami. Elbert Root of Miami was third with 146.17.

John Higgins of Olneyville, R. I., retained his title in the 220 yard breast stroke, winning by three yards over Ray Kaye of the Detroit A. C. in 2:47.6. Higgins' time bettered his own American mark of 2:55. Third place went to Jack Kasley of the University of Michigan, followed by Eugene Halpern of Columbus, O., and Jack Gorman of Cleveland.

Highland Is Dethroned.

Peter Fick of the New York A. C. dethroned Art Highland of the Chicago Lake Shore A. C. as champion in the 100 meter free style. Frick finished first in :58.2, with Jimmy Gilhula of Detroit second. Highland finished in fifth place.

MANY BASEBALL NOTABLES ATTEND O'DAY FUNERAL

Many notables of the baseball world, including many of his old cronies of the '90s, attended the funeral of Henry [Hank] O'Day, veteran National league umpire, yesterday at St. Jarlath church. Interment was at Calvary cemetery.

Among those at the rites were Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner; John Heydler, former National league president; Bob Emslie and Tom Connolly, umpires-in-chief of the National and American leagues, respectively; Henry P. Edwards, personal representative of President William Harridge o. the American league; Bill Klem, veteran National league umpire, and Bill Byron, who once called plays with O'Day.

MANAGERS PLAY WINNIPEG.

Fargo, N. D., July 5.—(AP)—Managers of the Northern league baseball teams will play the Winnipeg Maroons, leaders of the league race for the first half of the season, at Winnipeg Monday.

Bush Makes 1st Start Against Cubs as Pirate

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 5.—[Special.]—Tex Carleton will be the Cubs' pitcher when Guy Bush of the Pirates makes his first start of the year against his one time buddies in tomorrow's game. Though his first start, it will be Bush's second appearance against the Cubs. On May 30 he retired ten batsmen in order here in a futile relief assignment.

Manager Pie Traynor expressed great disappointment when he received a telegram from Kiki Cuyler informing him that Ki had signed with the Reds. The Pirate manager said he had made Ki what he considered an exceptionally good offer. All the evidence indicates the Cub management was foxed out of the $6,000 waiver dough.

When Vice President Grimm goes to Cleveland to coach in the All-Star game he will be personally attended by a secretary, Bob Lewis, and a valet, otherwise Trainer Andy Lotshaw.

Bears Sign Fritz Febel, Purdue Star

Fritz Febel, for three years a member of Purdue university's football team, has been signed by the Chicago Bears, Owner George Halas announced yesterday. Febel, a guard, is a former Lindblom High school star and is the second line candidate signed by the Bears this summer who prepped in Chicago. The other is Chuck Mucha of Washington, who played at Fenger High school.

Febel, possessed of the size paramount to success in the professional game, is exceptionally fast for a big man and has been a star on offense in the Notre Dame system which Purdue uses. He is five feet nine and one-half inches tall and weighs 210 pounds.

Mucha and Febel are the leading candidates for the position left open by Dr. Joe Kopcha's absence. Kopcha is completing an internship in a Detroit hospital and is not expected to return to the position at which he was considered the best in the National league.

CARDINALS SIGN BLAZINE.

Bloomington, Ill., July 5.—[Special.]—Tony Blazine of Chicago, tackle and co-captain of the 1934 Illinois Wesleyan football team, has signed with the Chicago Cardinals of the National Professional league. Blazine will attend the University of Chicago law school in the fall.

DAVIDSON, WEISS TAKE WESTERN DOUBLES MATCH

Rain yesterday prevented all except one match in the Western tennis tournament at the South Shore Country club. Before the deluge descended the University of Chicago doubles team of Max Davidson and Trevor Weiss defeated Don Leavens and Marvin Wachman of Milwaukee, 6-1, 6-3.

Because of yesterday's postponement the tournament will be concluded on Monday instead of tomorrow. The men's singles finals will be played on Monday, but it had not been determined yesterday whether to stage the women's final tomorrow or hold it in conjunction with the men's.

The men's singles quarter-finals today will bring together John McDiarmid and Ernie Stutter, Art Hendrix and Louis Carson, Bill Reese and Frank Guernsey, and Wilbur Coen and Sin Kie Kho.

Suspend Sparta Races to Protect Spectators

The auto races scheduled for Monday night at Sparta stadium, 22d street and Kostner avenue, have been canceled until further notice. City officials have refused to grant a permit for the west side track until ample protection has been provided for the spectators. Work will begin immediately on a new track entirely enclosed with a crashproof wall, so that the races can be resumed in a few weeks.

Dodgers Slug Three Giant Pitchers, 14-4

New York, July 5.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, who have fallen into disfavor with their home fans, invaded Manhattan today and took their grievances out on the Giants by whipping the National league leaders, 14 to 4.

Every Brooklyn player scored at least once and got one or more of the 21 hits off Fred Fitzsimmons, Frank Gabler and Leon Chagnon. Meanwhile Johnny Babich held the Giants to nine blows and pitched his first complete game since April 25. Jimmy Bucher led the attack with four hits.

Fitzsimmons was driven out in the fifth after giving eleven hits and Gabler retired in the seventh when the assault reached its climax in a five run burst aided by three Giant errors. Tony Cuccinello topped off the slugging with a homer in the eighth while young brother Al duplicated the feat for the Giants in the ninth. Bill Terry also hit a Giant homer. Score:

1,500 Attend Golf School Form Contest

Emil Larsen, winner of the men's former contest, was the only southpaw in the class, and had come all the way from his home in Kenosha, Wis., for the graduation. Gertrude McAllister of Evergreen, who led the women in the form contest, finished with the highest total of the evening, 485 points out of a possible 600.

Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, president of the association, introduced the jury, which included Horton Smith of Oak Park, Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, Tommy Armour of Medinah, Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, Denny Shute of Westward-Ho, and Jock Hutchison of Glen View. Herb Graffis, editor of Golfing and Golfdom, also made a brief talk.

Mid-City, scene of the school's finals, had so much success with its classes that Mel Thompson, the club professional, announced continuation lessons for women and girls at 7:30 on Tuesdays, and for men and boys at the same hour on Thursdays. Thompson will not have the services of one of his assistants, Dan Taggart, who was severely burned in an accident recently, for another month.

OWENS MARRIES CLEVELAND GIRL AFTER A SPRINT

Cleveland, O., July 5.—(AP)—Jesse Owens, Ohio State athlete, tonight married Miss Minnie Ruth Solomon, Cleveland beauty parlor operator, to whom he had been engaged several years.

The record breaking colored track star tonight stepped from a train from Lincoln, Neb., where he participated in the National Senior A. A. U. championship meet yesterday, ready for the ceremony. As Jesse hurried to Miss Solomon's house she hurried to the railroad station. After considerable confusion they met at the home and called License Clerk Frank Zizelman from his dinner. They also called on Probate Judge Nelson Brewer to waive the Ohio law that requires a marriage to wait five days after the issuance of a license.

Miss Solomon's favorite minister, the Rev. M. S. Washington, wasn't home so they located the Rev. Ernest Hall, who was in choir practice. He declined to break up the rehersal and delayed the ceremony, which finally was performed at the bride's home.

LONDON HINTS LORETTA YOUNG MAY WED PERRY

LONDON, July 5.—(AP)—Loretta Young's arrival in England almost at the moment Fred Perry was winning the All-England singles championship at Wimbledon set London tongues gossiping tonight over romantic possibilities involving the two.

The screen star admitted she and her mother were going to Wimbledon tomorrow to be the guests of Perry, who defeated Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany in straight sets today to win his second consecutive Wimbledon title.

Perry was the first person to telephone Miss Young after her arrival in London. The Hollywood actress, however, denied she and Perry intended to marry while she was in Europe, or that he would accompany her during the month she expected to be abroad.

Ki Cuyler Too High for Sox; He Joins Reds

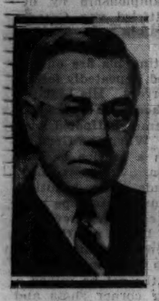
Hazen Kiki Cuyler, unconditionally released last Wednesday by the Cubs because of the disparity between his .268 batting average and $12,000 annual salary, was signed yesterday by the Cincinnati Reds.

Terms under which he agreed to don a uniform with the Rhinelanders were not announced, but it was reported that he previously had scared away other bidders by the high price he had placed on his services. The 36 year old veteran who served eight years with the Cubs after coming here from the Pirates claimed to have had nibbles exclusive of Cincinnati, from the

J. J. BERNET DIES; HEADED LINES OF VAN SWERINGENS

Death Follows Career Started as Telegrapher.

Cleveland, O., July 5.—[Special.]—John J. Bernet, ranking executive of the Van Sweringen railroads, died today at his home in Shaker Heights, a suburb. He was 67 years old. Death followed a general breakdown two weeks ago, and Bernet's serious condition was not known even to some of his intimate friends. Funeral services will be held Monday.



JOHN J. BERNET.

President of both the Chesapeake & Ohio lines and the Nickel Plate railroad at the time of his death, Bernet began life with an ambition to become a blacksmith. It was his father who discouraged this ambition because of the lad's color blindness.

Becomes Telegrapher.

Fascinated by a telegraph key, the boy soon became a telegraph operator for the old Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, now a part of the New York Central system.

In 1916 the Van Sweringen brothers decided to go into the railroad business, bought the sickly Nickel Plate road, and decided that Bernet was the man to revive the patient. He put the "streak of rust" on its feet and then was moved to the presidency of the Erie in 1927 to do a similar rehabilitation job. The Erie responded in two years with its first dividend since 1907.

Heads C. & O. in 1929.

In 1929 Bernet moved on to become president of the prosperous Chesapeake and Ohio and its controled roads, the Pere Marquette and Hocking Valley.

The climax of Bernet's career of more than 45 years of railrouding came on the eve of his 65th birthday two years ago when he returned to the presidency of the Nickel Plate in addition to retaining his job with the C. & O.

Bernet was married and the father of five children.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: 'Cheap at Any Price

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Radio has done some freakish things through its "special events" broadcasts—airing the remarks of a parachute jumper as he fell, or Sally Rand between her fans, frog derbies, the rumble of Vesuvius. And listeners are constantly demanding wilder ones. Perhaps to satisfy this flair for the fantastic, Paul White, who handles these special features for Columbia, has thought up a fancy one for tomorrow evening [WBBM, 8 p. m.], titled "Beat the Heat," in which listeners will be transported to a blast furnace while singers chant songs about how hot it is.

Weirdest suggestion encountered personally for a broadcast came by telephone a fortnight ago. A man announced that at 4 o'clock the following Friday a group of Logan Square physicians would describe an appendicitis operation step by step for the benefit of WLS listeners. The informant, it seemed, was to be the subject of the surgeons. A check with the station quickly revealed the whole business false.

Mr. White gets a lot of unusual suggestions from fans. Some he uses. Others are too absurd. One chap wants a Kentucky Derby jocky to carry a lapel microphone during the race. Of course, the microphone is to be on the winning horse!

Another fellow wants to listen to a ball game with mikes strapped to every player so that they might speak to one another. That would indeed be a feat since every player would have to have a wire running to the clubhouse or carry a 75 pound portable transmitter on his back. Another would like to hear by radio from the lady as she is sawed in two by Thurston, the magician.

The networks have been offered broadcast rights to a revolution a young man volunteered to start in Mexico. One fan wonders why the G-men didn't carry lapel mikes when they shot Dillinger.

Here's a couple of suggestions that might provide real entertainment—one chap wants to hear a man getting a double shampoo while the barber tells stories. And a Sunday motorist would like to have a mike strapped to a chronic back seat driver, broadcasting straight from the tonneau!

Andre Kostelanetz, the orchestra leader, was to start a new sustaining program from New York last night. Instead he found himself stepping out of a plane at Los Angeles. Lily Pons, with whom he was associated on a radio series last winter, summoned him by phone to direct the orchestra during the musical interludes in her first full length picture, "Love Song," for which Jerome Kern has written the score. So "Kosty" dropped radio for this summer.

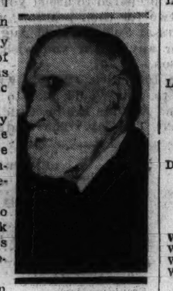
Phil Baker did his last night's broadcast and will do next week's from local studios. With his radio troupe he is playing an engagement at the Chicago theater. . . . George Burns and Gracie Allen have announced that they will adopt a second baby after they finish work on the picture "Big Broadcast of 1936." They are coming to Chicago to pick out a boy. Their first, Sandra, was also adopted here.

OHIO TOWN WILL HONOR DOCTOR 100 YEARS OLD

Bethel, O., July 5.—(AP)—Dr. William Eberle Thompson, 100 years old tomorrow, will play host at an informal birthday party to many of the 1,800 persons he helped into this life.



W. E. THOMPSON. [A. P. Wire Photo.

And when they ask him, as some will, how one lives to be a hundred, he will reply:

"Don't eat too much, and walk more." It is his stock prescription.

Dr. Thompson started practice more than seventy-five years ago on horseback. Twelve years later there were roads, and he used a horse and buggy. Fifteen years ago he bought an automobile. It is more interesting now and "not so hard on the doctors."

Bethel has taken the doctor's birthday celebration into its own hands. There will be public ceremonies tomorrow afternoon. Later an oil painting of the practitioner will be unveiled in the Municipal Memorial building. Hundreds of friends from this and nearby states, including those he helped at birth, received invitations.

But the doctor is not sure he can take part in all the festivities, pleased as he admits he is at the honors and the prospective visits. Illness in the community observes no holiday. He has no intention of quitting his practice at 100, he says; the last of twelve doctors in his family, he must carry on to the end.

AVIATOR PROVES PASSENGER MUST HAVE LEAPED OUT

Jacksonville, Fla., July 5.—(AP)—Skeptical jurymen inquiring into the death plunge of a man from an open cockpit plane watched one of their members today test the pilot's statement that it was next to impossible to fall out of a plane in a vertical bank.

The pilot, Herschel Clark, had been at the controls when Leroy Turner of Greenwood, S. C., plummeted to earth from the plane a few days ago. He testified that Turner jumped, and to convince the dubious jurors a reenactment of the flight was agreed upon.

Clark said Turner must have jumped because he could not have fallen out since he [Clark] had put the ship into a vertical bank after he had noticed his passenger wriggling in his seat.

The juror, Roy Garrett, went aloft with Clark, and held his hands in the air as the pilot put the plane through several vertical banks low enough for the other jurors to see. The two landed safely, the jury went back to court and recorded a suicide verdict.

Flanked by deputy sheriffs, William L. Ganschaw, 59 years old, 1657 North Artesian avenue, yesterday attended the funeral for his wife, Elizabeth, 58 years old, with whom he failed to keep a suicide pact. Mrs. Ganschaw was found dead from gas on Tuesday in the couple's home.

The funeral was held in a chapel at 2410 West North avenue. Ganschaw sat on a bench near the coffin, on which was a floral spray he had sent, addressed to "My Girl." He was in tears. More than 150 persons crammed into the room for the services, while 50 more stood on tiptoe outside to watch. Ganschaw attended the burial at Waldheim cemetery before he was taken back to the county jail.

OLIVER HERFORD, AUTHOR, ARTIST, TAKEN BY DEATH

Mr. Herford's success as a writer began with publication of his first drawings, sketches and short poems in the Century magazine.

One of the stories told of his early efforts is that, after the rejection of many offering of drawings by Century, he bundled together the whole collection and sent it back, with a note to the editor reading:

"Sir: Your office boy has been continually rejecting these masterpieces. Kindly see that they receive the atten of the editor."

His "Artful Antics" was published in 1898, and after that there was a continuous flow of books, written and illustrated by him.

WHEAT BREAKS LIMIT OF FIVE CENTS A BUSHEL

Fear Over Canadian Plans Brings Selling

Wheat Board Approved

OTTAWA, Ont., July 5.—Premier Bennett's bill providing for establishment of a Canadian wheat board received the royal assent today after two minor amendments had been made in the senate. One amendment removed the words "as speedily as possible" in regards to liquidation of the present wheat pool holdings. The other amendment provided that an investigation of the Winnipeg grain exchange can only be made after approval of the government.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Selling panics developed in Chicago and other North American wheat markets yesterday as traders and speculators were seized with the fear that the new Canadian wheat policy may precipitate an international price war. Wheat was driven down 5 cents a bushel in Chicago, the maximum permitted under the exchange rules, as a heavy wave liquidation knocked buying support from under the market.

In Kansas City and Minneapolis prices fell the 5 cent limit. The Winnipeg market dropped to the 80 cent minimum level maintained by the government pool. It was the first time this season that current futures sold at the minimum quotations.

Drop Here Worst This Year.

The decline in Chicago was the greatest experienced this year. Trading was heavy throughout the session. Opening transactions were made at prices 4½ cents a bushel below Tuesday's final quotations. Abortive rallies developed during the day but quickly spent themselves. When trading ended all wheat futures showed net losses of 5 cents.

Declaration by Prime Minister Bennett of Canada that the dominion will not sell its wheat at "slaughter prices" under the new program failed to make any noticeable impression on the markets. The salient feature of the new Canadian legislation, is that the dominion will meet the price competition of cheaper wheat in the international market. Under such a program price cutting is inevitable, according to the views expressed here.

Bennett Statement Ignored.

The Bennett charge that false information on the new Canadian policy had caused the collapse Wednesday in the Liverpool market was likewise ineffective in checking yesterday's decline. In the English market, however, a partial recovery took place. It was reasoned that any attempt by the dominion to rid herself of the burdensome surplus built up by her price pegging would lead to certain downward adjustments. Only the time element appeared uncertain. Bennett denied that a hasty dumping of supplies was intended but under any selling policy the world market will feel the depressing effects during the process of absorption. Competitor exporting nations will be under pressure to cut prices in order to retain their markets.

Pending a full clarification of the Canadian program traders saw only the immediate bearish influence on prices. Speculators, who had bought heavily during last week on the strength of the black rust scare, dumped their holdings. Stop-loss orders were uncovered as the market declined, which swelled the volume of liquidation.

Other Grains Affected.

Liquidation centered in the wheat pit but other grains were affected. Corn futures dropped an average of 2 cents a bushel. The principal future in rye fell the full 5 cents permitted.

	Yesterday.	July 3.	Week ago.
Wheat	$ .81⅛	$ .86⅞	$ .83⅝
Corn	.73⅛	.75⅝	.77
Oats	.31⅛	.33½	.34¼
Rye	.42⅝	.47⅝	.48¾

Domestic crop news was obscured in the excitement. Fair weather prevailing in the southwestern states again facilitated harvesting operations. More reports on black rust infestation in the wheat fields of North and South Dakota came in. The critical period for the crop when the rust may do the greatest damage will come in the next three weeks. No actual damage is believed to have been done so far, but real injury is possible under weather conditions promoting the development of rust.

Flour Prices Tumble.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 5.—(AP)—Flour prices tumbled 30 cents a barrel on the Minneapolis market today in sympathy with an average drop of 4½ cents a bushel in wheat. Family patents slumped from $7.50 a barrel in 98 pound cotton sacks to $7.20, the decrease, however, leaving flour at approximately the level of two weeks ago.

BANK STOCKS RISE FROM FRACTIONS TO FIVE POINTS

Bank stocks in Chicago and New York continued to rise yesterday on the strength of modification of the banking bill. Gains ranged from ¼ to 5 points.

In Chicago, First National showed an increase of 2 points to 125 bid, 129 asked, and Continental stock rose 1½ points to 54 bid, 56 asked. City National gained 3 points at 83 to 90, while Central Republic increased ¼ point to 5 bid, 6 asked.

First National and Guaranty Trust of New York gained 5 points each to 1,625 bid, 1,665 asked, respectively. A similar increase was shown in United States Trust stock to 1,670 bid, 1,720 asked. National City was unchanged, and Chase National rose ½ point to 28½ bid, 30 asked.

Canada Latest Victim of Price Fixing Fiascos

The eclipse of Canada's grand experiment in price fixing adds another chapter to the record of unsuccessful attempts to control markets of international commodities. It is an economic lesson which nations have had to learn over and over again. Brazil tried it with coffee, England tried it with rubber, and the United States under the farm board tried it with wheat.

Such experiments are deceptive in the early stages. The immediate object of freezing prices at a high level is usually successful, but it takes time to reveal the results. Canada succeeded in so far that she held her wheat prices above the world level for five years. The trouble was that the rest of the world wanted cheaper wheat and got it from other producing countries. Canadian farmers in the meantime have been receiving good prices, but at the expense of the government treasury.

Several Millions Lost.

Now the Canadian government owns 225 million bushels of wheat on which she has a loss running into several millions of dollars. Nature is providing her with another big crop this year, according to present appearances. But her foreign markets have been drastically curtailed. Despite her tarif advantage in the British market Argentina has consistently undersold her there. Canadian wheat is of a superior grade, but the English and other European importers took cheaper wheat from the southern hemisphere.

Some countries, normally importing nations, have extended domestic production to the point where they are now actually exporting countries. France is an example. French wheat is now being offered in export channels at prices below the prevailing market. Before Canada, the United States, and other producing nations attempted to rig wheat prices France was a substantial buyer of foreign wheat.

Years Needed to Repair Damage.

It will probably take Canada years to repair the damage done to her principal industry by government price meddling. She has given other countries an advantage she may never be able to entirely overcome.

In the face of the obvious failure of the Canadian program the United States is currently engaged in a similar experiment with cotton. The results are beginning to take the same form. Foreign cotton production is rising rapidly. American exports are declining and the federal treasury will probably stand a healthy loss.

The immediate loss is comparatively insignificant. Brazil, Argentina, and other countries suitable for cotton production are wresting away markets which in the final analysis may cost America a far bigger sum.

MONEY POLICY NO RECOVERY AID, MOULTON SAYS

Currency depreciation and the departure from the gold standard are retarding and not aiding the United States in national recovery nor are they helping the world, Prof. Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings Institution of Washington, D. C., said last night before final meeting of the Mid-West Institute of International Relations at the First Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston.

In advancing a four point program for international economic recovery, Prof. Moulton criticized by inference two New Deal policies and praised the successful negotiation of reciprocal trade treaties by Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Proceeding from the premise that theories of national economic isolation are fallacious and that the return of prosperity to this nation is dependent upon world economic recovery, Prof. Moulton said that the latter can be achieved by international coöperation through the settlement of commercial policies and throat cutting tarifs, the restoration of the gold standard and the stabilization of currencies, the readjustment—if not cancellation—of war debts, and the reduction of expenditures for armaments.

Minneapolis Honeywell Declares 25 Cents Extra

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—The Minneapolis Honeywell Regulator company today announced an extra dividend of 25 cents, in addition to the regular quarterly of 75 cents, on the common stock, both payable Aug. 15, to holders of record Aug. 3.

SEC DEMANDS FOREIGN NATIONS SUPPLY DATA ON FISCAL CONDITION

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—Foreign governments and their political subdivisions were called upon by the securities and exchange commission today to present for investors comprehensive information concerning their fiscal condition. There is a form for the permanent registration on American stock exchanges of securities of such issuers. The conditions will apply to all issues now enjoying temporary registration, and the data required must be filed by Dec. 31. Additional forms will soon be issued covering permanent registration requirements for securities of other foreign issuers, such as corporations.

One of the questions asked is whether any exchange control has been established by the registrant, or, if the registrant is other than a national government, by its national government. In the event such exchange control exists, a brief description of its operations must be given.

All issuers also must give a statement of internal and external funded and floating indebtedness, classified statements of receipts and expenditures and a description of the reason for any failure to meet principal, interest or sinking fund requirements in regard to securities registered.

In the case of a central government, information must also be supplied regarding note issue and gold reserves of the central bank of issue, comprehensive data as to exports and imports, and the balance of international payments of the registrant for the last fiscal year.

ILLINOIS DEBT SOARS TO TOTAL OF 225 MILLIONS

Springfield, Ill., July 5.—[Special.]—Illinois' outstanding debt has soared to $224,718,000, as of July 1, the report of John Stelle, state treasurer, revealed today. Recent issues for relief purposes have added immensely to the indebtedness which has risen from modest totals in relatively few years.

Revenues during the first six months of 1935 totaled $74,386,883, compared with $75,582,294 for the same period a year ago, the report said.

Collections this year have been larger for the sales, liquor, motor fuel, and motor vehicle taxes, the largest sources of state revenue since the direct levy on property was abandoned two years ago. Increases also were shown for inheritance taxes, trust funds and the Illinois Central railroad.

The biggest decrease was in delinquent property tax payments from past years, which brought $3,472,289 into the treasury so far this year, compared with $8,404,426 during the first six months of 1934. Less revenue was also collected from insurance companies, corporation taxes, interest on state funds, federal aid to roads and miscellaneous fees, earnings and refunds.

The treasury balance on June 30, the end of the old biennium, was reported at $55,694,473 by Stelle, compared with $54,665,,551 a year ago.

CHICAGO TRANSIT LINES REPORT SMALLER TRAFIC

Passenger trafic on the street cars, elevated lines and buses in Chicago during June dropped below a year ago because of inclement weather this year, the World's Fair of a wear ago, and one more Sunday in June of this year than in 1934.

The Chicago Surface Lines reported a total of 53,169,105 revenue passengers carried during the month, a decrease of 4.76 per cent from the corresponding month of a year ago. Travel on Chicago Motor Coach company buses during June dropped 25.71 per cent below the 1934 month, with a total of 3,336,076 passengers. During the first six months of the year the buses carried 18,872,132 passengers, or 6 per cent less than in the first half of 1934.

The Chicago Rapid Transit company showed a decline of 2.4 per cent. For the first six months of the year the company had a gain of 3.55 per cent over a year ago.

Diesel-Powered Motor Car Crosses U. S. for $7.63

Los Angeles, Cal., July 5.—(AP)—The first lightweight Diesel power built motor car built in this country arrived here today from New York over a 3,774 mile route. It used 109 gallons of fuel oil, costing $7.63, the drivers said. They were Clessie L. Cummins, builder of the engine, and Fred Duesenberg, son of August Duesenberg, automobile engineer.

President Asks Safety in Bank Underwriting

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—A strong belief that if national banks again are permitted to underwrite issues of securities as proposed in the banking bill pending before the senate this authorization should be surrounded by the strictest limitations on the methods by which such securities are sold was indicated today by President Roosevelt.

He told newspaper men that he has not yet read the text of the bill as revised by the senate banking and currency committee, but that he could not approve any measure that would again permit practices reported current until two years ago, such as that by which some banks diverted securities, underwritten by themselves, but which did not find a ready market, into accounts held in trusteeship by the banks.

Would Plug Loopholes.

Shortly before the press conference Chairman Fletcher of the senate banking and currency committee, who had talked with Roosevelt, told newspaper men that he likewise would oppose any form of bill that left loopholes by which underwriting banks might unload "sour" paper on their correspondent banks.

Both the President and Senator Fletcher indicated that the ideal formula, from their point of view, if there should be a preponderant sentiment in favor of permitting banks again to enter the security underwriting field, would be to permit national banks to underwrite but not to sell securities to customers.

President Roosevelt said that he did not know whether such a formula could be devised, but his interviewers gathered the impression that he would rather no permission were given banks to embark in the securities business at all than to open the gates again to practices revealed in testimony taken by the senate banking and currency committee out of which grew the banking act of 1933. This measure divorced commercial banking from the underwriting of issues of securities.

Talk of Dropping Section.

The sentiment expressed today by the President, and Senator Fletcher, emphasized the question mark laid on the whole securities section of the proposed banking bill. It lent force, likewise, to an expectation voiced in some quarters, that this section might be eliminated from the bill.

In its original form, the banking bill, as passed by the house, authorized member banks in the federal reserve system to underwrite securities issues to the extent of one tenth of their capital and surplus, while freeing them from the responsibilities imposed on other underwriters of securities imposed in sections 11 and 12 of the securities act of 1933.

The senate banking and currency committee removed the exemption from the bill and reported the bill for senate action with the proviso that amendments might be offered when the bill was taken up for action on the floor.

Removal of the exemption feature from the banking bill was in line with a recommendation that Joseph P. Kennedy, SEC chairman, was prepared to make to the committee if it had not taken such action on its own accord.

On the other hand, this action obviously displeased treasury officials who objected to having national banks made subject to civil suits under the securities act.

ROSENBAUM UNIT TO ASK RFC LOAN TO REORGANIZE

Decision on the Rosenbaum Grain corporation reorganization or property sale was delayed again yesterday when Federal Judge William H. Holly continued hearings until July 9.

The continuance was ordered after A. Mitchell Palmer, former attorney general in the Wilson administration, informed the court that he had been retained by the Chicago Elevator Properties, Inc., a Rosenbaum subsidiary, to negotiate for a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. If a loan is obtained from the government agency it will be passed along by the subsidiary to the parent company to facilitate a reorganization, it was learned.

The alternative to straight reorganization is the sale of the elevator properties. Bids have been submitted by two groups, one headed by the Norris Grain company and the second by the Continental Grain company. The latter offer is supported by the creditors' committee.

SHARES CLIMB DESPITE BREAK IN COMMODITIES

Many Issues Set New Highs for Year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 5.—Waving aside a 5 cent break in wheat prices and a disturbing upset in cotton, the share market today gave a surprising exhibition of strength. Some of the more active industrials shot up as much as 4 points and many reached new high levels for the year. Trading was brisk considering the large number of brokers and traders absent from the city because of the holiday and the heat. The turnover was 877,730 shares.

For a change there was no fresh bearish news of importance out of Washington, congress having abandoned the job for the week. The few bits of trade news forthcoming were mildly bullish.

Market Influences.

Some of the chain stores reported higher sales for June, but others, including Woolworth, did not do quite so well as a year ago. The American Telephone system reported a seasonal decrease of 8,000 telephones in use in June, but a year ago the decline was half again as large.

The feature of the share market was the steel group. U. S. Steel crossed 35 on lively demand, and gains in Bethlehem, Rolling Mills, and Inland ran to around 3 points. Minor steel stocks have enjoyed accumulation by investment trusts for several weeks and the movement now seems to be spreading to the "big timers" of the division.

The revived popularity of the steels is said to be largely due to a belief that the automobile industry, which is preparing to bring out its new 1936 models in September of this year instead of in December as formerly, will have some attractive orders for the big steel companies in a few weeks. Union Carbide was bid up to a new high for the year in sympathy with the steels. The company's products are largely used in alloy steel manufacture.

Flurries in Utilities.

There were buying flurries in the utilities, but the net gains on the whole were not so impressive as in other sections. American Telephone rose more than a point. Some of the preferreds were fairly buoyant.

Chemicals performed impressively. Allied rose 4 points on moderate turnover and du Pont bettered its rating by nearly $1 a share. Agricultural shares were disposed to ignore the weakness in grain and cotton. Case and International Harvester rose a point or more each. Chrysler led the motors, recording a 2 point gain in heavy trading.

Individual strong spots included Air Reduction, Pneumatic Tool, Columbia Pictures, Continental Can, Foster Wheeler, and Radio B in which the gains ranged as high as 4 points.

The silvers had another good day and bank stocks continued in favor. Lehman rose 2 points to a new high on a favorable report covering net assets, and Corn Exchange bank continued active at better price levels.

Tobaccos rose 1 to 3 points. American and Liggett & Myers chalked up new highs for the year or longer.

JUNE BUILDING IN CHICAGO 100% OVER LAST YEAR

BY AL CHASE.

Building construction in Chicago for June increased more than 100 per cent over the same month of last year, according to Richard E. Schmidt, building commissioner. There were ninety building permits issued last month calling for construction with a dollar value of $741,850. This compares with fifty for June, 1934, valued at $355,025.

Home building showed the sharpest increase in June's totals as compared with last year. In June, 1934, there were fifteen permits issued for single family dwellings. Last month the total was fifty-two. Business buildings showed a slight gain, from twenty-eight in June, 1934, to thirty-two last month.

Comparison of the first six months of 1935 with the same period last year also disclosed an increase. This year the total is $5,801,032, compared with $3,529,211 last year. The number of buildings in 1934 was 219, compared with 392 for the first half of 1935.

WORLD BANK GOLD HOLDINGS REACH NEW PEAK

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BASLE, Switzerland, July 5.—Funds of the Bank for International Settlements rose during June by 11,000,000 Swiss francs to a total on June 30 of 661,000,000, according to the monthly report. Nearly 7,000,000 francs came in sight deposits in gold bars, the remainder being additions to Central bank deposits.

On the asset side the most striking change is an even larger increase in gold bar holdings, which rose in value from 16,000,000 to 28,500,000 Swiss francs. This forms a new peak for the world bank. This jump is explained as due partly to increased gold bar deposits and partly to provision for that part of the dividend payable July 1 in gold to Central bank shareholders.

Senate Group's Rail Probe to Bring Back Shades of Past

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Shades of the past are to be blown back into life in the senate interstate commerce committee investigation of the financial indiscretions of the railroads and their investment bankers over a period of years.

Repetition of these unfortunate financial follies has already been blocked by the provisions of the new securities legislation and by general recognition among investors of the fallacies of railroad bond financing as it was practiced in the first quarter of the present century.

* *

Nevertheless for political purposes the senate interstate commerce committee hearings on incidents of the railroads' financial history will probably provide as resonant a sounding board as did the senate banking committee's hearings on investment banking generally, which was climaxed with the circus press agent's plunking a female midget into J. P. Morgan's ample lap to pose for news cameras.

The Missouri Pacific railroad, invariably brought up as a "horrible example" in any recitation of railway financing atrocities, is expected to occupy a prominent place in the committee's hearings.

The Missouri Pacific's history was not unlike that of many other American railroads which grew too fast, borrowed too much money, mortgaged themselves beyond their ability to repay except by continually expanding earnings, and then collapsed when railroad expansion stopped and revenues going down met operating expenses coming up.

* *

There is no secret about what the committee will find. Volume upon volume has already been written about it. Furthermore, this information has already been carefully analyzed and experts have agreed that the evils which cost investors in railroad securities so much lay in the practice of issuing bonds to pay for stocks of other roads, paying too much for the stock, paying too much in fees to investment bankers who controled the roads, making no provisions for paying off debts, and assuming that railroads would continue to grow indefinitly and that revenues would always rise.

The Missouri Pacific, whose creditors this week suggested a plan for consolidation of its hundred underlying bond issues into five or six new issues, paid millions in fees to the bankers who sold the original issues. With the money that it thus borrowed from investors it loaded up with the stocks of the smaller lines that it acquired, thus becoming involved in all sorts of speculative ventures.

* *

In 1914 when the mountain of debt had risen to a point where 77 cents out of each dollar of Missouri Pacific capitalization was represented by bonds, "MOP" finally failed to meet interest charges and, under the sponsorship of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., a new company arose out of the receivership of the old.

New bonds were issued for the defaulted issues, accompanied by rosy promises concerning their soundness. Some of the new bonds were sold as sound investments to stockholders who had been wiped out by the receivership. Best bonds of Missouri Pacific are now selling at 27½ cents on the dollar and the poorest at 5½ cents on the dollar. The common stock given to purchasers of bonds as a bonus, never paid dividends even in boom years, despite bankers' estimates in 1917 that earnings would be more than enough to yield 3½ per cent on the stock.

This reorganization cost Missouri Pacific investors $14,376,000. After the new company was formed four of the members of the committee who had helped Kuhn, Loeb effect the reorganization became directors and Kuhn, Loeb attorneys became counsel for the road. Albert H. Wiggin of the Chase National bank was one of these directors. Later he withdrew and John J. Raskob and Matthew C. Brush were elected to the board.

* *

Neither the officers of Missouri Pacific, its bankers nor the interstate commerce commission learned the lesson taught by the 1914 crash, for ten years later an arrangement was made whereby "MOP" took over Gulf Coast Lines, again borrowing to pay for stock in another railroad. A majority of the members of the interstate commerce commission approved the deal; two investment banking firms—Blair & Co. and Harriman & Co.—were paid generous fees, and the railroad was again on its way borrowing to buy stock. After the Gulf Coast Lines deal Missouri Pacific bought large quantities of stock in Texas and Pacific and then Denver and Rio Grande. The subsidiaries, following the pattern of the parent company, in turn borrowed to buy sub-subsidiaries.

In 1929 J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Van Sweringens superseded Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in control and Missouri Pacific, taken in tow by Alleghany corporation, not only bought stocks in other companies, but began what one commentator called "swallowing its own tail," by buying large quantities of its own securities through subsidiaries.

* *

Interest charges on its rising debt, losses sustained on stock that it had bought, and the millions paid to bankers and special counsel in fees and expenses made heavy inroads in Missouri Pacific's finances, and despite the sale of 61 millions of refunding bonds in 1931 the road was back in bankruptcy again in 1933, sixteen years after the previous reorganization.

But the private investors were not the only ones to lose money. Shortly before it went into bankruptcy Missouri Pacific had obtained government loans totaling 23 million dollars.

Again bondholders' "protective" committees sprang up, with officers of New York banking firms that figured in past Missouri Pacific securities deals sitting in key positions.

U. S. Balance of Trade Again Unfavorable

Washington, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—Total imports into the United States exceeded exports during May for the second successive month, according to figures released by the department of commerce today. Imports during May were $5,100,000 more than exports. The unfavorable balance of trade in April was $6,392,000. Prior to April the United States had had favorable balances of trade for many months.

Officials of the department refused to make official comment on the disparity. They said privately, however, that the most important factor was the rise in agricultural imports and the drop in exports of that class, principally raw cotton.

Exchange Rates a Factor.

They suggested that a more favorable exchange situation may also have contributed to comparatively larger purchases by this country, but said that it was too early to ascribe any definite causes to the shifting balance.

Exports during May totaled $164,457,000, compared with $164,188,000 in April and $160,197,000 in May 1934. General imports were $170,559,000, against $170,580,000 in April and $154,647,000 in May, 1934.

During the first five months of this year exports were about $16,000,000 in excess of imports, an average of slightly more than $3,000,000 a month. For the first five months exports totaled $853,789,000 and imports $837,803,000. During the corresponding 1934 period exports aggregated $865,534,000 and imports were $727,734,000.

Gold Imports Soar.

During May gold exports of $42,000 were well under imports of $140,065,000. Silver exports in May were $1,593,000, compared with imports of $11,002,000. In comparison, the country exported $1,780,000 of gold and imported $35,362,000, during May, 1934; silver exports during that month were $1,638,000 while imports were $4,435,000.

The excess of gold imports over exports for the first five months of this year was $573,791,000, compared with $775,469,000 in the first five months of 1934. Silver imports during the period were $70,267,000 more than exports, compared with a similar excess of $8,613,000 in the corresponding 1934 period.

EASTMAN PICKS 18 RAILS FOR SENATE'S QUIZ

Declares Selections 'Representative.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5.—Joseph B. Eastman, federal coördinator of transportation, today recommended to the senate interstate commerce commission the investigation of 18 railroads throughout the nation. Among western railroads in the list were Chicago, Rock Island, and Pacific, Chicago and North Western, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, and Missouri Pacific.

"The fact that any particular railroad has been included in the list is not to be taken, and cannot be taken, as evidence that it is an undesirable citizen in the rail world, or even that I believe it so to be," Eastman said.

Full Study Authorized.

The senate recently adopted a resolution authorizing the committee to study fully the activities of railroads, their financing, credit, securities operations, and other activities, and any persons or corporations occupying a fiduciary or contractual position or relation with them.

Eastman was required to select the railroads to be included in the investigation. In a letter to Senator Burton K. Wheeler, chairman of the committee, Eastman gave the names of 18 roads which he thought should be examined.

With what could be interpreted as optimism, in view of the usual conduct of congressional investigating committees, Eastman wrote to Senator Wheeler as follows:

"The object of the investigation, I take it, is not merely to exploit certain possibly malodorous or questionable transactions, but to appraise general railroad conditions with especial reference to the conduct of financial matters and the part which financial influence plays in railroad management, purposes, and policies, all with a view to correcting conditions, by legislation or otherwise, which may be found in need of correction.

Expects Wholesome Results.

"In other words, the investigation will have the wholesome object of bringing representative conditions to light and showing those who use or invest in the railroads either that these conditions need cause no apprehensions on their part or that there are various steps which can and should be taken to remove reasonable ground for apprehensions."

In the performance of his "unsought" task, Eastman had attempted to select railroads representative of the eastern, southern, and western districts in the United States, he wrote. He also pointed out that at the public hearings before the committee prior to the adoption of the resolution, the affairs of certain railroads were discussed and transactions sharply criticized. It was only fair to those roads, he declared, to include them in the list so that they could defend themselves from charges if they wished.

"Inasmuch as the financial affairs of the railroads and their relations with financial interests are apparently to play an important part in the investigation, it is desirable, if fairly typical conditions are to be considered, that the railroads selected should be representative of the financial interests which have been most closely associated with the railroads," he wrote.

"The two leading interests to be

SALES OF WARD FOR JUNE BEST IN FIVE YEARS

Woolworth Total Is 4% Under Year Ago.

Montgomery Ward & Co. reported yesterday that the company's sales in June were the best for that month since 1930 and surpassed trade during the corresponding month of 1929.

The total for June was $23,822,297, which compares with $19,266,336 in June of last year, an increase of $4,555,961, or 23.65 per cent. The marginal gain over a year ago was considerably larger than that shown in May of this year, when the increase amounted to $1,980,567, or 9.46 per cent. Sales for May at $22,-914,580 were also the best for the month since 1930.

It was pointed out that sales in May and June of 1930 surpassed those of 1929, a boom year, because of the active selling drive conducted for several months in 1930.

Near Peak of April.

The company's sales for June were only exceeded in the fiscal year beginning Feb. 1 by those of April, when the total of $25,571,012 set a new all-time high for that month.

1933	$16,165,180
1932	14,840,109
1931	19,219,335
1930	23,989,300
1929	21,953,639
1928	19,170,246

For the first five months of the fiscal year the company's sales amounted to $112,995,864, compared with $94,-897,348 in the corresponding period of last year, an increase of $18,188,516 or 19.18 per cent.

F. W. Woolworth & Co. also released their sales report for June, showing a decline of 4 per cent from a year ago. The drop was attributed principally to one less business day in June of this year as compared with last. The total for the month was $21,113,249, compared with $22,000,467 in 1934.

For the first six months of the year the company's trade volume reached $120,397,124, compared with $123,826,-274 in the first half of last year, a decline of 2.7 per cent.

Kresge Sales Shrink Less.

S. S. Kresge company announced sales of $11,048,088 for June, or 4.1 per cent below a year ago, compared with a decline of 6.92 in May as compared with 1934. During the first half of the year sales aggregated $61,-229,991, against $63,291,643 in the 1934 period, a drop of 3.2 per cent.

W. T. Grant company sales for June amounted to $7,653,756, or 4.1 per cent above a year ago, compared with a gain of 3.5 per cent in May over 1934. For the first six months of the year the total was $40,443,353, an increase of 10.3 per cent over the $36,635,449 for the first half of 1934.

Sales by Neisner brothers during June totaled $1,659,049, against $1,579,-183 in June of last year, and the total for the first half of the year was $8,-219,808, compared with $8,123,249 a year ago.

LEHMAN CORP. REPORTS ASSETS OF $93 A SHARE

New York, July 5. — [Special.] — The Lehman corporation reports net assets as of June 30, the close of its fiscal year, of $64,067,768, equivalent to $93.98 a share on 681,700 capital shares outstanding. This was after deducting the dividend payable today and after providing for taxes on unrealized appreciation on securities. On Dec. 31 last the asset value of the stock was $88.36 a share, and on June 30, 1934, it was $86.13 a share.

Assets which were valued on the basis of market quotations, together with cash and government securities, amounted to $63,197,972, and assets having no market quotations, taken at a fair value, amounted to $2,996,865. The combined aggregate exceeded cost by $5,126,000.

In his report to stockholders, Arthur Lehman, president, said that since June 30 the corporation has purchased an additional 500 shares of its own capital stock at an average price of approximately $65.17 a share. Income received as interest and dividends, less operating expenses, totaled $2,043,924 for the year ended June 30. Net realized profit on investments is $1,072,640, and net realized profit on commodity transactions is $25,138. After provision of $15,000 for federal income taxes the profit for the period was $3,126,703.

The balance sheet shows cash and United States government bonds at cost totaling $8,393,498, compared with $5,524,055 on Dec. 31, 1934.

FRENCH FRANC DIPS AS CAPITAL FLEES COUNTRY

Fear Political Upheaval; Exchange Fund to Rescue

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—Scared capital was today again in flight from France to England, as threats of serious political disturbances on July 14—Bastille day—or before then continued to arouse extraordinary excitement throughout the country. Both Conservatives and Radicals fear the other side is planning forcible seizure of the government on France's Independence day, and these fears were reflected today in a sharp reduction of the franc rate in foreign exchange markets.

The Conservatives are now demanding that Laval act more vigorously in scaling down government salaries and bringing about further general deflation. Deflation already has long reached the point in France where serious suffering has resulted to a large part of the population and the insistent demand of capital for further action is bringing more and more active resentment.

Exchange Fund Aids Franc.

French exchange in London, which showed marked weakness in futures yesterday, extended its weakening to spot francs, as considerable quantities were offered. Had not a large buyer, presumably the equalization fund, stepped in to buy francs at 74.81 to the pound, it is assumed the price would have depreciated considerably more.

The Swiss situation also is regarded as a threat to the gold bloc situation. Bankers are convinced that Switzerland cannot continue indefinitly on the gold standard, even though the radicals were defeated in the June plebiscite. Many believe that Switzerland will have to devalue before France.

In addition, the Italian finacial situation is becoming more serious. Foreign trade is continuing to shrink, thereby depriving Italy of necessary exchange facilities with which to finance her African venture. Moreover, English merchants, who have supplied coal and other essential materials, are said to be demanding cash payments at present.

Franc Falls in New York.

In the New York market the franc opened at 6.61, off 2¾, and dropped another ¼ point in early trading. It is believed control buying also sustained the price here. Later it improved to close at 6.62⅜ cents, off 1 point.

Other gold block currencies suffered proportionately, guilders selling off 8 points to 68.17, and Swiss francs droping 6 points to 32.75. Belgas also were weak, selling down to 16.90, off 2 points and 5 points below par. The lira was down to 8.28, off 2.

Sterling was firm, opening at $4.94⅜, up ⅛, and gaining in early trading to close at $4.95.

The drop in the franc again placed the dollar above parity with the franc, standing at $1.0015 today, compared with parity on Wednesday. Based on the old par of the franc the dollar was valued at 59.15 cents, against 59.06 cents on Wednesday.

Bar gold in London was unchanged at 140 shillings 11 pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.83. Bar silver, foreign mined and for commercial use, declined ⅜ cent in New York to 69 cents an ounce, but closed unchanged in London at 31 pence, or 69.03 cents.

MUNICIPAL DEBT, PER CAPITA, RISES TO $186 IN 1934

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—Municipal debt of the country was increased substantially in 1934, due to the necessity of financing for relief purposes, the distribution of PWA funds for local improvements, and to the plentiful supply of capital available for investment in municipal securities at low rates of interest, according to C. E. Rightor of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. His survey, based on reports from 217 communities throughout the country of a population of 30,000 or more, shows that the total debt increased from $7,682,440,000 in 1933 to $7,774,861,000 at the end of 1934, a gain of $92,421,000.

Despite the fact that the debt was increased, the survey shows that more cities reduced their budgets than increased them, 118 cities against 99. The average per capita debt of the cities surveyed was increased from $183.79 to $186, or $2.21. Except for Washington, which has no funded debt, Springfield, Ill., was low with a per capita debt of only $4.52, and Atlantic City, N. J., high with a per capita debt of $377.13.

Classified according to population the per capita spread is from $84.14 for St. Louis to $205.44 for Philadelphia, in cities of 500,000 or more; from $67.80 for Seattle to $194.27 for Newark, N. J., in cities from 300,000 to 500,000; $13.13 for Peoria, Ill., to $318.73 for Miami, Fla., in cities from 50,000 to 100,000, and in cities of 30,000 to 50,000, from Sheboygan, Wis., with $12.03 to White Plains, N. Y., with $366.52. The trend for Canadian cities was downward. Twelve Canadian cities reporting reduced their debt by $7,527,000 during 1934.

New York, July 5.—[Special.]—The market for Italian bonds of all kinds reacted unfavorably to the announcement that the emperor of Ethiopia had appealed to the United States to avert war. Italian government 7s broke sharply below 77 to a new low record for all time, compared with a high of 104¾ in 1933.

Sharp declines were recorded also in Milan 6½s, Lombard 7s, and Pirelli 7s on the stock exchange, while corporate issues sold lower in other markets. In other respects the foreign bond market was uneventful, maintaining a firm tone.

U. S. Lists Continue Advance.

This was true of high grade corporate issues, although actual dealings were light. American Telephone 5s of 1960 duplicated their old record high of 113½ despite the fact they are redeemable at 110.

The holiday brought neither respite from selling pressure nor acceptable explanation of weakness in bonds of the Southern railway. Today's losses were about the same as during recent sessions, averaging 1 to 2 points among the most active issues.

Other Rails Unaffected.

Other railroad loans gave no evidence of distress, but there was a scarcity of buying orders in several issues when fair sized blocks were offered for sale which resulted in small losses. Exceptions were bonds of the Great Northern, which have demonstrated independent strength on numerous occasions recently.

No rebunding issues entered the market, but attention nevertheless was diverted from old securities by the task of making secondary distribution of recently offered issues. Dealings in second grade and speculative issues were around the recent average volume, which has not been large.

Oliver Farm Equipment.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Oliver Farm Equipment.—Mrs. H. R.

Answer: Oliver Farm Equipment company has failed to earn a profit in any year since 1929. This is a reflection of unsatisfactory farm conditions, which not only cut down sales sharply but made collections of outstanding receivables difficult. The latter is an important factor, since the bulk of farm equipment is sold on the instalment basis.

The company was caught with heavy bank loans. During the last few years it has reduced them considerably, but this has resulted in a contraction of liquid assets.

Preferred dividends were stopped. Now that conditions in the farm equipment business are beginning to look favorable the management has been working to ease the company's situation. It offered a recapitalization plan to stockholders. This provides for the exchange of prior preferred stock for new common on the basis of 1¼ new common shares for each 20 old common shares. It is expected that if this is consummated at the next meeting on July 19, 1935, some effort will be made to fund the heavy floating debt.

Operations in March and April, 1935, were profitable, the first monthly profits since June, 1930. Net sales in 1934 were $7,691,000, against sales of $4,507,000 for 1933, $4,451,000 for 1932, and $15,610,000 for 1931. The company lost $7,384,000 in 1932, $2,907,000 in 1933, $4,165,000 in 1932, and $4,909,000 in 1931.

Current assets on Dec. 31, 1934, including cash of $1,500,000, totaled $12,283,000, and current liabilities were $7,682,000. Notes payable to banks were $7,100,000, against $8,625,000 the year before. Working capital was $4,601,000, against $11,472,000 the year before.

Giving effect to the plan [which has not yet been approved] capitalization would consist solely of 272,000 shares, with a balance of 528,000 shares authorized but not issued. There are now outstanding 188,610 shares of no par $6 dividend preferred and 621,805 shares of no par common. There is no funded debt.

Both the preferred and common are quite speculative.

General Motors.

Investors' Guide: Upon Feb. 27 I bought 100 shares of General Motors common. I did not ask for delivery. What dividends have been paid since then?—G. B. L.

Answer: One dividend of 25 cents a share was paid on June 12 to stock of record May 16, to which you are entitled. Another of 25 cents was paid March 12 to stock of record Feb. 14. You would not be entitled to that one.
